1. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This Study has been produced at the request of Mr Enzo Damiani and prepared by Mr Arkadiusz Radwan (Team Leader), Ms Alla Nadzon and Ms Viktoriia Zdiruk. The purpose of this Study is to review the Ukrainian legislation and practices on company law, corporate governance, accounting and auditing and to examine its current compliance level with the EU law requirements and standards. The Study also provides an update on the main changes in the respective sectors in 2014.

Legal developments is a phenomenon that rarely occurs linear. Times of rapid changes are alternated with times of stagnation, reforms are followed by the times of digest. Ukrainian law does not deviate from this pattern. A few points in time over the last nearly 25 years have marked milestones in the process. These points in time are 1991 – the enactment of the Law on Business Association, 2004 – the adoption of Civil Code and Economic Code and 2008 – birth of the new Law on Joint Stock Companies. Now a new impulse for law reform became topical and politically valid: under the Association Agreement between the European Union and Ukraine that was signed in 2014 Ukraine undertook a legal obligation to bring its legislation in line with the requirements of the EU law. This Study contributes to the part of the Association Agreement concerning the company law, corporate governance, accounting and auditing. The global objective of this Report is to improve business climate in Ukraine by aligning its company, corporate governance, accounting and audit legislation with the EU standards and practices. This Report presents the assessment of current approximation level of relevant legislation of Ukraine to the EU Acquis as well as provides recommendations for its further harmonization. In addition, the study reaches out to national jurisdictions of some European countries as well as to the US and attempts to learn from their corporate law reforms.

In general, Ukraine has reached a good level of compliance of its company, corporate governance, accounting and auditing legislation with the Acquis. However, the Report has confirmed the existence of dualistic regulations for private relations in Ukraine manifested in parallel operating of the legislative acts based on outdated soviet-time concepts (Economic Code of Ukraine) and relatively new legislation based on European standards (“Law on Joint-Stock Companies”, and Civil Code of Ukraine). In certain respects Ukrainian law has excelled European standards, e.g. it has long implemented rules on related party transactions, whereas it is only now becoming part of the EU legislative agenda. In spite of this generally positive assessment, a number of legislative discrepancies related, inter alia, to the Takeover Directive, Shareholder Rights Directive, Mergers and Divisions Directives, Capital Directive, Directive regarding cross-border mergers of public limited liability companies continue to exist. Also, the modernization of Ukrainian company law appears to have been a selective process – while the law on joint stock companies contains many modern features, the law on limited liability companies remains underdeveloped and fails to adequately address all vital issues of small and medium-sized business organizations.

Our main findings with respect to aforementioned objectives include recommendations for the abolishing of outdated Economic Code and overlapping provisions from the other acts (the Law on Business Associations, the Civil Code, the Law on Joint Stock Companies) in order to provide legal certainty for investors and shareholders in Ukraine. Legal framework for private limited liability companies should be put in place in form of a new law which should increase the level of minority protection while at the same time leaving enough space for flexible arrangements that are needed in small and medium sized enterprises. In the sphere of corporate reorganisations (mergers, divisions, spin-offs) and transformations enactment of a new law could be recommended as well.

Dual regime for listed and non-listed JSC should be introduced and the exclusive criterion of division into public and private joint stock companies shall be public placement of the shares (not a number of shareholders). Moreover, Shareholder Rights Directive should be implemented with regard to listed companies. Takeover law should be reformed (by implementation of squeeze-out and sell-out rights, lowering the threshold triggering mandatory takeover bid, introducing the break-through rule, improving guarantees for equitable bid price and defining the duties of the board), pre-emptive rights to take up newly issued shares shall be mandatory in all JSC companies and must be provided in the law (ex lege). The terminology of JSCL, the quorum for the validity of GM in JSC, and list of triggering events for appraisal rights should be reconsidered. In the reporting requirements the statement on CG Code to which the listed company adheres shall be added and the 'comply or explain' principle shall be introduced with mandating the corporate governance statement as a part of company’s disclosure. Derivative actions should be facilitated and possibility for arbitration of corporate law disputes should be considered.

The project firstly embraced review of the current Ukrainian legislation in the field of company law, corporate governance, accounting and auditing. The review has been conducted in form of approximation tables where article-by-article examination of the applicable laws has been made against the background of the EU law requirements. Whenever possible, the draft EU laws have been also taken account of, in order to possibly make advance or anticipated recommendations, so as to facilitate leapfrogging and learning from earlier experiences of EU law in the member states of the EU. Thus, for proposed solutions and recommendations for Ukraine, foreign laws have been also referred to. Based on the results from this review, a narrative part of analysis has been produced. The narrative part includes also background information on the history and development of Ukrainian law as well as on socio-economic conditions under which it operates. This is important for the theoretical part, where different approaches to law reform and to legal strategies are analysed. This part is important, as it provides an analytical framework explaining choices made with regard to the proposed solutions. The self-enforcing model of corporate law has been chosen and adapted to the conditions of Ukrainian legal and institutional setting, ownership structure and legal heritage. The result of the Study is a comprehensive overview of Ukrainian company law, corporate governance, accounting and auditing indicating internal (intra-systemic) and external (vis-à-vis EU Acquis) inconsistencies as well as providing recommendations for reform. Given the complexity of the fields covered by the study, specific areas will require further elaboration. These areas include in particular: (i) reform of the takeover law, (ii) reform of the law on private limited liability companies, including focus on small business, family business and enterprise succession, (iii) reform of the investor protection in listed companies, in particular in a cross-border setting, (iv) use of alternative dispute resolution in company law, in particular arbitration of corporate disputes. Thus, in addition to proposing ready-to-implement solutions, the Study seeks to provide a roadmap for further actions. It would be wise to consider further studies, seminars and other actions in the aforesaid areas. Recommended actions include also to set-up a panel or expert group bringing together local and international experts so as to work out model laws and other non-binding reference works that based on the authority of experts involved and on the support of the European Union could be internalised by the addressees of this works and be voluntarily implemented as laws or standards in Ukraine and other transitional economies.
With the declaration of sovereignty and independence in early 1990s, Ukraine’s law system began a period of intensive development. Obviously, it has been formed under certain historical, geopolitical and economic conditions (path dependent). It should be taken into account that throughout its history Ukraine had existed for centuries as an independent state (Kievan Rus’), then was fragmented into separate kingdoms, entered the various states, in particular, the Grand Duchy of Lithuania and Kingdom of Poland, afterward the Russian and Austro-Hungarian empires, and eventually the Soviet Union.

The collapse of the Soviet Union led to a new stage in the development of Ukrainian law. The previous public ownership model of self-model socialism and the collective administration of the economy were abandoned, and a complex process of economic, legal and political reforms began. In 1992 the processes of privatization and denationalization started and Ukraine adopted the first acts of the national company legislation, based on which further reform of the economic system was carried out and the foundations for a market economy were laid.

Despite often being described as a "border country" which simultaneously experiences a number of influences (namely European, Russian and before Asian), Ukraine since gaining its independence in 1991 has sought to deepen its economic and political ties with the European Union (hereinafter - the EU) and regularly expressed its willingness to obtain membership of this international organization. Evidently, the approximation of Ukrainian legislation with Acquis Communautaire is one of essential preconditions for forging closer links with the European Community.

It is worth mentioning that the need and necessity of harmonization of the Ukrainian law with the European Acquis was declared at the beginning of the reconstruction of Ukrainian state. Ukraine signed the Partnership and Cooperation Agreement (hereinafter – the PCA) with the EU in 1994 which, inter alia, promoted trade, investment and harmonious economic relations between the Parties, provided a basis for mutually advantageous and fruitful cooperation, and supported Ukrainian efforts to complete the transition into a market economy.

In its turn, the Association Agreement between the European Union and its Member States of the one part, and Ukraine, of the other part (furtheron referred to as “the Association Agreement”) has renewed the EU-Ukraine common institutional framework and strengthened economic integration between the EU and Ukraine. It covers among others the approximation of the EU and Ukraine on the grounds of common values, the creation of a unified legal environment for market relations and an enhanced economic cooperation by establishing a deepened and strengthened free trade area.

The special interest is paid to the approximation of company, corporate governance, audit and accounting legislation which sets the foundation for encouraging the business community of EU Member States to work actively in Ukraine. Their presence is supposed to contribute to Ukraine’s economic development and bring foreign investments to its economy. Therefore, the legal alignment with acquis communautaire objectively accelerates the integration with the European Union and that is why it is of key priority to Ukraine.

It should be admitted that the system of Ukrainian laws is complicated and unstable, with specific legislative provisions being discrepant with each other and in some cases also arguable. Further development of Ukrainian company legislative base should be founded on an extensive systematic study of Ukrainian laws and consideration of the regulation mechanisms of corporate relations based on the example of foreign experience, careful analysis of the weaknesses and benefits of already existing mechanisms.

2.2. OBLIGATIONS RESULTING FROM THE 2014 ASSOCIATION AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE EU AND UKRAINE IN THE FIELD OF COMPANY LAW AND CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

The Commission’s “White Paper on the preparation of associated countries of Central and Eastern Europe for integration into the internal market of the Union” prompts associated countries to adopt internal market legislation and to establish structures to support the economic reform process\(^1\). At the same time, the EU’s Copenhagen criteria (Accession criteria) require a new Member State to preserve political stability (including institutions guaranteeing democracy and the rule of law), economic efficiency (existence of a functioning market economy and the capacity to cope with competitive pressure and market forces within the Union), and to accept the Community Acquis\(^2\).

Ukraine as a priority partner country within the European Neighborhood Policy (ENP) and the Eastern Partnership initially based its relationships with the EU on the previously mentioned PCA which provided for a gradual economic integration and deepening political association. Over time, as the relations and ties between the EU and Ukraine became closer and deeper, the negotiations on a new EU-Ukraine Association Agreement were launched. It took from 2007 to 2012 to negotiate and prepare its provisions. Meanwhile, in 2009 the EU and Ukraine adopted the EU-Ukraine Association Agenda, which aimed at preparing for and facilitating the entry into force of the EU-Ukraine Association Agreement. As a result of the foregoing, on June 27 of 2014 the Association Agreement was signed\(^3\). It replaced the PCA and foresees a legal obligation of Ukraine to approximate its legal system with the European Union Acquis Communautaire. Moreover, the Association Agreement contains a number of binding deadlines for bringing the Ukrainian legislation in line with the requirements of the EU law.

\(^2\) European Union Press Release of 22 June 1993 (DOC/93/3)

\(^3\) The political provisions of the Association Agreement were signed on 21 March 2014
Under Article 387 of Chapter 13, Title V of the Association Agreement the Parties, recognizing the importance of an effective set of rules and practices in the areas of company law and corporate governance, as well as in accounting and auditing, for creating a fully-functioning market economy and for fostering trade, agree to cooperate:

(a) on the protection of shareholders, creditors and other stakeholders in line with EU rules in this area;

(b) on the introduction of relevant international standards at national level and gradual approximation to EU law in the field of accounting and auditing;

(c) on further development of corporate governance policy in line with international standards, as well as gradual approximation to the EU rules and recommendations in this area.

Therefore, according to Annexes XXXIV, XXXV and XXXVI of the AA, Ukraine undertakes to gradually approximate its legislation to the relevant EU legislation in the areas of company law, corporate governance, accounting and auditing within the stipulated timeframes, which are shown on the following table:

3. THE COURSE OF ANALYSIS

The purpose of this Report is to present and discuss issues of approximation of Ukrainian company, corporate governance, accounting and auditing legislation to European Union standards and practices, provide an update of the main changes in the respective sectors in 2014, as well as review the overall picture of company law framework in Ukraine, e.g. its path dependence, judicial interpretation and application, both strengths and weaknesses with indications for further reflections.

The analysis takes the following course. The general characteristics of Ukrainian company law, namely its system and sources, foreign inspirations and their impact on its formation are discussed in Chapter 4. Chapter 5 is designed to present the analysis of Ukrainian company and corporate governance legislation: its current status, assessment of the compliance with EU legislation, practices and standards, recommendations for its further alignment with acquis communautaire. The areas of Ukrainian law corresponding with or covered by the EU directives are discussed separately in order to clearly assess their compatibility status and point out the best ways of bridging the gaps. Besides, the chapter describes the Ukrainian model of corporate governance as a significant factor for successful operation of companies in a market economy. Subsequently, a list of inconsistencies between the Law On Joint Stock Companies (hereinafter – the Law on JSC) and other legal acts regulating the operations of JSC is delivered.

In the further course of this report Chapter 6 examines the current status of accounting and auditing legislation in Ukraine and provides recommendations for its further harmonization with that of the EU. The special emphasis on problems which arise not from the lack of proper legal provisions but from the lack of their proper application is put in Chapter 7. Moreover, a "self-enforcing" approach to drafting company law for emerging capitalist economies as a strategy for protecting investors is discussed in Chapter 8. Finally, Chapter 9 concludes the analysis and provides an outlook for further development and research.

Relative tables of approximation, the list of stakeholders and minutes from the seminar presenting results of the assignment are included as appendices to the report. The approximation tables play a crucial role in this report as they clearly and demonstrably illustrate the compliance status of Ukrainian company, corporate governance, accounting and audit legislation to the EU requirements and provide proposals for overcoming the inconsistencies.

4. GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS OF THE COMPANY LAW IN UKRAINE
4.1. COMPANY LAWMAKING IN UKRAINE: FORMATION, SYSTEM AND SOURCES

When modeling the future system of Ukrainian company law the issue about its national historical and civilizational origins could not be ignored. Identification of these sources is intended to outline genetic line of national legislation, its so-called path dependence. This will help to determine the measure of its identity and distinctiveness, as well as the limits of possible use of other countries’ experience.

It is a deep mistake to believe that Ukraine in the distant past was a legislative desert. Its company law has not evolved in isolation, but in close interaction with socioeconomic conditions and politics, as well as other parts of the legal system.

Developed trade relations in ancient Kievan Rus’ caused the creation of the „Rus’ka Pravda” – the largest ancient legal source of Medieval Europe. Over the following centuries, that source had a significant impact on the both within and outside borders of Rus’. Its rules, for example, were included to another well-known source of law – the Lithuanian Statutes (of 1529, 1566, 1588).

Despite all the vicissitudes in historical and political destiny, Ukraine’s legal environment was developing continuously during the years. Another important chapter in the development of Ukrainian legal culture was the Magdeburg Law which is interesting, inter alia, because of its regulations of market relations in the medieval cities of Europe. The Magdeburg law regulated commerce activity, crafts, activities of workshops and merchant guilds, property relations and taxation. A number of rules was devoted to the organization of the municipal government and judiciary. As it is pointed out, the Magdeburg Law had successfully filled the legal gap, which was formed on Ukrainian lands after the demise of Kievan Rus’. Despite the fact it was applicable only in Western Ukraine (mainly in Galicia), all official and private codification of the laws in Ukraine in XVII-XIX centuries were carried out by using the rules of the Magdeburg Law. When a part of Ukrainian territories was under the rule of the Austrian Empire, the main act which had the influence on codifications of private law was Austrian Allgemeines Bürgerliches Gezetzbuch (General Civil Code, hereinafter – ABGB). At the same time, the Russian Empire borrowed from the German regulations of those times at a large scale.

5 The „Rus’ka Pravda was created in the Kievan Rus’ in the XI-XII centuries on the basis of common law
6 The Statutes of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania were a XVI-century codification of all the legislation of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania and its successor, the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth
7 The Magdeburg Law (German: Magdeburger Recht), formed in XIII century in Germany and named after the German city of Magdeburg, was a set of town privileges which regulated the degree of internal autonomy within cities and villages, granted by the local governor. Many Ukrainian cities received Magdeburg Rights in XIV-XV centuries, e.g. Lviv (1356), Gorodok (1389), Luck (1432) etc.

After the establishment of the Soviet Union the Ukrainian private law system was no longer part of the circle of continental European legal orders and became an integral part of the legal circle of socialist countries. The main features of the legal system at that times were collective social ownership and a planned economy. As a result, many traditional legal institutions and principles of private law were distorted and many classic company law rules were revoked or modified at a grand scale.

Fundamentals of new company legislation of Ukraine were established after the adoption of the Declaration of State Sovereignty of Ukraine\(^\text{10}\) and the Law On the Economic Independence of the Ukrainian SSR\(^\text{11}\) in 1990, while Ukrainian SSR was still a part of the Soviet Union. With a background of quantity based planned economy and with no experience in market relations among firms, suppliers and customers, Ukraine after achieving its independence in 1991, had the task of reforming its legal system to meet the challenges of the new socio-economic order and to establish the framework for a market economy by replacing the previous Soviet laws that no longer served for the purpose\(^\text{12}\). In the early independence period there were still legislative acts from the former USSR in force in Ukraine, in particular the Civil Code of the USSR from 1963. Actually, even now there are still some acts in force which were adopted during the Soviet times, for example, the Housing Code of the Ukrainian SSR from June 30, 1983, the Labour Code from December 10, 1971, the Decree of Presidium of the Supreme Council of the USSR from March 7, 1990 “On strengthening the responsibility for trading violations and speculation”, Article 4 of the Law “On Entrepreneurship” from February 7, 1991 and others.

Therefore, the new legislative measures started with the adoption of normative regulations in areas that previously had no documented laws and by codifying all other areas of law\(^\text{13}\). Thus, in 1992 the Resolution of the Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine On the Concept of Judicial Reform\(^\text{14}\) was adopted which launched the process of codification of private law in Ukraine. A Parliamentary Assembly’s decree entrusted the „Legislative Research Center” with the task of drafting bills necessary for a complex reform of the judiciary\(^\text{15}\).

At that years, a series of basic laws on business activities was adopted, namely the Laws of Ukraine “On Entrepreneurship”, “On Property”, “On Securities and Stock Exchange”, “On Business Associations”. The adoption of these regulations laid the legal foundation for the development of market relations in Ukraine as for the first time there were defined the members of such relations - entrepreneurs and enterprises of different organizational forms, including companies. The laws of Ukraine “On Privatization of State Enterprises”, “On Privatization of Small State-Owned Enterprises (small privatization),” “On Privatization Securities”, adopted in 1992, heralded and facilitated the beginning of privatization of state property and the creation of large public companies based on the former state property enterprises. Development of corporate structures during the next years was carried out under the influence of privatization and corporatization, activity of investment intermediaries, such as insurance companies, investment funds and banks. After the adoption of the Constitution of Ukraine in 1996\textsuperscript{16}, the following provisions became the bases for commercial law regulations: article 42 of the Constitution, which stipulates the right of every person to entrepreneurial activity that is not prohibited by law; the rules defining the fundamental provisions concerning the right to ownership (Articles 13, 14, 41) and non-material relations (Articles 21, 23, 24, 27, 28).

What was important during Ukrainian Soviet past is that in 20-30 years of the XX century Soviet scientists developed the concept of single economic law, the essence of which laid in the fact that in a socialist planned economy both horizontal (among entrepreneurs) and vertical (between entrepreneurs and the government) relationships should be regulated exclusively by economic law\textsuperscript{17}. In other words, under this theory all property relations (including “purely” civil) were to be governed by sole economic law, which was considered as a specific form of the proletarian state policy in the field of economic management, with its main source - the Economic Code. Actually, the very idea was perceived differently during the existence of the Soviet Union and had both its advocates (V.V.Laptev, V.K.Mamutov, H.M.Sverdlov, V.S.Tadevosyan et al.) and opponents (O.S.Ioffe, S.M.Bratus et al.). After the Union’s collapse, the idea was rejected by many former republics including Russia. Surprisingly, in Ukraine it found its rebirth, and several scientists in 1992 began to prepare the draft of the Economic Code. At the same time the work on the preparation of the Civil Code had started as well.

Both Civil Code and Economic Code were dated 16 January 2003 and became effective on 1 January 2004. As a result, there is a dual system of regulation for private relationships in Ukraine. The main purpose of the new Civil Code was to establish and protect private non-property and property rights on the basis of legal equality, the free declaration of intent, and the economic independence of the participants of legal relationships. The structure of the Civil Code is mainly influenced by the Roman and Germanic legal traditions. The Civil Code has a pandect structure and consists of six books. Contrary to this, the Economic Code partially remains rooted in the philosophy of the ancien régime, in spite of its pedigree. Nonetheless, the Economic Code attempts to provide legal framework regulating the legal status of legal entities, including companies, enterprises and other forms of business associations and organisation. The Economic Code also addresses basic principles of business competition and commercial activity with an international extend, regulation of capital investments and the basic aspects of bankruptcy. The main arguments of the apologists of the Economic Code boils down to referring to the example of some European countries (notably Germany and France) that continue sticking to the coexistence of commercial codes and civil codes (dual systems). By the same token, the adoption of the Ukrainian Economic Code is viewed by its supporters as a step towards approximation of Ukrainian legislation to that of the leading countries of the European Union. However, nothing could be more wrong. Not only is the dual model becoming obsolescent in the majority of European jurisdictions, in particular those of modern date, but also – and most importantly – the Ukrainian Economic Code is not the Ukrainian equivalent of the respective European commercial codes. This is due to its internal inconsistency between private and administrative laws which, in turn, is unlikely to regulate either private or administrative relations in a proper way. The Ukrainian Economic Code does not include provisions that one would find in an authentic commercial code, such as: general provisions on the status of merchant (germ.

\textsuperscript{17} Supra note 8
Kaufmann), on the commercial procuration (germ. Prokura), on the firm names (germ. Firma) and their legal protection (germ. Firmenschutz), on the palette of available legal forms of business activity, special provisions that are applied to commercial activities, including special contract types and commercial transactions (germ. Handelsgeschäfte); provisions which regulate internal procedures of companies; sometimes also rules on mergers, divisions etc. Moreover, commercial codes in the developed European countries have quite different meaning – they supplement the regulations of the civil codes and companies acts with comprehensive focus on private law relations concerning the activities of the partnerships and companies.

Thus, from the 1st of January 2004 Ukraine has created what some have called a ‘duality’ of private law. Ukrainian Economic Code intentionally mixes private law and public commercial law. For several years Ukrainian and foreign experts and expert groups (i.e. numerous reports by the OECD, the Blue Ribbon Commission, the EBA) have therefore been demanding that the Economic Code should be abolished and the Civil Code with some modifications should be declared the underlying codification of private law, giving common ground to special branches of private law legislation, such as company law.

As is evident from the foregoing, legislation is the primary source of Ukrainian company law. Corporate legislation of Ukraine consists of a large array of more or less transparently interrelated legal acts of different legal force. Taken together, these regulations constitute a system of company legislation. This legislation is founded on the Constitution of Ukraine, two Codes (the Civil Code and the Economic Code), separate laws dedicated to various special areas of company law or forms of business associations (the 1991 “Law on Business Associations”, the 2008 “Law on Joint-Stock Companies”, the 2003 “Law on State Registration of Legal Persons and Individual Entrepreneurs”, the 2006 “Law on Securities and the Stock Market”), a significant number of regulations, ordinances and resolutions (of the President of Ukraine, of the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine, of ministries, of state committees, of the NCSSM), and the 2014 “Principles of Corporate Governance” which represents the soft law

Among company law sources there are also international treaties (universal, multilateral, bilateral) to which Ukraine is a party, upon their duly ratification by the Parliament of Ukraine.28

The legal definition of the customs (customs of commerce or trade usages) as a source of civil (and company) law is enshrined in Art. 7 of the Civil Code of Ukraine, which stipulates that civil relations may be regulated by the customary law, in particular, the business-dealing practice. Practice is a rules of conduct not established by civil legislation acts but applied to a certain sphere of civil relations. Special provisions indicate for the necessity of taking into consideration the practice when doing business in Ukraine, e.g. certain legal rules are often referred to “trade and other fair practices” (Art. 32 of the EC), “professional ethics” (Art. 38 of the EC), “the conditions necessary for contracts of this type” (Art. 638 of the CC), “types of the security obligations, which are commonly used in commercial (business) circulation” (Art. 199 of the EC), “accepted level of quality” (Art. 268 of the EC), “the purpose for which goods of such kind are usually used” (Art. 673 of the CC), and others.

Moreover, in Ukraine, judicial practice (case-law), de jure, does not represent a source of law. But some mechanisms exist within the Ukrainian legal system to ensure the harmony of the case-law. Thus, still, even though the decisions of the higher courts do not formally bind lower courts besides the given proceedings, the lower courts in Ukraine, as a rule, follow the legal rulings adopted by the higher courts. Moreover, the Highest Commercial Court of Ukraine analyzes court statistics, generalizes court practice, and issues on these basis resolutions and clarifications which de facto are binding, and in such a way provides the lower commercial courts with recommendations on how to solve cases within their jurisdiction.29 In addition, the Supreme Court of Ukraine as the highest judicial body in the system of courts of general jurisdiction reviews cases regarding unequal application by courts (court) of cassation of the same rule of substantive law in similar legal relations and in such a form ensures the uniform interpretation and application of the law. Besides, the decisions of the Constitutional Court of Ukraine concerning the unconstitutionality of laws and other legal acts in force as well as its official interpretation of the Constitution and laws of Ukraine have direct, mandatory and general effect.30 It should also be taken note of a few cases brought to the European Court of Human Rights where in company law settings the Court found violations of property rights (art. 1 of the Protocol No 1 to the ECHR) or the right to a fair trial (art. 6 of the ECHR).31

28 According to Art. 9 of the Constitution of Ukraine international treaties, that are in force, agreed to be binding by the Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine, are part of the national legislation of Ukraine. The conclusion of international treaties that contravene the Constitution of Ukraine is possible only after introducing relevant amendments to the Constitution of Ukraine

It should be emphasized that nowadays Ukrainian company law is at an important and at the same time difficult stage of its development. On the one hand, there are new and updated laws like the “Law on JSCs” which is, in general, based on modern European patterns, on the other hand – many laws of artificial nature, which ignore the contemporary experience of legal regulations, global trends in company law reforms, with ambiguous and mutually contradictory rules as well as discrepancies. Moreover, on the top, there is a willingness of Ukraine to accept the Acquis of the EU in order to improve its legislation, make it attractive for international investors, and establish a good ground for future membership in the Union.

Overall, Ukraine has made significant progress in introducing and enhancing its company law framework. It took more than a thousand years for the Ukrainian state to gain independence and now Ukraine is considered to be a civil law country with an emerging economy. Ukrainian company law functions in an environment which has all classical negative features of a country in transition, such as dominance of self-dealing majority shareholders extracting private benefits of control, severe asymmetry of information with limited enforcement of information rights by investors, corrupted and malfunctioning courts, poorly developed capital markets and weak self-regulatory institutions. In circumstances of such underdeveloped market and legal infrastructure, the development of company law in Ukraine is highly important with its specific set of goals to become a “protective mechanism” for businesses, investors and commercial activity in Ukraine.

4.2. FOREIGN INSPIRATIONS AND THEIR IMPACT – THE UKRAINIAN EXPERIENCE WITH LEGAL TRANSPLANTS

4.2.1. SOURCES AND TRACES OF FOREIGN INSPIRATION IN UKRAINIAN COMPANY LAW

When taking up the challenge to establish a national legal system, it would not be superfluous to look back in order to clarify guidance how to move forward. The issue of transplantation of foreign law has been of remarkable topicality at all times. Basically, the term legal transplant indicates the moving of a rule or a system of law from one country to another\(^\text{32}\). It is the transfer of laws and institutional structures across geopolitical or cultural borders that can be imposed or voluntary encompass complex legal acts or particular legal institutions and integrate similar or different cultures\(^\text{33}\). This type of mixing and intertwining of different legal cultures can be explained by the natural tendency of human societies to seek understanding for each other, cooperation and connection at different levels\(^\text{34}\).

Legal transplants are as old as the law is\(^\text{35}\). Earlier legal transplants are well known due to the reception of Roman law in Europe. With time, the processes of legal borrowing and transfer that occurred in the 19th and early 20th centuries replaced all earlier transplants which no longer meet the requirements of economic and social activity. Most modern contemporary legal systems are derived either from the English common law, the German civil law or the French civil law (questionable – the Scandinavian civil law) which could be characterized as “origin” legal families\textsuperscript{36}. For many countries, including Ukraine, borrowing of legal institutes of foreign company laws represents the major method of the development of company law in order to reassure the social needs of a society and keep up with the development of economy. Moreover, legal institutions of company law were also incorporated into European Company Law acts, mainly directives and regulations. Hence, legal transplants and the influence of main legal systems on systems of other countries may be analyzed on two levels: primary (i.e. direct reception of particular legal institutions) and secondary (i.e. reception of certain institutions by implementing European law, which was directly influenced by those institutions). Currently, Ukraine is not a member of the EU, but is involved in close cooperation with it and makes considerable efforts to adapt its company law to European Union’s Acquis.

Thus, foreign inspirations have played an important role in setting the legislative foundations of Ukrainian private law which roots could be traced back to the Roman Empire. Ukrainian legal system by its nature belongs to the Romano-Germanic legal family (the continental law system). Taking this into consideration, the main sources and inspirations for Ukrainian company law should be sought in the legal systems of Germany, Austria and France. Some traces of the Dutch influence could be found in Ukrainian corporate law as well. But the impact of foreign legislation other than that of Germany appears not to be significant.

After gaining its independence in 1991 and obtaining the status of “country with transition economy”, Ukraine had to disassemble its previous economic and legal institutions, which were based on centrally planned regulations. Feeling the strong need to fill the gap left by the previous Soviet experience as well as the pressure from supranational organizations and international financial institutions and taking into consideration the very fact that in the transition process transplantation is unavoidable, Ukraine, when creating a new legal system, relied heavily on the foreign technical assistance that arrived with ideas for “legal surgery”\textsuperscript{37}. As a result, a series of fundamental laws on business regulation was adopted, namely the 1991 “Law on Enterprises in Ukraine”, the 1991 “Law on Property,” the 1991 “Law on Securities and the Stock Market”, the 1991 “Law on Business Associations” etc. Therefore, the process of “wholesale” reception of Western legal institutions by Ukraine has started, even though some of the aforementioned acts contained specific provisions influenced either by the former regulatory philosophy or by the need to cope with the inherited role of the state as business actor, whose role remains significant despite progress of ownership transformation and privatization. It should be noted that even during the Socialist era Western models were borrowed by the Soviet Union in general and separate republics in particular. Legal norms formulated in accordance with German pattern were transmitted into socialist civil law of Soviet Russia in the early 1920s. Codification of civil law that took place in the USSR during the following years continued this approach and many rules of RSFSR Civil Code (1964) showed remarkable resemblance to their prototypes in German Civil Code, in particular, with regard to basic legal concepts, notions and institutions of civil law, such as transactions, legal persons, subjects and objects of rights, law of obligations, specific contracts. But the scale of this phenomenon was slight, if compared to situation after the collapse of the Union.

It should be emphasized that there is no single act (code) that would constitute a comprehensive piece of legislation embracing all types of commercial partnerships and companies along with framework for their reorganisations (mergers, divisions and transformations). The regulations are scattered among several acts of different legal hierarchy: codes, laws, ordinances etc. This is not unique by international comparison - e.g. Germany has a similar structure of multiple sources of company law legislation, each separately yet consistently with the other acts, covering different corporate transactions or companies' types.

Significant traces of German and French law one could find in the new Civil Code of Ukraine (hereinafter – the CC) which was prepared in accordance with recommendations of German, Dutch, Swiss, and American experts and came into force on January 1, 2004. In terms of legal technique, the new Ukrainian Civil Code was primarily drafted along the lines of the continental legal traditions. As a matter of fact, starting from the period of Magdeburg law, civil law legislative practice and legal doctrine in Ukraine developed under the influence of German law. For the first time art. 83 of the CC defined that legal entities may be created in the form of partnerships, institutions and other forms established by the law. This initial separation made at the level of private entities reflects the classification provided by the German Civil Code BGB, which divides the legal persons into partnerships, institutions and legal persons of public law.

The typology of business associations and the two-tier system of corporate governance were derived from the German law and Allgemeines Bürgerliches Gesetzbuch of Austria as well. Likewise in the business reality, a typical tov (limited liability company) is a closed company with a few shareholders who often work for the company and are involved in managing its affairs, similar to the typical German GmbH. Provisions of the CC devoted to the persons' rights and legitimate interests (including legal persons') were borrowed from the French regulations. At the same time, consumer rights protection as well as provisions on liability without fault were inspired by the Dutch Civil Code.

However, despite the strong resemblance to German sources, in Ukraine establishment of the supervisory board in a private limited liability company is not foreseen by the law and is questionable in practice. Moreover, in contrast to the German law, in Ukraine the audit commission is a separate body, rather than a subunit of the supervisory board, and the supervisory board in the small joint stock companies (with less than ten shareholders) is not obligatory. There is no clear legislative division of business associations between partnerships (“personal companies” – germ. Personengesellschaften) and corporations (“capital companies” – germ. Kapitalgesellschaften), no provisions on company in the organization (germ. Vorgesellschaft), no minimum share capital for limited liability companies, and no mandatory representation of employees in the supervisory board (worker co-determination, germ. Mitbestimmung).

40 op. cit., p. 9
French lawyer G. Ryperta once said: “The law on joint stock companies in each country is created by united efforts of all countries.”\textsuperscript{41} Accepting this statement as a general trend in the field of commercial law, it should be pointed out that for a long time the main source of legal regulation of joint-stock companies remained the law of Ukraine “On Business Associations”, passed in December 1991. Actually, the draft of the law on Business Associations was already started during Soviet times. According to a member of the working group, German legislation on commercial association was used as a basis for this law. As the work proceeded, elements from the Anglo-American legislation were also integrated into it.\textsuperscript{42} In our opinion, it is how it always work with legal transplants: the closest legal system forms the backbone (“the spine”) of the new law, and then, taking into consideration certain problems which the country in question faces, other solutions (“the spine’s nerve endings”) from different legal systems are sought for patching the loopholes and completing the construction of the body of the law. Moreover, it is of extremely importance to balance legal transplants with each other and with “the spine” per se.

At those times, the necessity of the law On Business Associations seemed evident to everybody, so it was passed in 1991 almost unanimously without long debate. It was the first law for the new economic market and also the first of its kind in the countries of the former Soviet Union. In Russia and neighboring countries, laws on commercial associations were passed only several years later\textsuperscript{43}.

As a matter of fact, the law On Business Associations despite being revolutionary in 1990s after a few years began to show its inefficiency and weakness. The definition of the closed stock company was not satisfactory as there were no restrictions concerning the number of its shareholders. Moreover, there were no effective mechanisms of protection for minority shareholders. Therefore, the law has not met the requirements of the market despite being amended many times. Focusing on Western legislation, the new law on JSC that came into force on 29 April 2009, though far from being perfect, has brought significant improvements to the corporate law system.

Notwithstanding the dominant influence of German patterns on the new Ukrainian law on JSC, there are some obvious transplants from Anglo-American legal system. Actually, those changes were inspired by real-life problems Ukraine actually had faced, in particular, corporate raiding. This Ukrainian version of hostile takeovers that according to one experienced Western investor in Ukraine is the simple act of “stealing somebody’s business.”\textsuperscript{44} Pursuant to the Resolution of the Cabinet of Ministers “On Approval of the Declaration of Objects and Missions of the Budget for 2008” a “raider attack” was defined as “disposal of state-owned property and corporate rights other than following privatization proceedings, or (by) illegal seizure of a company.”\textsuperscript{45} It is “an organized attack on a company, organization or an institution with the purpose of its seizure that resulted in disruption of its ordinary course of

Because of this phenomenon the provisions on the acquisition of a substantial interest in a company were adopted, according to which a person or jointly acting persons intent on purchasing shares, which, taking account of the number of shares held by the entity in question and entities affiliated therewith, will account for 10 and more per cent of ordinary shares in the company (the substantial interest), must submit a notice of its intent in writing to the company and publish the same not later than 30 days prior to the date of the acquisition of the relevant interest. The said notice shall be published by means of the submission thereof to the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market, each exchange, where the company has been listed, and the publication thereof in an official printed bulletin. Thus, as for now the acquisition of the significant stake in the company’s capital shall be transparent.

Moreover, having been influenced by the French and UK models as well as the EU 13th Company Law Directive (2004/25/EC) Ukraine has enshrined in its JSCs Law the provisions on mandatory takeover bids (offer). So as of today, compared to other shareholders, the controlling ones who has acquired more than 50 per cent of common stock are obliged to make an irrevocable offer to all remaining shareholders to purchase their common shares. In addition, outside directors may now be involved and there is a possibility to have a right of first refusal with respect to shares of such JSC offered for sale by a shareholder.

Besides, the mechanism of cumulative voting was transplanted into Ukrainian law on JSC from the USA legislation. In Delaware, for example, it became optional since 1917. Cumulative voting is a voting mechanism during election of company’s bodies when the total number of votes of a shareholder is multiplied by the number of members of a joint stock company’s body being elected, and a shareholder has the right to cast all votes calculated in this way for one candidate or distribute them between several candidates. It is worth mentioning that this mechanism allows to protect interests of minority shareholders due to the possibility of election of their representative into the Supervisory Board. Also, the institutions of “non-arm’s length transactions” (related party transactions) and “significant deals” (fundamental transactions) were borrowed from the American law as well in order to preserve company’s assets from unjustified erosion and curb expropriation of minority investors through extensive extraction of private benefits of control by the majority. At the same time, the mechanism of convening of the general shareholder meeting in the form of absentee voting stipulated by the art. 48 of the JSC law has obvious British origin (the so-called “written resolution”).

One should not assume that all the rules of Ukrainian company law were borrowed, transplanted or transmitted. Some of them have been evolved autonomously, sometimes

His detailed analysis of the introduction of cumulative voting in two waves (at the turn of the century, and again after World War II), and their reversal (in the mid-1950s many states that had made cumulative voting mandatory first, relaxed this to opt-in provisions), documents that legal change is often not a one-way road, but quite a dynamic process changing their shape in order to make it consistent with Ukrainian realities. For instance, the provision stipulating that the maximum number of participants of a limited liability company is 100 or that all shares in Ukraine are registered and exist only in a non-documentary form. Another original regulations - the requirement of compulsory listing of shares of public JSCs or the requirement for mandatory conclusion of transactions involving the shares of public JSCs on the stock exchanges - the measures that aim to increase the supply of quasi-liquid instruments on stock markets. It seems that Ukrainian “traces” could be found wherever the top-down method of prescriptions and prohibitions is used in order to overcome the existing problems. These and similar regulations underline the peculiarities and to a certain extent originality of Ukrainian company law, which, along with the desire to borrow all the most advanced standards, continues to struggle with its own unique challenges.

Overall, without doubts, the primary source of inspiration for Ukrainian company law was German law. And thanks to this fact, it is much easier for Ukraine today to approximate its corporate legislation to the Acquis, where German law played a role of a transmitter. This follows from the fact that the German legislator had first to digest the European legislation and then transpose it into a fitting way to its existing national company law. By borrowing from Germany, Ukraine is thus consciously yet indirectly approximating its company law with the European standards. At the same time, the influence of common law system is continuously increasing. Moreover, with progressing legal borrowing, internalisation of business and in particular through European harmonisation, the differences between the Continental and Anglo-Saxon systems here and there become blurred. And nowadays vivid discussions are ongoing about transplantation of the “derivative action” mechanism, provisions on independent members of the supervisory board, “squeeze-out” and “sell-out” rules into Ukrainian company law. Because, “the transplantation of foreign legal institutions is not a matter of nationality, but of usefulness and need. No one bothers to fetch a thing from afar when he has one as good or better at home, but only a fool would refuse quinine just because it didn’t grow in his back garden”. Introduction of widespread and internationally acknowledged regulatory models backed by functioning law enforcement is more capable of attracting foreign investors than mere international treaties on the promotion of investment, special economic zones and territories of priority development. Participation in business entities (either through fully controlled subsidiaries or joint-ventures) is one of the most popular forms of foreign investments in Ukraine and foreign investors should be able to operate on the familiar rules and standards which are common throughout the western world.

4.2.2. SUCCESSFUL AND PROBLEMATIC TRANSPLANTS IN UKRAINIAN COMPANY LAW: INDICATION FOR FURTHER REFLECTION

51 Besides, the Law of Ukraine “On Restoring the Solvency of the Debtor or Recognizing its Bankruptcy” from May 14, 1992 was substantially amended in 2011 taking inspirations from the Anglo-American system, namely from the provisions of the US Insolvency Code (Chapter 11) concerning the applicability of reorganization procedures to insolvent companies
52 Jhering, Rudolf, Geist des römischen Rechts, Part 1, 9th ed.,1955, p. 8
Two decades after the end of socialist law, legal transplants are commonplace for comparative lawyers who reflect on the trajectory of legal and economic change in transformation countries. Actually, given limited resources, such as human capital and effective institutions (courts and academia) on the one hand, and growing demand from the business environment for an adequate legal framework – on the other, the import of legal concepts and institutions proved to be the most cost-effective and sometimes the only affordable way of reducing existing discrepancies in legal sophistication in order to address the needs of the transforming economy. Consequently, international donors provided numerous experts to help the country in transformation to identify, adapt, and transplant best practices from a number of successful models. But it is recognized that even in cases where a written statutory law (institution, legal concept, or structure) is the same within two countries, its judicial interpretation may well differ because of the divergence in legal tradition and legal thought in each country. The same factors are also valid with regard to legal transplants being successful or not.

As it was already noted, Ukrainian company law modernisation has been to a considerable extent advanced by borrowing from German law. Yet with the progress of recent company law reforms in Europe triggered by the phenomenon of regulatory competition and based on the achievements of modern corporate finance, company law of Ukraine has been amended by some important regulations of common law origin.

It is worth to be mentioned that most borrowings that were transplanted into Ukrainian soil of company law especially those included to the Civil Code and the Law On JSCs that were mentioned in the previous paragraph turned out to be accommodated reasonably well. An added value per se may be seen in the fact that before their implementation there were severe gaps in pre-existing Ukrainian company law that urgently needed to be filled. This generally positive assessment shall not extend to the provisions of the Economic Code which are based on socialist law practice and could be defined as largely outdated in the light of contemporary conditions, so even if its enactment was accompanied by references to the western legal systems it does not correspond to its substance which remains anachronistic. However, in general, not every transplant survives on the grounds of Ukrainian law. For instance, in the civil law sphere the institution of trust, which was borrowed from the British law, has not taken root in Ukraine. Despite the fact it was transplanted into various civil law systems, like Quebec, Scotland, Japan, Liechtenstein etc., the Ukrainian one rejected it: mechanisms of dual property, formal ownership and beneficial interest were too foreign bodies to become settled in and widely accepted by business practice in Ukraine. In the sphere of corporate law some transplants could be labeled as questionable. For example, the provisions on a quorum of 60% of total shares at the GHM of LLCs and JSCs, or payment of dividends upon ordinary shares only under the resolution of the GHM regardless of how big profit the company has received in a given year. Ukraine has not changed such a high quorum requirement since 1991, although in other developed countries it was significantly reduced. It hinders the company’s activity and very often creates “deadlock” situations when the GHM cannot be convened at all.

Sometimes, Ukrainian lawmaker when borrowing legal institutions, transplants only a part of the foreign regulation. For example, the provisions on the exclusion of a participant from the limited liability company. Under Ukrainian legislation, a participant of a limited liability company which systematically ignores its duties or fulfills them not in a proper way, or else interferes with reaching the aims of the company with his actions can be excluded from the company on the ground of a decision supported by participants owning more than 50 per cent of the total number of votes of the company’s participants. Following exit of a participant from the LLC the letter must pay the value of the part of company's assets proportionally to the participatory interest of the exiting participant in the charter capital. Moreover, the exiting participant is paid his share in the income gained by the company in the year of exit. In other words, even whether a participant is excluded from the company for the debts or other failures, the latter still is obliged to pay him his stake in the company's assets. This causes many problems in practice. For comparison, according to German regulations, which served as a source for the Ukrainian ones, in case of exclusion from a LLC for the debts, the participant loses the right to his share. He is not entitled to recovery of his payments made in favor of company as well. Another example - Britain’s rules on the possibility of conveying the general shareholder meeting in the form of the absentee voting under Ukrainian law are applicable only to joint-stock companies with less than 25 shareholders and not to limited liability companies.

It should also be stressed that some transplanted provisions are hardly or rarely used in practice, even though they seem to be fitting well into Ukrainian law and provide workable solutions. This subcategory of failed transplants embraces discrepancies between what is prescribed by the law (Law on Books) and what exists in reality (Law in Action). These applies to the outside members of the supervisory board (previously, only company’s shareholders could be elected to the board), the supervisory board committees (apart from banks, other JSCs practically do not foresee them in their governing structure), the institute of corporate secretary which aims at providing the communication between the company and its shareholders and investors. In our opinion, the problem which impedes the development of such legal institutes is caused not by the problematic transplant or unsuccessful transplanting per se, but lies in peculiarities of management and activities of joint stock companies. To understand the situation and the underlying mechanisms, one needs a more detailed analysis of governing processes with focusing on ownership and feedback between the company and its shareholders, which will be discussed in the next chapters. Besides, it is needless to say that in the beginning, every new solutions seem strange and unclear, and are associated with additional costs and efforts. Thus, the pressure should be put on an information campaign, directed both at the company and the shareholders.

It is worth paying attention to the next transplant borrowed from the common law countries – the institute of shareholder agreements. In our opinion, this transplant could take roots in Ukraine and be quite successful, but, at present, it fails to do so due to improper, poor and inconsistent legal regulation provided for by the Ukrainian legislator. Pursuant to the Art. 29 of the Law on JSCs\textsuperscript{58} the company charter may provide for the possibility of the conclusion of a shareholder agreement vesting shareholders with additional duties, such as the duty to take part in the general meeting and envisaging liability for the failure to abide thereby. That is the only rule that regulates the institute of shareholder agreements in the Ukrainian legislation. There are no provisions on their nature and place, applicability and enforceability. Moreover, according to Art. 116 and Art. 117 of the CC, Articles 25, 29 of the JSC Law, Articles 10, 11 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations” only legislative acts and articles of association are indicated as sources which may establish rights and obligations for the shareholders. To make the application of the shareholder agreements (and what is the more important – the execution of liability under such agreements) even more contradictory, the Resolution of On Practice of Consideration of Corporate Disputes by the Courts of 2008\textsuperscript{59} stipulates that activity of joint stock company and relations between shareholders are governed exclusively by laws and other normative and legal acts of Ukraine. Thus, as for now, the nature of the shareholder agreements under Ukrainian legislation is unclear and blurred what prevents them from being widespread and serving as an effective tool for self-enforcing regulations of the company’s internal affairs as well as for reduction of risks connected with changeability of Ukrainian regulations. Besides, there is no possibility the shareholder agreements are to be governed by foreign law so the shareholders shall apply solely the provisions of Ukrainian legislation to regulate the relationships between them.

56 Article 64 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations” from September 19, 1991. In this case this participant (or representative) does not participate in voting

Moreover, currently, there are ongoing heated debates in Ukraine regarding the introduction of the derivative suits\textsuperscript{60} into Ukrainian company law. One should mention that in countries of Anglo-American legal system, shareholders have traditionally had access to judicial recourse to defend their rights\textsuperscript{61}, often strengthened by favorable rules on costs. Continental law countries, on the contrary, tended to limit the scope of derivative suits, e.g. by imposing capital thresholds and other procedural requirements, although this approach has been gradually changing over the last years. As was noted by L.A. Ostrovska, “countries with sufficiently developed stock markets recognize in one form or another the institution of derivative suits, regardless to what legal family their legal system belongs”\textsuperscript{62}. In Ukraine, the shareholders are entitled to defend their rights and interests in court only when these rights and interests were violated directly. No derivative suits are provided. And it is very questionable whether or not to grant the shareholders the right to appear before the court on behalf of the company, bearing in mind current political and economic conditions, the following possible abuses of this right which would probably cause additional opportunities for “raiding”. The fact is that many attacks of raiders in Ukraine begin with the minority shareholder bringing a claim against a company for matters either immaterial or deceitful. Due to these mechanisms the company is involved in several litigation processes (often simultaneous) aimed at wasting the time and money, as well as its distraction and blocking of company’s activity. Thus, one could hypothesize that expanding the grounds for filing a claim due to the derivative action introduction would cause an increase in a number of false court processes and, consequently, of raider seizures. In order to find an answer to this dilemma as well as to others concerning transplants the issue about reasons, necessity and effectiveness of legal transplanting should be discussed. It was obvious that in the post-communist period of Ukraine’s development company laws needed to be rewritten, replaced, or reformed to unbind market forces for development and growth. Nowadays, willingness to borrow is explained through the prism of prestige and political opportunity as it is often advocated in the literature and because of the society’s demands as well. In short, for law to be effective, a demand for law must exist in a particular country. That would cause the law to be used. It is needless to say that till now Ukraine continues to struggle with internal and external demand for competitive business environment, foremost legal and institutional framework, capable of efficiently accumulate domestic and attract foreign capital. This should be seen as trigger of conscious borrowing of legal and institutional solutions, in particular in the realm of corporate law. Nevertheless, it should be remembered that almost every legal mechanism from the exporting jurisdiction reflects some elements of the legal culture, traditions, and history of that system. The process of transplantation of legal rules or institutions from foreign legal systems do not mean simply copying a legal institution or sets of rules from the exporting into importing jurisdiction. So the degree of socio-economic development as well as the general and organizational culture of the country where the transplanted legal rules or institutions are meant to function need to be considered. These circumstances create special conditions of legal development referred to as path dependence. Risk of malfunctioning of the transplanted rules is particularly significant if they are placed in institutional vacuum or confront the inertia of pre-existing practices.

\textsuperscript{58} In Ukraine the participants of a LLC are not entitled to enter into similar agreements

\textsuperscript{59} Resolution of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of Ukraine of 24.10.2008 No. 13 “On the court practice of consideration of corporate disputes”

\textsuperscript{60} A derivative suit means a lawsuit brought by a shareholder on behalf of a company against a third party. Frequently, the third party is an insider of the corporation, such as a manager [director] or member of the supervisory board.

5.1.1. General Overview

The contemporary company and corporate governance legislation of Ukraine may be characterized as a controversial conglomerate of legal rules haphazardly scattered across several key sources. The basic rules underpinning issues such as the formation, operation and winding-up of legal entities in Ukraine are governed by the Civil Code of Ukraine and...

by the Economic Code of Ukraine\textsuperscript{67}, by the Laws of Ukraine “On Business Associations”\textsuperscript{68} and “On Joint Stock Companies”\textsuperscript{69}. The disclosure requirements, regulations on securities issuance and conduct of professional activities in the stock market are provided by the Law “On Securities and the Stock Market”\textsuperscript{70}. The Law “On the Depository System of Ukraine” determines legal norms for functioning of the depository system of Ukraine, establishes procedure of registration and confirmation of rights in eligible securities and their entitlements within the securities depository record-keeping system. Relations which arise in the sphere of state registration of legal entities are regulated by the Law of Ukraine ”On state registration of legal entities and natural persons - entrepreneurs”\textsuperscript{71}.

Both the Civil and the Economic Code regulate all types of business entities, i.e. private limited liability companies (LLC), joint stock companies (JSC), additional liability companies (ALC), general partnerships and limited partnerships. Besides, the Economic Code of Ukraine distinguishes another type of business entity, namely an enterprise which under provisions of other legislative acts (the Civil Code) is considered to be an object of legal relations (as property complex), not the subject. Even though this dualism between subjective and objective notion of an enterprise exists in many European jurisdictions as well, it remains a doctrinal concept rather than a distinct legal form. Hence the comparison between Civil Code and Economic Code reveals some confusion and the definition from the Economic Code (enterprise as legal subject) appears superficial if not misleading. This is just one example of a broader phenomenon. Nothing to be surprised with; numerous conflicts, inconsistencies, gaps, and overlaps exist between many provisions of the Civil and Economic Codes that seek to regulate the same issues. The Economic Code has a tendency towards rebuilding a command economy, for example, it accredits the authorities to dictate the actions of companies and to deprive them from different benefits and privileges when they do not meet government’s requirements. In this regard, this „descendant of the Soviet-era“ appears to present an obstacle to the development of a functioning free market in Ukraine and, in our opinion, should be abolished. The analysis of the most obvious inconsistencies in the Ukrainian company legislation is presented in paragraph 6.2 as well as in Attachment No. 1 to this Report.

Despite there is no systematic division into personal and capital companies in Ukrainian legislation, one could distinguish such differentiation based on their characteristics. This study focuses on LLCs and JSCs as the most popular corporate forms in Ukraine and those covered by EU secondary legislation.

On 17 September 2008 the Parliament of Ukraine approved the law “On Joint Stock Companies”. This event became a sensation because during the last eight years the Parliament seven times rejected similar bills. This law has brought significant improvements into the corporate governance system and legal status of minority shareholders. Meanwhile, there is no separate legal act that would cover LLCs and ALC in a similar manner as the aforementioned law of 2008 does for Joint Stock Companies. Regulations provided by the Codes (Civil Code and Economic Code) are very general in nature and lack detailed and specified provisions concerning all peculiarities of different forms of company.

5.1.2. LAWS REGULATING OPERATION OF LIMITED LIABILITIES COMPANIES

Private limited liability company (tzov) is widely considered to be the most attractive business vehicle in Ukraine. This is due to its specific characteristics - limited liability, separate personality, absence of minimum share capital and straight-forward procedures. Notwithstanding the proliferation of tzov, its legal status reveals some manifest shortcomings with regard to regulatory technique and ambiguity as well as gaps and omissions. Regulations on general aspects of its activities are provided by provisions of the Civil Code and the Economic Code of Ukraine. But the main source of legal regulation of limited liability companies remains the law of Ukraine "On Business Associations", passed in December 1991. Unfortunately, not all aspects of LLC are regulated in any of the three laws. Each of these laws contains regulations pertaining to certain areas, sometimes an aspect is regulated in all three laws, sometimes in two and sometimes only in one, hence overlaps and contradictions. One can rarely reliably assume if certain aspects are exhaustively regulated in one law or if there may not be another pieces of legislation that need be considered as well. Thus, the rules on limited liability companies demand urgent reform in Ukraine.

Shortcomings of current Ukrainian legislation on limited liabilities companies could be summed to unnecessary and practically burdensome requirements for items to be included in the company's charter (mandatory indication of the percentage of interests of each participant in the share capital, any change in which is connected with the long procedure of making amendments to the statutes); insufficient protection of shareholders’ rights, including with regard to lack of adequate unfair prejudice and abus de majorité remedies; excessive powers of the executive body without sufficient oversight and monitoring mechanism, e.g. lack of regulation on the supervisory board, even optional; cumbersome and imperfect procedures for convening the general shareholders meeting; insufficient regulation procedures for withdrawal and exclusion from the company.

Nevertheless, in light of the systematic economic reforms needed in Ukraine and an on-going sharp increase in foreign and domestic capital, it is of key importance to ensure that Ukraine’s legal system is prepared to serve as a modern and adequate legal basis for the economy. Thus, among the recent improvements that have been introduced into current regulations, one could indicate the possibility to dismiss a director without giving specific reasons for the decision, subject to payment of 6-month salary, possibility to temporary suspend a director from the office at any time and introduction of unrestricted personal liability of the directors for the damages caused by them to the company. But because there are no legislative provisions concerning both the derivative suits and the supervisory board in a LLC, the practical enforcement of these provisions (on director’s liability) is uncertain and hindered.

74 Unlike German model, the Ukrainian law is less strict on differentiating between organisational ties and employment relations.
At the same time, problems that arise from the absence of specified law on limited liability companies still persist and should be resolved as soon as possible. Hence, since 2012, an adoption of the Law of Ukraine On Limited Liability Companies and Additional Liability Companies has been vividly discussed and would be one of the most awaited changes in corporate legislation. There are two competing drafts - No. 2011 and No.2011-1. The next step is acceptance of one of them by Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine for consideration and its further adoption. In spite of uncertainty with regard to the timing of its eventual enactment, it is quite important to consider the substantive provisions of the drafts and analyze their influence on company law framework in Ukraine.

Actually, the draft No. 2011 does not depart much from the status quo and adheres to the same principle of unlimited domination of controlling shareholder as the current law “On Business Associations” does. Merely the introduction of possibility to establish a supervisory board as optional organ (art. 38) and the proposal to reduce the quorum requirement for the general shareholders meeting from 60% (under the current law) to above 50% of company’s capital (art. 33 § 4) in order to avoid the obstruction and hence blackmail from the minority could be mentioned as the draft’s novelties. Such a high quorum often creates the so-called “deadlock” situations when there is impossibility to reach it and in consequence the normal activity of company is hindered.

Therewith, the draft sets forth that all details regarding the competence of the supervisory board and the rules on its formation shall be prescribed in the company’s statutes. For the minority shareholders, this means a need to take care of their interests in advance during the development of the statutes. Moreover, they should take into account the risk of possible cancellation of the relevant provisions by future amendments of the statutes.

Besides, under the provisions of draft No. 2011 the minority shareholders are not granted access to financial documents of the company (unless the statute stipulates otherwise) (art. 7 § 1), and their right to sell shares to third parties may be revoked under provisions of the statute (art. 18 § 2). Minority shareholders shall not be able to bring company officials to responsibility for the damages caused by them to the company without the support of the majority shareholders. Furthermore, there are neither rules on significant transactions and non-arm’s length transaction nor provisions on affiliates. All this means that in the case of adoption of this draft in the current version the minority shareholders will remain powerless hostages of controlling shareholders. As a result, limited liabilities companies will not be able to enhance their capabilities to collect equity capital from smaller investors, nor seem they well equipped to serve as an efficient legal form for venture capital undertakings.

In turn, the competing project, i.e. the draft law No. 2011-1 takes much more progressive approach. Its main innovations embrace:

- removal of the obligation to specify the list of shareholders and information on the size of their share in the company’s statute (the relevant data will be stored exclusively in the Unified State Register);
- establishment of requirements to the share transfer transactions (only in written form with notarial certification);

monitoring of the engagement into a significant transaction and a non-arm's length transaction; possibility to conduct the general meeting with the use of electronic communication means; provisions on voting by correspondence; possibility to establish a supervisory board in a LLC (through the method of cumulative voting); possibility to conclude shareholders’ agreements; restriction of the withdrawal right of the shareholder that owns more than 50% of the share capital of the company (such withdrawal is possible only under the consent of all remaining shareholders); lessening the quorum of the general shareholders meeting from 60% to above 50% of company's capital.

Moreover, the draft No. 2011-1 is expected to endow all shareholders with the right of unlimited access to all company documents (art. 19). The only exception is the court decision concerning the shareholder who might be interested in the transmission of confidential information to company’s competitors. Besides, having relationships with competitors of the company may also be a reason for compulsory shareholder’s exclusion (art. 13).

Special attention should be paid to the regulation of shareholder agreements as an effective and attractive tool for planning and coordination of company policy in the medium term. The draft No. 2011-1 stipulates some restrictions on entering into such agreements, e.g.: the prohibition against payment under the agreement in order to prevent bribery; the prohibition of agreements of indefinite duration; the duty to inform other shareholders about concluded agreement (Art. 20). The draft contains several provisions that provide an opportunity for the creditors to foreclose on personal property of the executives on the basis of their vicarious liability for the company’s obligations incurred as a result of improper performance of their duties.

The draft No. 2011-1 deals with unification of legal forms of business entities as well. Under its regulations, private enterprises, enterprises with foreign investment and foreign enterprises shall be deemed limited liability companies and should be renamed and function under their regulations. It is important to note that there are no restrictions on the number of participants in a LLC according to this draft proposal (under the current law and the draft law No. 2011 the number of participants may not exceed 100 persons). Actually, this is not a priority, since statistically the number of shareholders in Ukrainian LLCs does not exceed 10 persons.

Another significant step is the introduction of a new minority protection mechanism – a derivative action. The aforementioned draft law No. 2011-1 as well as the relatively new draft law No. 2013a On Amending Certain Laws of Ukraine Regarding Protection of Investors’ Rights which was registered in Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine in September 2013 and is now pending legislative process, provide for its implementation into the Ukrainian legal system. However, none of them have yet been adopted and several changes are currently discussed. According to the Draft Law No. 2013a, the rules on derivative action should empower a member (shareholder) of a business entity to bring an action on behalf of that entity against its officials, in case such officials caused damages by their illegal actions or their failures to duly act in their capacity as corporate officials. According to the Draft Law, a derivative suit could be brought by shareholder(s) and participant(s) holding individually or collectively five or more percent of equity interest (shares) in the share capital of the company.

Overall, regulations concerning LLCs in Ukraine required to be significantly modernized. The situation when provisions governing activities of LLCs are included into three different legal acts and are overlapping with each other is incompatible with EU practices and standards. A new law On LLCs should be enacted as soon as possible and consequently the overlapping provisions from the Civil Code and the Law on Business Associations should be abolished.

5.1.3. JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW

The activities of joint-stock companies in Ukraine are regulated by the Civil Code, the Economic Code and the Law of Ukraine “On joint-stock companies”. The latter is the main source of legal regulation which sets out the procedure of the establishment, the operation, the termination, the spinoff of joint-stock companies, their legal status, rights and duties of shareholders. Before its adoption in 2008, these issues were laid down in the law “On Business Associations”, which actually was not keeping pace with the development of economic relations in Ukraine because of lack of precise notion about the nature of joint-stock company and its place in the market.

The necessity to adopt the Law on JSCs was caused by the requirements of the Civil Code, which contains provisions governing JSCs, but does not describe in detail the procedure for their application and contains a number of explicit references to a special law, whereas it may be assumed there exist tacit references as well, whenever the regulation of the Civil Code is merely rudimental. So in 2008 the new law was passed which became a significant step forward towards modernization of Ukrainian company law, enhancement of corporate governance, improvement of investor protection and approximation to EU standards.

Besides, the Law of Ukraine “On securities and stock market” regulates relations which appear during placement of and trading in securities as well as conducting professional activity on stock markets. Moreover, the new Depository System Law was adopted in 2012. According to its provisions, the All-Ukrainian Securities Depository lost its license and was supposed to transfer the global certificates of all securities issues handled by it to the Central Depository which now is defined as “sole” player (along with the National Bank of Ukraine) in the field of depository services.

As it was already mentioned, the Law on JSCs that came into force on 29 April 2009 has brought substantial improvements into the company and corporate law system and legal status of shareholders. A two-year transitional period was commenced in 2009, during which all existing joint stock companies were to be brought into compliance with the new Law. During the transitional period, two parallel sets of laws were in force: the old framework (the Law “On Business Associations”) continued to fully apply to existing joint stock companies, while the JSCs Law was applicable to all newly established joint-stock companies and to

77 According to Section VII “Final and Transitional Provisions” of the Law On JSCs of 17.09.2008 “Two years from the date of this Law coming into effect, Articles 1-49 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations” shall cease to be in force in the part related to joint stock companies” those from among existing joint-stock companies that voluntarily shifted to the new regime ahead of the stipulated transitional period, by having complied with the new Law\(^8^0\).

Under the new Law, JSCs can be public (Public JSCs, corresponds to “listed company” by the terminology used i.a. by the HLG Report\(^8^1\)) or private (Private JSCs, corresponding to the “open company” in the meaning of the HLG). The number of shareholders in a private joint stock company may not exceed 100. A public JSC is obliged to go through a procedure to list and join a stock registry on at least one stock market. The shares of private JSCs cannot be traded on the stock market, except for the sale through auction. Public JSCs can make both private and public placements of shares when private JSCs - only private placements. When the company opts for a public offer of shares, its type must be changed from private to public. The following table is provided as a guide for better overview of the differences between the two types of JSCs.

The major changes in the new JSCs Law relate, inter alia, to the possibility of private trades in the shares in public JSCs, possibility for a legal entity shareholder to be elected onto the supervisory board of a JSC, providing detailed regulations for cumulative voting rules at election of JSC’s governing bodies\(^\text{83}\). Among other advantages of the JSCs Law one should

\(^{82}\) Cumulative voting – voting during election of company’s bodies when the total number of votes of a shareholder is multiplied by the number of members of a joint stock company’s body being elected, and a shareholder has the right to cast all votes calculated this way for one candidate or distribute them between several candidates

\(^{83}\) The election of members of the Supervisory Board in public JSCs is mandatory by cumulative voting. In private JSCs the appointment is through cumulative voting or in accordance with the principle of proportionality. The mention such extremely important mechanisms of shareholders rights’ protection as (i) appraisal rights – a dissenters’ right to demand from a company to buyout their shares in the case if he voted against separate resolutions on significant questions (fundamental changes) adopted by the general meeting, (ii) regulation of procedures of approving significant transactions and related party transactions, (iii) cumulative voting rule for election of a supervisory board and an audit committee, (iv) the right of a minority shareholder to sell shares to a purchaser of a controlling stake at a fair market price (exit in cases of control transactions), etc. All of these were long-awaited steps towards a modern company law framework in Ukraine. The next stage is to further approximate these regulations to the Acquis Communautaire as well as to implement additional rules and standards so as to achieve the required level of alignment with EU company laws and regulations.

It is deserved to be mentioned that through the new 2008 act, Ukrainian legislation concerning joint-stock companies has reached a good level of compliance with EU standards and practices. Requirements about minimum value of the charter capital, the charter of a joint-stock company, issue and pricing of shares, annulment of shares, dividend payments, payment for shares by founders, determination of the market value of the property, convening of the general meeting, representation of shareholders and others are met. Obviously, there are issues that still require reform in order to be in accordance with the EU directives (see Appendices to this Report).

The JSC Law provides shareholders with pre-emptive rights to acquire newly issued, privately placed shares (art. 15 par. 3, art. 27 JSCL). There is, however, no similar provision for publicly issued shares, even though the Capital Directive (Directive 2012/30/EU, art. 33) does not allow for such a differentiation. The Ukrainian law, as it currently stands, mandates pre-emptive rights for owners of common stock and provides an option for the company to provide such rights to the owners of preferred stock by providing them in the company charter. Here again there is no space for such a differentiated approach under the Directive. Prior to any private placement of newly issued shares, a company is required to provide to shareholders a thirty-day notice including information on the number of shares, their price, rules for determination of the number of shares to which shareholders have preemptive rights, as well as time period and procedure to exercise such right. The company must also publish notice informing shareholders that they can exercise their preemptive rights. In turn, the requirement of the Directive 2012/30/EU is quite different, i.e. pursuant to art. 33 of the said Directive all the shareholders of listed and non-listed joint stock companies alike, shall have the pre-emptive right whenever the share capital is increased by consideration in cash. Thus the Directive has a broader scope, unlike Ukrainian law (art. 15 par. 3 JSCL) it mandated pre-emptive rights for publicly issued shares as well. Even if under the Capital Directive shareholders enjoy pre-emptive right in all cases, whenever charter capital is increased by means of contributions in-cash, many Member States go beyond this requirement. Company laws of e.g. Germany, Austria, Poland, Croatia (different approach, i.e. granting pre-emptive right restricted to in-Management Board is as a matter of principle elected by the Supervisory Board. But if there is no Supervisory Board, as may be the case for JSCs, with 9 or less shareholders the power to elect executive directors remains with the General Shareholders Meeting. Besides, the General Shareholders Meeting is the highest body among the company’s bodies which can resolve any matter of the company’s business and its decisions override decisions of the supervisory board. Therefore, theoretically it is not forbidden though not mandated, to foresee in the articles of association (statute) that shareholders will elect the directors by cumulative voting.

cash contribution, take e.g. France, Italy, the Netherlands). The Directive provisions on pre-emptive rights are understood as protective and they set a minimum standard that can be increased by member states. It is recommended for the Ukrainian reform to embrace in-kind contributions as well, so that pre-emptive right is granted regardless of the contribution brought by investors to pay up new shares. The reason behind this recommendation: pre-emptive right is a clear-cut rule capable of protecting minority shareholders from dilution of their stock, both in terms of voting rights and value of investment. In a transitional jurisdiction with not yet sufficiently established standards of fiduciary duties and deficits of their proper enforcement, clear-cut rules prevail over open standards. As mentioned, pre-emptive right should be granted to shareholders in private and public JSC companies alike (see Annex I to the Capital Directive). Pre-emptive right should be given to shareholders of ordinary shares as well as to holders of preferred shares. This should be designed with a view of the underlying assumption that pre-emptive rights should allow to maintain a status quo in the company both in terms of influence (voting rights proportions) and value (protection against stock dilution as a step-by-step expropriation technique). Whenever possible, the new issue should reflect the pre-existing structure of shares and their classes. Undoubtedly, attention of Ukrainian legislator is needed to bring the current pre-emptive right regime in line with the requirements of the Capital Directive.

Still relatively much needs to be revised and supplemented in Ukrainian legislation with regard to reform of shareholders’ decision making rights and legal and institutional guaranties thereof. This mostly results from the binding guidelines as set forth in the Directive 2007/36/EC (the so called ‘Shareholders Rights Directive’ - SRD). Firstly, provisions about participation in the general meeting by electronic means as well as on voting by correspondence shall be implemented in the Law on JSCs pursuant to art. 8 and art. 12 SRD. Besides, provisions on documents to be provided to shareholders and documents with which shareholders may familiarize themselves during the preparation for the general meeting (art. 5 SRD) require some changes in Ukrainian law. The Ukrainian JSCs Law, as it currently stands, does not comply with the aforementioned Directive 2007/36/EC as it fails to prescribe the list of documents, companies should make available to its shareholders on its Internet site in order to guarantee their right to information, in accordance with the standard of the directive.

It is recommended to review and further extend the catalogue of events that should trigger appraisal rights (art. 68 JSCL) borrowing from Italian, Spanish, German and Japanese law. In particular Spanish and Italian laws contain a list of appraisal rights codified in a transparent way within few provisions of the code. In addition, the supervisory board should be made mandatory for all JSC, as Ukraine belongs to the jurisdictions adhering to the two-tier governance system. Provisions on board committees should be reconsidered, in particular concerning the audit committee. The threshold allowing shareholder to require special audit of a JSC should be lowered to 5% (from 10% as it is under current regime) in order to improve the level of protection of minority shareholders, at least in public companies. We also propose to eliminate the provision that the number of shareholders of a private joint stock companies may not exceed 100 shareholders. The exclusive criterion of division into public and private joint stock companies shall be public placement of the shares. Moreover, separate regimes for private and public JSCs is required e.g. to better accommodate changes needed in the sphere of shareholders rights in listed companies, without overly burdening non-listed JSCs. Besides, the very terminology with regard to the public-private dichotomy should be revisited. The notion “private” may be misleading as it is likely to bring about confusion with private limited liability company. It could be wise to stick to the terminology proposed by the High Level Group: listed companies (=currently public JSC), open companies (=currently private JSC), closed companies (=limited liability companies). Alternatively “private” with regard to the JSC could be replaced by “non-public”, as the Polish company law legislation does.

The issue concerning the group law requires additional attention to be devoted. It is recommended to incorporate the French Rosenblum doctrine into Ukrainian company law (taking into consideration the recent Czech example), according to which the parent and dependent companies should not be regarded in isolation from the group and shall be guided by the common interest aiming at achieving the maximum effect from the perspective of the group as a whole, not separate companies.

Further analysis on the conformity of Ukrainian JSC law with the EU standards will be discussed in next chapters concerning, inter alia, capital requirements, mergers and divisions, regulations on takeovers, corporate governance system in Ukraine, transparency requirements, etc. The list of inconsistencies between joint-stock companies law and other legal acts regulating operations of joint-stock companies is presented in paragraph 5.2. of this Chapter as well as in Attachment No. 1 to this Study.

5.1.4. Capital Requirements

The Second Company Law Directive (2012/30/EU, also called the “Capital Directive”) is a European Union Directive concerning the capital requirements of joint stock companies operating within the European Union. One should mention that, in general, Ukrainian law on JSCs meets the requirements of the aforementioned Directive, though with some exceptions of varying weight.

Thus, the issues on determination of market value of the property, payment for shares by founders of the joint-stock company, dividend payment procedure and restrictions related to it, regulations on buy-out own shares by a joint stock company and limitations imposed on it, price for shares are in accordance with the relevant Directive’s provisions. It should be noted that Ukrainian law does not provide for shares with no par value and joint stock companies do not have the right to place shares at a price lower than their par. All shares of the JSCs in Ukraine shall be registered and exist only in a non-documentary form (dematerialization).

The minimum value of the charter capital of a joint stock company in Ukraine is amounted to 1,250-fold of the minimum salary\(^{84}\) amounts on the basis of the minimum salary level being in effect as of the establishment (registration) of the joint stock company. By the date of this Report it would amount to UAH 1,626.250 = approx. EUR 87,050.66, a way above the minimum threshold set by the directive (EUR 25,000 – see art. 6 of the Directive). The general provisions on increasing and decreasing of the charter capital are prescribed in the Law on JSC. But the peculiarities are stipulated by the Order of the NCSSM, namely, the Decision of the NCSSM On Increasing (decreasing) of the charter capital of the private and public JSC of 2013\(^{85}\). The annulment of shares is regulated by the Decision of the NCSSM of 2013 On approval of the procedure for cancellation of the shares redeemed by joint-stock company without change of the size of the authorized capital\(^{86}\). Despite these provisions are not enshrined in the law on JSCs but are provided for in by-laws of the NCSSM, all substantial requirements prescribed in the Directive 2012/30/EU are met. However, doubts remain on the procedural side. It is a settled case-law of the European Court of Justice that proper transposition of the directives requires certain formal conditions to be met. These conditions may be summed up under following criteria: (i) legal certainty of must be assured; (ii) the national legal act must be binding; (iii) the legal act in question has been duly promulgated (iv) parties can rely on the implementing act of national legislation as being enforceable before national courts; (v) the pertinent act should have at least the same significance as the legal acts normally used by the Member State when legislating on a given matter (see ECJ Judgment C-102/79, 10).

Some problems exist with the pre-emptive right of shareholders to take up newly issued shares, which have already been discussed before (see paragraph 5.1.3.). Pursuant to the Art. 33 of the Directive, whenever the capital is increased by consideration in cash, the shares must be offered on a pre-emptive basis to shareholders in proportion to the capital represented by their shares. The right of pre-emption may not be restricted or withdrawn by the statutes or instrument of incorporation. This may, however, be done by decision of the general meeting. So, in order to approximate its legislation with the Capital Directive, Ukraine should amend the JSCs law with the provision on granting pre-emptive rights to acquire shares placed by the company in proportion to the percentage of shares held by shareholders of public JSCs both during the public and private placements of shares. Thus, it should be laid down that the pre-emptive right in question may be restricted or withdrawn by the decision of the general meeting and the management body shall be required to present to such a meeting a written report indicating the reasons for restriction or withdrawal of the right of pre-emption, and justifying the proposed issue price. Moreover, the prohibitions on capital increases in cases whenever (i) the value of its equity is lower than the value of its charter capital; or (ii) such an increase would be designed to cover losses of the company appears inefficient and hindering corporate restructuring. It is recommended that the prohibitions would be eliminated.

5.1.5. MERGERS AND DIVISIONS

According to Ukrainian legislation, mergers and divisions count as forms of legal entity reorganization. The Civil Code of Ukraine, the Economic Code of Ukraine, the Law “On Business Associations” stipulate that a legal entity could be terminated through reorganization or liquidation. In turn, reorganization may be executed through the following means: the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin-off and the transformation. While liquidation means termination of a business activity without succession, so that the remaining assets, upon paying up corporate creditors, are distributed among shareholders, reorganization, in turn, embrace termination of a legal entity as a result of the transfer of all or parts of its property, rights and obligations to other entity or entities (successor/s). Under Ukrainian law on JSCs, a joint stock company may be terminated as a result of the conveyance of its entire property, rights and duties to other business corporations succeeding the company (by means of the merger, the affiliation, the division, the transformation) or as a result of the liquidation.
The JSCs law regulates separately each form of reorganization as well as spin-off and liquidation of the company. The law is applicable both to public (listed) and private (non-listed) joint-stock companies.

European standards for domestic mergers and divisions of companies are set out in the following legislative acts:

The Directives apply to joint stock companies only, but Member States are not precluded from extending their regime to private limited liability companies as well, and in fact some Member States do so. When it comes to regulatory philosophy, the Sixth Directive is designed to be a mirror reflection of the Merger Directive.\(^{87}\)

The Merger Directive regulates two kinds of mergers: mergers by the formation of a new company (per unionem) and mergers by acquisition (per incorporationem). The Directive also distinguishes mergers by acquisition of one company by another which holds 90% or more of its shares (short-form merger). The Sixth Directive lays down rules for division by acquisition, division by the formation of new companies and division under the supervision of a judicial authority. According to art. 25 of this Directive a Member State may permit the division of company without the company being divided ceasing to exist. Under Ukrainian legislation this latter form of division is known as the spin-off of a company\(^{88}\) and is regulated in JSCs law as well.

It should be noted that Ukrainian definition of merger does not correspond to that of the Directive. Under Ukrainian JSCs law, the emergence of a new successor joint stock company with the conveyance of all property, rights and duties of two and more joint stock companies simultaneously with their termination on the basis of deeds of conveyance shall be deemed to be the merger of joint stock companies. Thus, only mergers by the formation of a new company are considered to be “the mergers” according to Ukrainian law. Moreover, mergers by acquisition are referred to affiliation of a joint-stock company\(^{89}\) and are regulated under separate provisions. The same applies to the division of a JSC. When the Sixth Directive distinguishes divisions by acquisition and divisions by the formation of new companies, the JSCs law of Ukraine lays down that only conveyance of property, rights and liabilities to more than one new successor of joint stock companies on the basis of the distribution balance sheet shall be deemed to be the division of a joint stock company. Obviously, these terminological inconsistencies should be overcome for the purpose of approximation of

\(^{88}\) The establishment of one or several joint stock companies with the conveyance of a part of the property, rights and liabilities of the joint stock company, from which the spin off takes place, on the basis of a distribution balance sheet without the termination of such a joint stock company shall be deemed to be a spin-off of the joint stock company (Art. 86 of the JSCs law)

\(^{89}\) The termination of a joint stock company (several companies) with the conveyance of all their property, rights and liabilities to another successor joint stock company under a deed of conveyance shall be deemed to be the affiliation of a joint stock company (Art. 84 of the JSCs law)
Ukrainian legislation to the EU Acquis and the definitions of mergers and divisions from the relevant Directives shall be implemented into Ukrainian legal system.

Pursuant to the Merger Directive and the Sixth Directive, certain steps should be taken in order to make the merger or division effective. It should be emphasized that the JSCs law of Ukraine practically meets the requirements of those Directives. The very procedure of mergers and divisions as well as protection of creditors under Ukrainian law are in accordance with the European Acquis. Some discrepancies are concerned the data in documents which are to be prepared for mergers or divisions (e.g. the date from which the holding of acquired shares entitles the holders to participate in profits and any special conditions affecting that entitlement; the date from which the transactions of the company being acquired shall be treated for accounting purposes as being those of the acquiring company should be added to the contents of the draft terms of mergers or divisions). Besides, the rule about right of inspection of the documents by shareholders at the registered office at least one month before the date fixed to the general meeting should be implemented to the JSCs law as well. It should be emphasized that on the contrary to the aforementioned Directives in the Ukrainian legislation there are no special rules governing the civil liability of members of the management bodies of a company being acquired or divided towards the shareholders of that company as well as the experts responsible for drawing up on behalf of that company the reports related to mergers and divisions in respect of the misconduct in the performance of their duties during preparing and implementing the merger or division. And it would not be superfluous to foresee as it is required by the Directives a limit on the cases in which nullity of conducted mergers or divisions can arise by providing that defects be remedied wherever that is possible and by restricting the period within which nullification proceedings may be commenced. That will ensure certainty in the law as regards relations between the companies concerned, between them and third parties, and between the shareholders, and will contribute to legal clarity and to the efficiency of the entire procedures of mergers and divisions.

With regard to minority protection, Ukrainian law on mergers goes in certain respects a way beyond the standard set by the directives. This holds true for appraisal rights. The Merger Directive (2011/35/EU) is silent on appraisal rights except for in short-form merger (intra-group transaction on simplified terms), where member states are allowed to opt out certain formalities, provided, i.a. they offer to the dissenting minority a right of withdraw from the company by acquisition of their shares by the company (buy-out – see art. 28 (a) of the Merger Directive). Other than that, the merger does not trigger appraisal rights. Most of European jurisdictions either do not foresee exit rights in a merger context or restrict it to special situations such as merger resulting in change of corporate form, in reduction of shareholders special rights or outbound cross-border merger. Quite differently the US, where merger constitutes the primary trigger of appraisal rights. So a clear inspiration by the US approach is visible in the Ukrainian law (see art. 68 par 1.1 JSCL). When it comes to divisions, Ukrainian law is similarly generous with granting the shareholders appraisal rights whenever the company is subject to division, spin-off or the so-called affiliation (see art. 68 par 1.1 JSCL). Here again the Ukrainian law exceeds the standard as set by the Directive, pursuant to which the exit right may be provided whenever the division results in affecting shareholder’s rights (see Directive 82/891/EEC, art. 5 par. 2., art. 13, similarly e.g. Polish law).

A general note may be made, outside the mere harmonisation context – from the efficiency and legal certainty standpoint, enactment of a new, separate law on corporate transformations (see German or Spanish examples), embracing all transformations of all companies’ types and including rules on domestic as well as cross-border mergers and divisions should be considered. This could provide legal certainty and reliable framework for mergers and divisions involving different corporate forms, and possibly also partnerships. The new law should be free of gaps but also of overlaps resulting from possible collisions with provisions on transformation contained in other laws.

5.1.6. TAKEOVERS

As it was already mentioned in this Report, the Law of Ukraine “On Joint Stock Companies” that came into force in 2009, envisages a modern approach to public companies and its novelties relevant for the topic of this paragraph include a variety of exit rights as a means of protection of minority investors financial interest. These exit rights are granted in view of important corporate changes, such as control transactions (takeovers) and fundamental transactions, in particular corporate reorganisations. The said exit (withdrawal) rights are provided by the establishment of a mandatory bid rule backed by, provisions defining the market value of the shares relevant for setting the minimum bid price (art. 65 JSCL). Additionally, Ukrainian law provides ample appraisal rights, i.e. dissenters’ exit rights through a, mandatory buy-out of minority shares by the pertinent company in connection with fundamental changes or other significant occurrences defined by law (see art. 68 JSCL). Actually, such rules have never existed in the Ukrainian legislation before. A clear influences of British (mandatory takeover bid rule) and American (appraisal rights) patterns are visible here. Currently, there are on-going debates in Ukraine regarding implementation of squeeze-out and sell-out rights of shareholders. The main issues to be considered include the regulatory framework, legal thresholds, and fair price evaluation.

Article 65 of the Law on JSC introduced mandatory bid rule. According to this rule, the shareholder who obtained the controlling block of common shares (at least 50%) is obliged to propose to all other holders of common shares to buy out their shares at a price that should not be lower than the market price defined by the Law on JSC. Holders of minority shares, in turn, may refuse to sell their shares, regardless of their motives of such a refusal. Market price of the share is defined as the amount of money that can be obtained from the selling of the share at the stock market. Market price should be approved by the supervisory board of the company. The law, however, gives no guidance to the supervisory board with respect to the determination of appropriate market price so long as it is above the price established at the stock exchange. It is also unclear whether shareholders can agree in advance on a procedure for determination of the buy-out price. Currently, a new Draft law No 4534a from August 22, 2014 on Amending Certain Legislative Acts of Ukraine Regarding Improvement of Corporate Governance in Joint Stock Companies proposes to establish two thresholds for the mandatory bid obligation – 50% and 75%. This approach, apparently modeled after Polish law90 is dubious from the European law perspective and should not be recommended.

90 A similar double-threshold approach has been taken by the Polish legislator and is strongly and rightly criticized for Instead, a transposition of the Takeover Directive is recommended, with its guidelines regarding minimum price to be offered and price adjustments in exceptional circumstances, as well as post adjustments if further transactions follow the bid. These measures, as defined in the Directive, should be introduced into Ukrainian law, as a means of assuring equal treatment of all shareholders, which is also the underlying principle of the Directive. Also the break-through rule (art. 11 XIII Directive) and rules on board’s information duties and neutrality (art. 9 XIII Directive) need to be introduced within the discretionary scope as set out in the Directive. Additionally rules on squeeze-out and sell-out in the aftermath of a successful bid need to be implemented (art. 15 and 16 of the XIII Directive respectively).

One could argue that mandatory bid rule is a logical precondition for a squeeze-out, at least in its capital market setting, where the latter facilitates bids and enhances the market for corporate control by curbing the hold-up strategy by rent-seeking shareholders. The existence of such a precondition in the Ukrainian legislation in form of a mandatory bid rule, as imperfect, as it currently stands, nonetheless makes the implementation of squeeze-out and sell-out rights easier as they are likely to settle in a familiar regulatory environment. However, as it was already said, for now there has been no squeeze-out and sell-out rules in Ukrainian law. Their introduction should be combined with the overhaul of the mandatory bid regime. It would be wise to consider introducing squeeze-out and sell-out rules outside of the takeover setting as well, as a part of minority protection in a group law context. However, it should be emphasized, that squeeze-out and sell-out rights of shareholders have controversial nature due to the fact they are connected with the coercion of shareholders to act without their consent. In 2010 there were introduced draft amendments to the Law on JSCs that for the first time provided for the squeeze-out right. However, President of Ukraine vetoed those amendments on the unconstitutionality grounds. The reason for veto was the alleged violation of the Article 41(4) and 41(5) of the Constitution of Ukraine.

The explanatory note to the Draft law No 4534a states that implementation of squeeze-out rule will allow to reduce the risk of hostile takeovers ("raiding") over the company, will simplify and cheapen corporate governance for majority shareholders through reducing the costs of holding the general meetings and allow public companies to go private. The draft provides for a single threshold at 95% of the company’s shares. The squeeze-out procedure could be initiated by any shareholder who reached the threshold and only subsequent to a successful takeover bid. Safeguarding a fair (equitable) price for withdrawing shareholders is one of the most important issues of squeeze-out procedure. According to the Draft Law, the price should not be lower than par value, nor lower than the highest price the offeror has being contrary to the requirements of the Thirteenth Directive – see K. Oplustil, M. Bobrzyński, Europejskie prawo przejść spółek publicznych. Trzynasta dyrektywa UE z zakresu prawa spółek i jej implikacje dla prawa polskiego, Studia Prawnicze, Nr 1/2004, p. 47-70; K. Oplustil, Harmonizacja przepisów o wezwaniach w publicznym obrocie papierami wartościowymi z prawem europejskim. Uwagi do lege ferenda, Przegląd Legislacyjny, Nr 3-4/ 20 05; T. Regucki, O potrzebie zmian regulacji wezwań do zapisywania się na sprzedaż lub zamianę akcji – uwagi na podstawie analizy struktury własności polskich spółek giełdowych, TPP Nr 3/2012, p. 69 .

92 Article 41 of the Constitution of Ukraine: No one shall be unlawfully deprived of the right of property. The right of private property is inviolable. The expropriation of objects of the right of private property may be effectuated only as an exception for reasons of social necessity, on the grounds of and by the procedure established by law.
93 This is a dubious assumption, as the opposite is true and should be taken as a natural consequence of having squeeze-out rules in place, namely the emergence of a more favourable environment for hostile takeovers, which in turn are seen as a mechanism for disciplining managers through a functioning market for corporate control.
94 The provision on mandatory preliminary offer shall not apply to the person (persons acting jointly) that already owns a relevant stake (50%, 75%, 95%), given the number of shares owned by it and its affiliates.
paid for the targeted shares within the six months before the squeeze-out offer, and the price the offeror purchased the shares during the mandatory bid procedure. Moreover, the price of the squeeze-out should be adopted by the supervisory board and after that – by the general shareholder meeting. Payment for the shares shall be conducted exclusively in cash.
Thus, one could conclude that such a proposal stands along with the Directive and provides majority shareholders with an effective mechanism to acquire full control over the company.
However, the Draft Law provides that only general shareholders meeting shall adopt a decision giving a right to the shareholder, holding 95% and more of the capital of the JSC, to require all other holders of the remaining securities to sell their securities at a fair price. The requirement of holding a general meeting to approve “final handshake” with the minority shareholders does not follow from the Directive and should be regarded superfluous.
According to the Draft Law, the General Meeting shall pass a resolution by a supermajority of 95% of the votes. Although this provision does not jeopardize rights of the majority shareholder for squeeze-out, it makes the procedure costly, complicated and lengthy. In particular, the company would have to call an additional general shareholders meeting in order to adopt a decision on squeeze-out. As mentioned, the Takeover Bids Directive does not foresee such a burdensome procedure. It empowers the shareholder, holding at least 90% of the capital of the JSC, to require all other holders of the remaining securities to sell him/her those securities at a fair price - directly. So, the Ukrainian lawmakers should take this into account during the further consideration of the Draft. Moreover, the squeeze-out procedure should not be limited to mandatory takeover bids and be allowed at least for voluntary bids as well, if not, as we recommend, to all cases whenever the threshold has been reached, irrespective of how it occurred. Also referring to the par-value is irrelevant and this factor appears arbitrary in a secondary market trading.

As it is often pointed out, the sell-out right “is quid pro quo for the minority shareholder of the squeeze-out right for the majority shareholder”96. Whenever the majority shareholder owns more than a certain amount of shares (under the Directive, the threshold can vary from 90% to 95%), the minority shareholders can compel the majority shareholder to buy out their shares. The reasons for implementing sell-out provisions are the reverse arguments for squeeze-out rules. Pursuant to the explanatory note to the Draft law No 4534a, about 90% of all corporate claims derive from the most vulnerable layers of the population (pensioners, the poor, the disabled etc.), that during the privatization have acquired the shares of various public companies. Typically, these individuals have small stakes (about 0.0001 - 0.01%) of the company’s share capital. From their perspective, sell-out right would be of high importance, especially for those minority shareholders who are not getting any dividends and suffer other abuses from the side of major shareholders. Due to its unilateral nature and detachment from whatever reasons to justify the withdrawal by means of sell-out (sell-out right depends solely on capital requirements, it is a special exit right at will – ad nutum) it fits well into the paradigm

95 The draft seems to be inspired by Polish and German approaches to squeeze out procedures, as these jurisdictions are comparatively unique to require shareholder meeting for squeeze-out, however and solely for non-listed companies; see critique by A. Radwan, “Squeeze-out? Tak!, ale nie tak - kilka uwag na temat planowanej nowelizacji art. 418 k.s.h.”, Prawo Spółek, Nr 4/2003, p. 48 et seq.; A. Radwan, “Aktualna i przyszła regulacja przymusowego wykup akcji drobnych akcjonariuszy w polskim i europejskim prawie spółek”, Przegląd Legislacyjny, Nr 6/2003, p. 29 et seq.
96 G. Ferrarini, K.J. Hopt, J. Winter, E. Wymeersch, Reforming Company and Takeover Law in Europe. Hardback, 2004, p. 756
97 The Takeover Directive, in Article 16 (2) regarding sell-out, refers to the same thresholds which are applied to the squeeze-out under the Article 15 (2) of self-enforcing company law, reducing the transaction costs and limiting the necessity and scope of involvement of the judiciary.

It should be stressed that the Draft law No 4534a represents a misconception of the „sell-out rule” due to its – as may be assumed – improper understanding of its nature. The mechanism which under the Draft law (actually, according to the explanatory note) is called as „sell-out” is generally accepted worldwide, including the EU, as mandatory bid rule. As it was previously stated, mandatory bid rule is already foreseen in the Law On JSCs. But accordingly to the drafters of the bill in question, it is exactly what sell-out rule stands for. The sell-out in sense stipulated by the Directive is not provided in the Draft.

One should understand that in accordance with the legislation of EU countries both procedures of "mandatory takeover bid / offer “and "mandatory redemption (sell-out)" are used. The times of applying these two options is different. The sell-out right can be applied only when the takeover is completed whereas the mandatory bid rule applies before the completion of takeover. The mandatory bid rule enables all shareholders to sell their shares while squeeze- and sell-out rights grant this option only if the majority shareholder owns 90 (95) percent following the takeover. Besides, the initiative to purchase shares during the mandatory offer comes from the major shareholders, when during the sell-out – from the minorities.

Member States should take the necessary measures to afford any offeror the possibility of acquiring majority interests in other companies and of fully exercising control of them. To that end, restrictions on the transfer of securities, restrictions on voting rights, extraordinary appointment rights and multiple voting rights should be removed or suspended during the time allowed for the acceptance of a bid and when the general meeting of shareholders decides on defensive measures, on amendments to the articles of association or on the removal or appointment of board members at the first general meeting of shareholders following closure of the bid. Where the holders of securities have suffered losses as a result of the removal of rights, equitable compensation should be provided for in accordance with the technical arrangements laid down by Member States.

Thus, in order to be in compliance with the EU standards and practices, the JSC Law of Ukraine should be amended with articles providing for the squeeze-out and sell-out rules: right of a shareholder or a consolidated group of shareholders, holding or acquiring 95% or more JSC shares, to initiate compulsory sale of the shares held by minority shareholders at fair market value (squeeze-out) and vice versa (sell-out). The lack of such procedures has a negative impact on the functioning of JSCs as such and complicates the exercise of the rights and interests of majority and minority shareholders and upsets the balance of their interests.

A glance should again be taken at the aforementioned desirability of squeeze-out and sell-out outside of the takeover setting. As it was pointed out in the Winter Report (2002).
Regardless of whether a takeover is taking, the shareholder may be tempted to abuse his dominate position in a company or the market price of shares could be inappropriate and inadequate. In such cases, the squeeze-out and sell-out rights seem to be the relevant solution in order to overcome the expropriation problem of the controlling shareholders as well as the problem of illiquid market. Thus, one could conclude that the shareholders should be granted the right to increase their stake up to the level the squeeze-out is allowed outside the scope of takeover regulations. Moreover, the former is true in respect to the application of both rights to the non-listed companies as well. Private companies may be interested in the change of ownership structure not less than public ones. That will allow to reduce administrative costs within the company as well as to establish a single strategy of company’s development and achieving its goals. Thus, we propose, in addition to takeover-related squeeze-out and sell-out, introduce squeeze-out and sell-out for all JSCs, including the private ones.

5.1.7. Cross-Border Mobility

The possibility for LLC to merge across borders within the geographical area of the European Union is prescribed in the Cross Border Mergers Directive of LLC No. 2005/56/EC dated 26 October 2005 and in the Draft of the Directive on the cross-border transfer of a company’s registered office (14th Company Law Directive). The creation of such a possibility is of crucial importance to the free flow of labour and capital across Member States. In short, transferring a company’s corporate seat to the EU can be done by either (i) a merger with EU company or (ii) by the formation of the Societas Europaea (SE).

While discussing the issue about transferring a company’s corporate seat it should be noted that the prevailing doctrine in Ukraine is doctrine of incorporation. Contrary to the real seat doctrine, the incorporation doctrine views the law of the State where a company was founded as the applicable law, not the law of the state where the company has its corporate seat. Such provisions are prescribed in the art. 25 of the Law of Ukraine “On Private International Law” dated 23.06.2005 № 2709-IV. It is important to note provisions of the Civil Code of Ukraine (art. 93), Law of Ukraine “On State Registration of Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs” (art. 1), according to which the seat of the legal entity is the actual place of business or office location, from which daily management (mostly the seat of management body), governance and accounting are conducted. In fact it means the registered seat shall coincide with the seat where the management of the company is located. Otherwise, in case of difference between the referred seats the company can be recognised by competent authorities (usually by the Tax Militia) as absent at its registered address. As matter of practice, the company is deemed to be situated at the address which is included into the Unified State Register. This information is deemed to be trustworthy and can be reliable for third persons.

Furthermore, according to the article 5 of the Law of Ukraine “On State Registration of Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs”, the state registration of legal entities shall be conducted by the department of the State Registration Office as per the seat of such a legal entity. Notably, the Unified State Register of Legal Entities and Individual-Entrepreneurs contains information exclusively about legal entities incorporated upon Ukrainian laws. At the same time article 2 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations” prescribes that the seat (location) of the company shall be in Ukraine.
Thus, the applicable laws do not set forth a possibility to register any foreign legal entity (i.e. entity whose lex societatis is foreign corporate law jurisdiction) or its branch / representative office in the Ukrainian Unified Register neither by initial incorporation nor by merger or any other corporate transformation.

Based on provisions above the real corporate seat of Ukrainian company shall be in Ukraine and can’t be moved to another country in compliance with Ukrainian legislation. The same refers to the foreign companies which cannot be transferred to Ukraine directly, but have to register either a daughter company or open a representative office.

Due to the fact that Ukraine is not a member of the EU and according to the doctrine of incorporation in Ukraine, there is no possibility to merge with any EU company or to register European Company (Societas Europaea, SE) in any EU member state as prescribed in the abovementioned Directives and in the Council Regulation on the Statute for a European Company 2157/2001. The given impossibility of cross-border merger, which is extended not only to the companies registered in the EU, but also in any other company of the world, follows from the direct prescription to have a registered seat in Ukraine (art. 2 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations”) as well as from the complex analysis of the legislative provisions and their application by the state registrars.

In face of the above, Ukrainian law, in order to be brought into compliance with the EU Acquis, should be reformed by implementation of the Cross Border Mergers Directive No. 2005/56/EC. It is recommended, it would be brought about along with the wholesale overhaul of Ukrainian law on mergers, divisions and transformations. As explained elsewhere in this Report [see [5.1.5.], it would be worth considering to have a separate complex legislation dedicated to corporate reorganisations, modelled after German (Umwandlungsgesetz) or Spanish (Ley 3/2009 sobre modificaciones estructurales de las sociedades mercantiles) patterns.

5.1.8. SINGLE-MEMBER COMPANIES

The tendency towards recognition of business entities with only one member was caused in Ukraine by the development of a market economy and sharp concentration of ownership. Some provisions of the EU Directive on single-member private limited liability companies, which was adopted in 1989 and codified in 2009 (Directive 2009/102/EC), have found their reflection in the Ukrainian legislation.

Under the Directive in question, which purpose is to create a legal instrument allowing the limitation of liability of the individual entrepreneur within the European Union, a company may have a single member by virtue of its being formed, or by virtue of all its shares coming to be held, by a single person (single-member company). In Ukraine, provisions relating to single-member companies are included in the Civil Code of Ukraine, the laws of Ukraine “On Joint-Stock Companies’ and “On Business Associations”, and the Economic Code of Ukraine.

102 Business entities with one participant appeared only in the second half of the twentieth century: in German law such company is called “Einmannsgesellschaft”, in France - “la societe unipersonnelle”, in English law - “one man company” [See Dornseifer, Frank (ed.), Corporate Business Forms in Europe: a Compendium of Public and Private Limited Companies in Europe. Aktuelle Beiträge zum Wirtschaftsrecht Publication, 2005]
However, the latter two contain only one provision concerning the possibility to establish (the Economic Code, actually, uses the term “to operate”\textsuperscript{103}) a company by a single entity, which becomes the sole participant thereof.

The Civil Code of Ukraine, which entered into force on 1 January 2004, for the first time laid down that “a company may be organized by one person unless otherwise established by the law\textsuperscript{104}, “a business entity, other than a full liability partnership and a limited partnership, may be created by one person, who becomes its single member”\textsuperscript{105}. Thus, the possibility of single membership in Ukraine is provided for limited liability companies, additional liability companies and joint stock companies. This is consistent with the Directive which allows to apply its provisions to public limited companies as well, in case a Member State enables them to be single-membered.

Article 153 of the Civil Code as well as art. 6 of the JSCs law expressis verbis provide that a joint stock company may be not only established by one person but also may be comprised of one person in case of the acquisition of all shares in the company by the same shareholder. The relevant information must be registered and published for the general public in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the National Commission on Securities and Stock Market. Regarding the limited liability or additional liability companies, the Civil Code refer exclusively to the foundation of such companies by one person. Taking into consideration the fact that both Civil and Economic Codes do not prohibit the possibility of concentration in one hands of all shares of limited (additional) liability companies, one could conclude that these types of business companies may (like joint-stock companies) comprise only one member in case when all their shares come to be held by a single person. But, obviously, necessary amendments should be added in order to approximate Ukrainian regulations to the European one.

According to the Directive, Member States may lay down special provisions or penalties for cases where a natural person is the sole member of several companies, or a single-member company or any other legal person is a sole member of a company. Ukrainian legislation provides such restrictions, namely: (i) a limited liability company cannot consist of sole participant – a business company consisting of one participant, and (ii) a person can become a participant of only one limited liability company consisting of one participant.\textsuperscript{106}

These provisions are applicable to additional liability companies as well, unless otherwise established by the company’s charter or the law.\textsuperscript{107} The JSCs law stipulates that a joint stock company may not have another business corporation owned by a sole participant as a sole participant, as well as may not have only legal entity shareholders, in which the same party is the sole participant.\textsuperscript{108}

The single member exercises the powers of a general meeting of the company. Decisions taken by the single member and contracts between him and his company as represented by him must be recorded in minutes or drawn up in writing (Art. 4 of the Directive). Contracts between the sole member and his company as represented by him shall be recorded in

\textsuperscript{105} Article 114 of the Civil Code of Ukraine
\textsuperscript{106} Article 141 of the Civil Code of Ukraine

\textsuperscript{108} Article 153 of the Civil Code and Article 4 of the JSCs Law minutes or drawn up in writing. Member States need not apply paragraph 1 to current operations concluded under normal conditions (Art. 5 of the Directive). It should be noted, that Ukrainian legislation does contain such rules regarding LLCs and ALCs: there are no foreseen specifics about their bodies and activities. This means that single-member LLCs and ALCs are subject to the provisions provided for business entities in general and business companies in particular. Obviously, this situation causes some problems in practice.

A different situation is in the case of joint-stock companies. The new law on JSCs from 2008 lays down that in a single-member joint stock company, the single shareholder shall exercise all rights of the general meeting. Moreover, where all the shares of the company are held by a single shareholder or the single shareholder and the company, the declaration of will of such shareholder addressed to the company shall be made in writing, or else it shall be invalid, unless the law provides otherwise. The provisions in respect of the procedure of convening and holding the general meeting of a joint stock company shall not apply to a company with a single shareholder. Thus, the specific features of a single-member company are taken into consideration with respect to the JSCs. The powers of the general meeting of the company and the internal documents of the company shall be exercised by the shareholder unilaterally. Moreover, the decision of the shareholder on issues that fall within competence of the general meeting shall be executed thereby in writing (in the form of a decision) and authenticated with the company seal, or notarised. The election of members of the supervisory council, the examining commission (if any) shall take place without cumulative voting.

Thus, Ukrainian legislator has set forth the ability to establish single-member companies, but at the same time has not provide relevant provisions under which they could effectively operate taking into account their specific features. The appropriate rules were formed by themselves in practice during company’s operating and require their appropriate consolidation.

Therefore, in the light of the EU standards some amendments should be added to the existing legislation, namely, stipulation that a limited (additional) liability company may have a sole member when all its shares come to be held by a single person; the sole member of the limited (additional) liability company shall exercise the powers of the general meeting of the company.

The last but not least what should be mentioned is the new proposals about changing the Directive 2009/102/EC. There exist many opinions that the Directive does not address some key issues such as formation, registration requirements, creditors’ protection or minimum capital requirements. These issues are left to the national discretion of each Member State. Thus, it is proposed to provide an EU-wide set of harmonized rules for single-member private limited liability companies which would in practice replace the existing Directive. Under the proposal there would be in each Member State a national company law form called SUP (Societas Unius Personae) with the same requirements across the EU as regards, inter alia, registration (with possibility of completing the whole registration process electronically), uniform template of articles of association, minimum capital requirement of €1 and adequate protection of creditors.
5.1.9. Disclosure and Transparency Requirements

The disclosure requirements for foreign branches (established by the Eleventh Company Law Directive (89/666/EEC) render to disclose a number of particulars and documents when they open a branch in another Member State. Furthermore, the Eleventh Company Law Directive prescribes a list of information companies have to register when they create a branch in another Member State.

In general, Ukraine fulfils the requirements of the Eleventh Company Law Directive, when prescribing in the Instruction on the Procedure for Registering Representative Office ("RO") of Foreign Business Entities in Ukraine, approved by the Order of the Ukrainian Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade No. 30 dated 18 January 1996, to provide the registration authority – the Ministry of the Economic Development and Trade of Ukraine – with the following information:

- The name of parent company
- State of parent company’s registration
- Registered address of parent company
- Post address of parent company
- Telephone number, fax number
- Date of the of parent company establishment
- Legal form of parent company
- Employees number in parent company
- Bank in which parent company’s account is opened and bank details
- Business sphere of parent company
- The purpose of opening and line of business of RO, information about business ties with Ukrainian partners and prospect of cooperation development
- Place where RO will be opened
- Number of the foreign citizens, which will work in RO.

At the same time the referred Instruction No. 30 is the only legal act partially regulating the activity of the representative offices. Therefore, parent companies face a lot of problems while operating RO in Ukraine. RO does not have a separate legal personality and consequently any legal capacity, i.e. is not entitled to acquire rights or bear obligations on its own behalf, while a parent company is fully responsible for its activity. RO capacity is determined in the RO internal Regulation and a power of attorney issued by the parent company to the Head of the RO. As a result, the RO may perform activities only, expressly provided in the said Regulations and the PoA.

Applicable Ukrainian laws distinguish two types of the RO of foreign legal entities:
- The permanent (commercial) RO with the right of execution of business activity in Ukraine;
- The non-commercial RO with the functions of representation the parent company in Ukraine only.

In this respect, the functions of the latter are limited to the auxiliary activity, representation and protection of the parent company’s interests in Ukraine and are usually limited to the promotion and related marketing affairs (preconditioning that these are not the core activities of the parent company). Thus, this type of RO is not supposed to operate commercial activities or generate income. Incidentally, in case when some activity requires a license, neither the RO, nor its foreign parent company will be able to obtain it. Provided that a need exists to carry out the commercial activity which is subject to licensing, the RO would have to contract Ukrainian intermediary with the respective license.

It is worth noting that foreign investors are allowed to avail themselves of another form of establishment, namely creation of subsidiaries operating under domestic law of Ukraine, either as single-member companies or as joint-ventures with local investors.

Due to the fact that Ukraine is not a member of the EU, there is no possibility to register European Company (Societas Europaea, SE) in any EU member state as prescribed in the Council Regulation on the Statute for a European Company 2157/2001.

Ukraine fulfils the requirements of the Directives regarding disclosure and transparency as well. However, some changes are still to be introduced to the Ukrainian applicable laws. The disclosure and transparency requirements are set in the following acts:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Law of Ukraine On Joint Stock Companies” (Article 78) dated 17 September 2008</th>
<th>Joint stock company information disclosure</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Law of Ukraine On state registration of legal entities and natural persons - entrepreneurs (Articles 17, 20, 22, 28) dated 15 May 2003 № 755-IV</td>
<td>Information disclosure in the State Register of Legal Entities and Natural Persons – Entrepreneurs with respect to legal entities and their branches and representative offices</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law of Ukraine On Securities and Stock Market (Section V) dated 23 February 2006</td>
<td>Disclosure of annual, quarterly and special information on the stock market</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law of Ukraine On State Regulation of Securities Market in Ukraine (Article 11) dated 30 October 1996</td>
<td>Issuer’s responsibility for the failure to meet legal information disclosure requirements</td>

<td>Structure, procedure and the timeline for disclosure in the stock market of regular, special information and the information on mortgage securities, certificates of funds of real estate operations and information in the notice on general meeting of securities issuers</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Notably, information about RO and/or branches of the Ukrainian legal entities is included to the State Register of Legal Entities and Natural Persons – Entrepreneurs, whereas information about RO of the foreign legal entities is not included therein and published by other means. There is no special Law devoted to RO of foreign legal entities and disclosure of its
It should be noted that a lot of legislative initiatives in 2014 focused on harmonizing Ukrainian corporate legislation with Acquis Communautaire. For example, on 14 October 2014 the Law of Ukraine “On Amending Certain Legislative Acts Related to Identification of Ultimate Beneficiaries of Legal Entities and Public Officials” No. 1701-VII was adopted. All Ukrainian companies will be required to identify their ultimate beneficiaries, maintain and regularly update their records of ultimate beneficiaries, and report to the authorities any changes in their ultimate beneficiaries. The ultimate beneficiary information will have to be disclosed to the State Registrar by 25 May 2015.

Beneficiaries shall be disclosed not only at the registration stage of the company but also if changes take place in the information about ultimate beneficiaries. The Ukrainian Unified State Register will, once the law takes effect, include passport details of any individual being a founder of the company, details of ultimate beneficiaries of the company (including details of their passports) and information about the ownership structure of legal entities being founders of the company to identify individuals holding a material interest (i.e. 10% or more of all shares or votes held directly or indirectly) in those legal entities (including the details of their passports).

Ukrainian companies are obliged to identify its ultimate beneficiaries within six months from the moment of entry into force of the referred law. Failure to comply with the disclosure obligations may cause imposing a fine in amount of UAH 5,100,00 – 8,500,00 (approx. EUR 282,00 to 470,00) on the director of the company.

5.1.10. THE SYSTEM AND DETERMINANTS OF UKRAINIAN CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

Nowadays, the question of corporate governance is a topic of significant interest worldwide. Renowned international bodies, including the OECD, the IMF, the EBRD, the World Bank etc. have devoted much attention to the issue of corporate governance and put it at the top of their agendas. And Ukraine is not an exception. Moreover, the notion of corporate governance in Ukraine is enshrined in several legal acts, namely, in the Laws “On Financial Services and State Regulation of Financial Services”111, “On State Regulation of Securities Market in Ukraine”112 and in three by-laws113. The Ukrainian legislation determines corporate governance as a system of relations which defines the rules and procedures for making decisions concerning the company’s activities, control and allocation of rights and duties between the company and its stakeholders during managing the company. The main objective of corporate governance is to ensure fair and transparent business, responsibility and accountability of all parties involved therein.

In Ukraine, joint-stock companies were established in a specific and unorthodox way: state-owned companies were turned by law into private joint stock companies by issuing certificates to every citizen above 18 years of age entitling them to exchange those for shares. As it is pointed out in the literature, the privatization has rarely led to effective corporate governance mechanisms. Stiglitz has argued that the long "agency chains" implicit in mass privatization - the many links that separate the citizen who receives a privatization voucher from a company manager - cannot provide appropriate incentives for corporate governance. Voucher privatization usually led to ownership structures that were highly dispersed.

Indeed, according to Art. 15 of the Law On Privatization of State-Owned Enterprises, state-owned companies could only be turned into open joint stock companies. And this provision led to the fact that at the beginning of the 1990s the majority of the Ukrainian population were shareholders by law. This trend has kept its actuality over the years and at present there are several million of shareholders-natural persons in Ukraine. Thus, Ukraine combines two paradoxically coexisting features: extremely high concentration of ownership and a significant proliferation of popular shareholding leading to ubiquity of dispersed investors. Another problem connected with mass privatization lies in the fact that the new owners of JSCs have not passed a difficult path of forming the company and raising its capital through the capital markets. They received capital from the state and even till now have not learned how to use investment instruments and corporate governance possibilities for increasing shareholders’ value.

Corporate governance in Ukraine is in early development stage. Corporate governance regulations include a complex network of mandatory law, voluntary codes of conduct and manifestations of shareholder activism, mainly through litigation. The EBRD’s 2007 Corporate Governance Sector Assessment assessed the quality of corporate governance legislation in force in November 2007. According to the results of the assessment, Ukraine was in “very low compliance” with the OECD Principles of Corporate Governance, showing a framework in urgent need of reform in all sectors under consideration. According to another research conducted by the Ukrainian investment company “Concorde Capital” in 2007 corporate governance has been assessed as fully consistent to international principles only in 7 domestic companies out of the 118 largest ones, mainly because of: high level of concentration in the ownership of companies (majority shareholders own 40–99 % of shares), limited availability of information about their activities (banks provide only 42 % of the required data), an impact of real owners on the supervisory boards and the executive body, as well as imperfect and superficial legislation in this area. However, the most recent Report

Besides, The Law „On Privatization securities” from March 6, 1992 gave each citizen of Ukraine the right to open an individual non-negotiable privatization account (later transformed into privatization certificates). The certificated could be used for acquiring shares in enterprises of choice and the face value of the certificate was equivalent to 1/52,000,000 th of the total book value of assets privatized (See Pivovarsky, Alexander, How does Privatization work? of “Concorde Capital” has shown significant improvements in corporate governance in Ukraine as the number of companies demonstrating high standards of corporate governance has grown. Thus, 15 companies out of the 123 gained the quality mark (Q) and 16 – the above average mark (AA).\textsuperscript{119}

Actually, Ukraine has recently made various efforts to improve its corporate governance environment in order to bring it into compliance with international standards and to overcome the existing inconsistencies. In particular, in 2003 Securities and Stock Market State Commission (now: The National Commission on Securities and Stock Market – NCSSM\textsuperscript{120}) adopted the Principles of Corporate Governance (hereinafter - the Principles) as recommendations for, but not exclusively, listed joint-stock companies traded on the stock market. In 2008 the new Law on Joint-stock companies was enacted and the Principles were revised in order to make them compatible with new requirements. And on July 22, 2014 the NCSSM updated the Principles once more and adopted the newest version of them\textsuperscript{121}.

The corporate governance system denotes the entire range of mechanism and arrangements that shape the way in which key decisions are made in large companies.\textsuperscript{122} Ukrainian model of corporate governance has been formed under certain historical, political, legal, economic and social circumstances that have determined its peculiarity. The Soviet legacy and oligarchic ownership structure have had a decisive influence on it. The main features of corporate governance model in Ukraine could be summarized to the following:

- The two-tier (“dual”) board system of German origin with two boards – management board and supervisory board; Supervision is separated from the management, board members may not be members of the supervisory board;
- Supervisory Board in the small JSCs is not obligatory;
- Concentrated ownership structure with large number of small shareholders as a result of mass privatization;
- Large number of JSCs (but only “on paper”, as many of them do not operate and conduct any activity\textsuperscript{123});
- Horizontal and vertical agency conflicts, but the conflict “majority - minority shareholders” is sharper; conflicts between controlling shareholders and the state (officials);
- Undeveloped capital market (there are ten stock exchanges functioning on the territory of Ukraine), low free-float;
- Small role of institutional investors and strong position of banks in financing companies;
- No fixed relations between the JSCs and minority shareholders (as a rule);
- An audit commission is a separate company’s body; No mandatory representation of employees in the supervisory board;
- Mergers and acquisitions are not widespread;

\textsuperscript{119} Corporate Governance in Ukraine, Report prepared by Ukrainian investment company “Concorde Capital”, 2013
\textsuperscript{120} Note: the majority of “quality” issuers are debutantes. That is to say, the quality “breakthrough” is a result of the survey being replenished by newcomers \textsuperscript{121} According to the Law of Ukraine “On State Regulation of Securities Market in Ukraine” the NCSSM provides the state regulation of securities market. The NCSSM was established by the Presidential Decree Ukraine No1063/2011 dated of 23.11.2011 with the purpose of comprehensive regulation of relations arising at the securities market, protection of the interests of Ukrainian citizens and the state, prevention of abuses and violations within this area
\textsuperscript{122} The Principles of Corporate Governance adopted by the Resolution of the NCSSM from July, 22, 2014 (the updated version of 2003)
\textsuperscript{124} Since recently, the NCSSM has become authorized to bring an action before a court in order to liquidate such “dead” companies
• Special “corporate conflicts” which are called as “raiding”.

Thus, one could argue that a mixed system of corporate governance has been formed in Ukraine: with strong resemblance to the German one but with some outsider features, i.e. the characteristics of the so called external CG system\(^{124}\). Due to lack of incentives for companies to comply with the modern standards the level of corporate governance in Ukraine desires to be improved. The truth is that corporate governance really creates value for the company, even in countries with weak institutions like Ukraine where the choice of its quality remains in the hands of controlling shareholders.

Ukraine is an emerging country with a high number of more than 26,000 joint stock companies (JSCs). Surprisingly, only 24 JSCs have their own corporate governance codes. Foreign companies are actively expanding into the Ukrainian market over the last 10 years. The share of foreign capital exceeds 50% in many sectors of the national economy, including banking. Therefore, the issue of the implementation of corporate governance principles to ensure the competitiveness of domestic companies is still urgent.\(^{125}\)

5.1.11. Self- and Soft Regulation – The Emergence and Relevance of Best Practices Code

As it was previously mentioned, Ukraine recently adopted the newest version of Principles of Corporate Governance (PCG). The purpose of the Principles is to lay down the principles and recommendations, based on international best practices of corporate governance and tailored to Ukraine’s needs and experience, that are necessary for the development of good corporate governance in Ukraine. The essence of corporate governance, to which the PCG seeks to adhere, is described as a system of relations between the company’s owners, management, and stakeholders aimed at ensuring the sustainable performance of the company and a balance of influences and interests of the parties to corporate relations.

It should be emphasized that the Principles of Corporate Governance in Ukraine are optional, not obligatory, i.e. companies are generally not required (but, obviously, encouraged) to implement the Principles or report on the extent to which they comply with them and the reasons for any deviations. The primary incentive for companies to follow the Principles is economic rationale and the demand for good corporate governance by capital markets when raising financing. Sometimes companies (mostly banks) include these provisions in their own statutes or adopt their own codes on corporate governance. In fact, observance of the codes of conduct marks a voluntary acceptance of industry standards. It evidences a voluntary opt-out of the legal system in as far as there are no immediate legal sanctions for not observing industry codes, which are condoned by statutory law\textsuperscript{126}.

\(^{124}\) According to the most common typology, there are two types of corporate governance system, the insider-controlled or closed system on the one hand, and the outsider-controlled or market-oriented system, on the other (See, e.g. Schmidt, R.H: Corporate Governance in Germany: An Economic Perspective, [in:] J.P. Krahnen, J.P./Schmidt R.H. (eds.), The German Financial System). The typology of corporate governance systems on insider and outsider is based on a set of features and criteria, most importantly: the ownership structure prevailing in the majority of companies, the extent and liquidity of the capital market and its role in financing companies, the existence of markets for corporate control, the role of institutional investors, the shareholder or stakeholder-orientation of corporations, and the degree of minority shareholder and investor protection provided for in corporate and capital market law. (See, Oplustil K., Instrumenty nadzoru korporacyjnego (corporate governance) w spółce akcyjnej, C.H.Beck, 2010, pp. 962)

In general, the Ukrainian Principles of Corporate Governance are modeled on the OECD Corporate Governance Principles of 2004\textsuperscript{127} and meet international standards. They include six chapters which cover the following aspects: goal of the company, shareholder rights, supervisory board and executive body, disclosure of information and transparency, overseeing the financial and business activity of the company, and, finally, the stakeholders.

According to the Principles, the company’s goal is to maximize shareholder value as measured by the increasing market value of shares and the dividends paid to shareholders. Good corporate governance requires providing, within the corporate structure of the company, for an independent supervisory board and an efficient executive board (management), a rational distribution of responsibilities among the two governing bodies, and a proper system of accountability and control.

The special attention is paid to the issues of supervisory board’s independence. Thus, the Principles recommend to ensure that at least one quarter of the supervisory board members are independent. According to the Principles, independence means the absence of substantial business, financial or personal relationship with the company or its management board, or its controlling shareholder(s). The factors that exclude independence (for example, a director owning more than 5% of the company’s shares cannot be deemed independent) are provided in the act as well. Thus, the definition of independence is in compliance with the EC Commission Recommendation of 15 February 2005 on the role of non-executive or supervisory directors of listed companies and on the committees of the (supervisory) board. The recommendation provides that the board should be organized in such a way as to allow a significant number of independent non-executive directors to play an effective role in the areas where conflicts of interests usually occur, thereby increasing the control of shareholders over the management. However, the provisions on directors’ independence are not supported by any mandatory requirement and very few companies in Ukraine, if any, engage independent members, as that term is understood under the Principles.

Depending on the composition and duties of the supervisory board, the following supervisory board committees should be formed: (i) committees for preliminary consideration, analysis, and drafting of decisions on matters that are exclusive to the supervisory board; (ii) an audit committee and a committee for nominations and compensation, most of whose members should be independent (in accordance with the aforementioned Recommendation of the European Commission). Based on these provisions, the JSC Law from 2008 introduced rules regarding committees for the first time. Under its regulations, the supervisory board may form permanent or provisional committees from among its members to study and prepare matters within the board’s competence as well an audit committee and information policy committee. However, these rules are not mandatory and, as a result, international board practice concerning establishing committees is still not widely spread in Ukraine\textsuperscript{128}.

The company should provide for the oversight of its financial and business activity by an independent external auditor (audit firm) and by means of internal control. To assure shareholders, potential investors, creditors, and other stakeholders that the internal control system works well and to support financial information disclosed to the public, according to the Principles the company should arrange for an independent external audit by an auditor (audit firm) licensed to engage in auditing activity in accordance with existing legislation.

The attention is paid also to the legitimate interests of stakeholders (persons having a legitimate interest in the activity of the company). Companies are encouraged to active cooperation with them through adding value, creating jobs, and ensuring the financial stability of the company.

In short, the Principles of Corporate Governance in Ukraine are in accordance with EU and international requirements. But because any implementation of stated Principles has been neither required nor stimulated little changes have happen after their adoption. Nevertheless, no one would object: corporate governance is the question of the future. The creators of the OECD Principles have pointed out that there is no one correct model of good corporate governance, but the rich experience of many countries and many corporations permits to extract some common elements that characterize a good one.

In order however, to align Ukrainian legislation with the EU standards and by doing so, enhance corporate governance, it should be mandated by law that the companies disclose their policies with regard to adherence to corporate governance / best practices codes, such as the Ukrainian PCG. Pursuant to art. 20 of the Directive 2013/34/EU on the annual financial statements, consolidated financial statements and related reports, (i.a.) companies listed on a regulated market shall include a corporate governance statement in their management report. That statement shall be included as a specific section of the management report and shall contain information on (i) the corporate governance code to which the undertaking is subject; (ii) the corporate governance code which the undertaking may have voluntarily decided to apply; (iii) all relevant information about the corporate governance practices applied over and above the requirements of national law. Where a company in accordance with national law, departs from a corporate governance code referred, an explanation by the undertaking as to which parts of the corporate governance code it departs from and the reasons for doing so (‘comply or explain’). By this rule, the self-regulatory approach becomes rooted in the system of “hard law”, without losing its “soft” nature.

5.1.12. DIRECTOR-SHAREHOLDER RELATIONS

A corporation consists of a dense nexus of relationships between persons - in the institutional economics’ view, a nexus of contracts\(^\text{129}\). Many scholars deepen the model of corporate law as a three-player contract among shareholders, managers and the board. It’s a model that Frank Easterbrook and Daniel Fischel used in their book The Economic Structure of Corporate...

Law, which culminated and accumulated their work on the contractarian model of the corporate law.\(^{130}\)

Both the most important and the most problematic ones are the director-shareholders relations characterized by the agency-problem frequently aggravated by e.g., minority’s rational apathy, directors’ opportunism, asymmetry of information etc. In Ukraine JSCs are organized into a two-tier board structure which means that the management board conducts day-to-day business of the company and the supervisory board controls the executive body and also takes (approves) certain important decisions.

It needs to be emphasized that because of highly concentrated structure of ownership, controlling shareholders in Ukrainian companies are often managers by themselves (formal directors) or strictly control the executive body (shadow directors). As a result, there is no clear distinction between horizontal conflict of agency (i.e. between majority and minority shareholders) and vertical conflict (i.e. between managers of the company and shareholders) in Ukrainian JSCs. Putting it differently, the majority-minority conflict is not effectively mitigated by the executive board that often tends to be based on favour of the controlling majority.

Under the new JSCs law, the supervisory board is mandatory for JSCs with more than ten shareholders and optional for JSCs with smaller circle of shareholders. Moreover, a supervisory board member cannot be simultaneously an executive director (member of the management board), or a member of the internal audit commission or the sole external auditor of the company, and vice versa. It should be remembered that according to the law “On Business Associations” from 1991, creation of a supervisory board was not obligatory, the law didn’t determine its authority and shareholders either avoided its creation or were tended to turn it into a solely decorative body. Thus, the management was provided with almost unlimited power over a company and almost unlimited possibilities for abuse in favour of the controlling shareholder. One could note that the law “On Business Associations” denied the formula of A. Berle and G. Means about corporation as an instrument that allows to separate ownership from control, replacing it with the principle “ownership is nothing, control is everything”, “the one who loses control over property, loses ownership”\(^{131}\). This, combined with the rise of dispersed share ownership among wide population consequent to the mass privatization led to the creation of environment favorable to minority expropriation and extraction of private benefits of control on a huge scale. However, with the market development, new business players appeared and began to demand changes in the current system of governing. Therefore, the supervisory board of JSCs in Ukraine has passed a long way in its evolution – from an ornamental body with vague authority to a full-fledged player in the triangle of company’s bodies with clear and effective competence for controlling the executives.

According to the JSCs law from 2008 all matters of daily operations of a JSC, except for those allocated to another JSC body pursuant to law, the charter, a resolution of the general shareholders’ meeting, fall under the competence of the management board. Prior to adoption of the JSC Law, the involvement of outside directors (germ. Drittorganschaft) was impossible in Ukraine. The Law on Business Associations stated that only persons who were JSC employees could act as the head and members of the board. Consequently, labour law inevitably overlapped with company law and employment relations governed what should be governed by organizational law, with all the drawbacks such as extensive protection of directors and labour-law types of limitations of their liability for misconduct, let alone enforcement of fiduciary duties and other standards. Now, the JSC Law stipulates that any person having full civil capacity, except the auditor or a member of the supervisory board, may be elected to the board. This has not fully eliminated the influence of the labour law, but the latter has been adjusted so as to better fit company law setting. The directors remain to be employees of the company. That is why, as it was pointed above, until recently, directors’ civil liability was limited to the amount of their monthly average salary. This is a general cap imposed on liability of employees pursuant to the employment law of Ukraine. However, several amendments to the Labour Code of Ukraine from May 2014 introduced the full material responsibility of the directors for the damages caused by them to the company. Besides, since then it became possible to dismiss a director without stating a reason (at will) subject to payment of 6-month salary and temporarily suspend a director from the office at any time. So these changes were of significant impact on the corporate governance status of Ukrainian JSCs. According to art. 63 of the JSCL members of the management board shall act in the interests of the company, in compliance with the law and the company’s charter and by-laws. Thus, the directors have a fiduciary duty towards the company “to work in a conscientious manner in the interest of the company, and not towards the individual shareholders”132. Actually, the fiduciary duty of the director requires stronger standards of observance than those imposed by an obligation emanating from the principles of good faith133. It is acknowledged standard of modern corporate law theory that the directors need to subject their personal interests to the obligations owed towards the corporation, regardless of the origin of the potential conflict.134 Besides, Ukrainian legislation does not foresee the business judgment rule as developed by US courts and codified in some European jurisdictions (e.g. Germany) that in making a business decision, the directors of a corporation acted on an informed basis, in good faith and in the honest belief that the action taken was in the best interests of the company135.

The management board comprises one or several individuals appointed by the supervisory board (as a rule) or by the general shareholders meeting. The number of members of the management board must be determined in the company’s charter. Besides, shareholders can, and frequently do, restrict the management board’s ability to enter into contracts of certain type or value but can also grant to the board all responsibility for the daily operations of the company. Such limitations are usually, but not always, recorded in the company’s charter.136 However, according to art. 92 CC in relations with third parties, the limitation of powers to represent legal entity shall be not effective except as when legal entity would prove that the third party knew about such restrictions or could not but know thereon. This is partially though not fully in line with art. 10 of the Directive 2009/101/EC.

Remuneration of the members of the management board is determined by the supervisory board. One should mention that compensation schemes, like options or shares, are used much less frequently in Ukraine than on the developed markets. This is actually due to an illiquid capital market where share price is not informative and highly depends on the external factors and thus poorly reflects the actual performance of the management board.

Due to the large number of small shareholders and rare practice of dividend pay-outs, the managers of Ukrainian JSCs practically do not bear any connections with minority shareholders and thereby only increase their rational apathy. The controlling shareholder’s interests were and still remain central for directors of JSCs. All these underlines the importance of the supervisory board where thanks to cumulative voting the minorities’ representation is possible.

5.1.13. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF SHAREHOLDERS

The principal EU act which deals with issues of shareholders rights is the Directive 2007/36/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 July 2007 on the exercise of certain rights of shareholders in listed companies (SRD). The Directive stipulates detailed minimum requirements for a certain number of shareholder rights with respect to the notice to be given of the general meeting, the information to be provided to shareholders, the right to ask questions and receive answers at meetings, the right to put items on the meeting agenda, voting procedures, proxy rights etc. Generally, the JSCs law of Ukraine meets the requirements of the aforementioned Directive with few exceptions which are discussed further below.

Under Ukrainian law, JSCs may issue shares of two types: ordinary and preferred shares. The holders of preferred shares have the primacy in receiving dividends and payments in case of company’s liquidation. Voting at the general shareholders’ meeting is carried out according to the “one share - one vote” principle, except for cumulative voting. Nevertheless, preferred shares holders have the right to vote on a very limited scope of matters related to the rights granted by preferred shares, unless the JSC charter of a private JSC stipulates otherwise. Shareholders that own ordinary shares may also have other rights envisaged by acts of the legislation and the charter of the JSC.

The scope of shareholders’ rights according to Ukrainian legislation could be illustrated with the help of following table.

- challenge the decision of the general shareholder meeting
- right to information about business activities of the joint stock company
- pre-emptive right in proportion to the number of shares currently held
- dissenter's right
- control the registration of shareholders at the general shareholder meeting
- call an extraordinary general shareholder meeting at any time and for any reason
- require to audit financial and economic activities of the company

10% and more

As one may note from the table, the JSC Law represents a major improvement over the Law on Business Associations with regard to the protection of shareholders' rights due to introduction of a series of generally recognized legal instruments to protect minorities, like cumulative voting which gave minority shareholders an opportunity to get representation in a supervisory board, the right of minority shareholders to place items on the agenda of shareholder meetings and the right of dissenting shareholders to demand their shares be repurchased if they disagreed with fundamental corporate decisions. The special requirements to be met by the company to enter into significant transactions and transactions with affiliated parties are prescribed as well in the Law. Besides, the law contains the regulation on acquiring the substantial block of shares, which is known as a mandatory bid provision: pursuant to the Law, a person who has acquired more than 50 percent of common shares must make an irrevocable offer to all remaining shareholders to purchase their common shares. The detailed analyses of this regulation as well as proposals on implementation of squeeze-out and sell-out rules could be found in Paragraph 6.1.6. to this Chapter.

Transactions with related parties may cause prejudice to companies and their shareholders, as they may give the related party the opportunity to appropriate value belonging to the company. Thus, adequate safeguards for the protection of shareholders' interests are of importance. The JSCL provides for special provisions concerning significant transactions and non-arm’s length transactions (art. 70-71 JSCL), according to which a decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by the supervisory board, if the market value of the 138 Pre-emptive right should be understood as:

- a priority right to take up the newly issued shares (in case of increase of the share capital)
- a priority right to acquire the shares offered to sale by other shareholder

139 The right of a shareholder to claim buyout of shares by a company in case of material changes related to the business of the company, including merger, take-over, demerger, transformation or spin-off of the JSC, or a change of its type; effecting of a significant transaction; or a change in the JSC’s charter capital. The same rights are granted to the holders of preferred shares if they vote against the general shareholders’ meeting’s resolution on placement of a new class of preferred shares granting to their holders any preference in receiving dividends or payments on the liquidation of the JSC, or extension of rights of preferred shares holders who have preferences in ranking for receiving dividends or payments on the liquidation of the JSC.

140 Shareholders (a shareholder) that own in aggregate 10 and more per cent of ordinary shares as of the date of the compilation of the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting of the joint stock company, as well as the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market may appoint their representatives for the supervision of the registration of shareholders, the holding of the general meeting, the voting and the ascertaining of the voting results. The company shall be notified in writing of the appointment of such representatives before the commencement of the registration of shareholders

141 Shareholders calling a general meeting are obliged to cover all expenses connected with holding such meeting, but the general meeting of shareholders may decide to compensate to shareholders expenses connected with calling and holding a general meeting from a company’s funds

property or the services being the object thereof ranges from 10 to 25 per cent\textsuperscript{143} or by the general meeting on the basis of a proposal by the supervisory board, if the market value of the property or the services being the object thereof exceeds 25 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company\textsuperscript{144}. Rules on non-arm’s length transactions foresee the obligation of a party interested in a transaction to inform the company of his (its) interest within three business days of the emergence of the interest on the party’s part\textsuperscript{145}. If a non-arm’s length transaction violates interests of the company, the supervisory board may prohibit its commission or present it for review by the general meeting.

With respect to aforementioned issues, the Proposal for a Directive amending Directive 2007/36/EC (SRD) should be taken into consideration as regards the encouragement of long-term shareholder engagement (Presidency compromise text of November 10th, 2014), motive No. 19 of the Preamble). It stipulates that Member States should ensure that related party transactions representing more than 5% of the companies’ assets or transactions which can have a significant impact on profits or turnover should be submitted to a vote by the shareholders in a general meeting. Where the related party transaction involves a shareholder, this shareholder should be excluded from that vote. The company should not be allowed to conclude the transaction before the shareholders’ approval of the transaction. For transactions with related parties that represent more than 1% of their assets companies should publicly announce such transactions at the time of the conclusion of the transaction, and accompany the announcement by a report from an independent third party assessing whether the transaction is on market terms and confirming that the transaction is fair and reasonable from the perspective of the shareholders, including minority shareholders. Moreover, Member States should be allowed to exclude transactions entered into between the company and its wholly owned subsidiaries. Member States should also be able to allow companies to request the advance approval by shareholders for certain clearly defined types of recurrent transactions above 5% of the assets, and to request from shareholders an advance exemption from the obligation to produce an independent third party report for recurrent transactions above 1 percent of the assets, under certain conditions, in order to facilitate the conclusion of such transactions by companies.

\textsuperscript{143} The charter of a joint stock company may specify additional criteria for the categorization of a transaction as significant. In case of the failure of the supervisory council to make a decision on the engagement into a significant transaction, the issue of such a transaction may be raised at the general meeting.

\textsuperscript{144} A decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by the simple majority of votes of shareholders registered for the participation in a general meeting and holding shares that vote on the issue in question, if the market value of the property or the services being the object thereof exceeds 25 per cent and is lower than 50 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company.

A decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by more than 50 per cent of the total number of shareholders, if the market value of the property, the work or the services being the object thereof equals or exceeds 50 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company.

\textsuperscript{145} An officer; his family member being a spouse, parents (adoptive parents), tutors (guardians), a brother, a sister, children and their spouses, a legal entity, in which the share held by the officer or bodies of the company or his family members accounts for 25 or more per cent; a shareholder, who owns 25 or more per cent of ordinary shares in the company personally or together with his family members shall be deemed to be a person interested in the performance of a transaction by a joint stock company, provided that the said person (persons, jointly or severally) meets at least one of the following criteria:

1) he (it) is a party to the said transaction or is a member of the executive body of the legal entity being a party to the transaction;
2) he (it) is remunerated for the engagement into the said transaction by the company (officers of the company) or a party to the transaction;
3) he (it) acquires property as a result of the said transaction;
4) he (it) takes part in a transaction as a representative or an intermediary (other than the representation of the company by officers).
Ukrainian law assigns a long list of decisions to the exclusive competence of General Shareholders Meeting (see art. 33 JSCL). This is one of the features typical of continental legal tradition. Consequently, the meeting becomes the forum for corporate disputes, that routinely unfold as disputes about the validity of shareholder meeting’s resolutions. The JSCs law provides that if decisions of the general meeting or the procedure of making the decision in question violate the requirements of the Law On JSCs, other acts of the legislation, the charter or the general meeting policy of the joint stock company, the shareholder, whose rights and legitimate interests are violated with the said decision, may dispute the decision in question with court within three months of the decision date (art. 50). Besides, the NCSMM may appoint its representatives for the supervision of compliance with securities legislation and legislation on JSCs during the registration of shareholders (or their representatives) at the GHM, voting and summarizing of the results of voting on the SHM of the company. Commission's representatives may be appointed at the request of the shareholder(s) (or their representatives), company’s official(s), depository institution or the Central Securities Depository, or on the own initiative of the Commission and/or its local bodies. Such supervision of the NCSSM may be regarded as state interference into the internal affairs of the company in order to ensure the observance of shareholders’ rights during the general meeting.

Taking into consideration this background as well the directive’s provisions, it is possible to conclude that several changes should be introduced into Ukrainian legislation concerning shareholders rights’ and remedies from the perspective of the Directive2007/36/EC:

- SRD is applicable to listed companies only. As the Ukrainian law does not provide specific rules on listed companies, at least not with regard to the conveying of and participating in the General Meeting, the implementation of the Directive would make the rules that the Directive mandates, applicable to all JSC. This would be too costly for private JSC or even for some of the public companies, who are not regarded as listed companies in the meaning of the SRD. Therefore, introduction and further elaboration of the dual regime for private and public companies should be made. SRD should be implemented wholesale with regard to listed companies, whereas some other provisions may be extended to private JSC as well.

- It needs to be transposed into the Law on JSC, in particular it needs to be clearly stipulated that rights of a shareholder to participate in the GM cannot be limited by the fact that he/she sold the shares (even all the shares) before the general meeting, after the record date (see art. 7 par. 2 and 3 of the SRD). It means that shareholders who earned that right on the record date can fully participate in the GM even if they are no longer shareholders of that company on the day of the GM.

- Shareholders in Ukraine shall be permitted to participate in the general meeting by electronic means as prescribed by SRD. Reasonably it shall be allowed the shareholders to decide upon this issue at their discretion in the Company's statutory documents. SRD is facilitating and „prohibits prohibiting”

• The company shall make available to its shareholders on its Internet site at least the information that is prescribed in the art. 5 of SRD, for example: the documents to be submitted to the general meeting; the total number of shares and voting rights at the date of the convocation; draft resolution for each item on the proposed agenda of the general meeting; moreover, draft resolutions tabled by shareholders shall be added to the Internet site as soon as practicable after the company has received them etc.

Now the Law on JSC contains a possibility to make documents available on the Internet site only for companies with more than 100 shareholders. This option shall not be dependent on number of shareholders.

• The 30-days notification about convocation of the GM is in line with the SRD, in which the minimal period of 21 days is specified. At the same time, the shortened notification period in case of voting by electronic means (see art. 5 para 1: not later that on the 14th days before the day of GM) is recommended to include after implementation of the procedure of voting by electronic means.

The JSC Law does not contain the conditions of SRD that the Company need not apply the minimum periods referred (i.e. 21 and 14 days respectively) for the second or subsequent convocation of a general meeting issued for lack of a quorum required for the meeting convened by the first convocation, provided that the convocation conditions have been complied with for the first convocation and no new item is put on the agenda, and that at least 10 days elapse between the final convocation and the date of the general meeting.

• The requirements to the GM notification of JSC Law do not comply in full with the SRD requirements. Upon SRD the notification shall additionally contain a clear and precise description of the procedures that shareholders must comply with in order to be able to participate and to cast their vote in the GM. This includes information concerning:

  (i) the rights available to shareholders under Article 6 (Right to put items on the agenda of the general meeting and to table draft resolutions), to the extent that those rights can be exercised after the issuing of the convocation, and under Article 9 (Right to ask questions), and the deadlines by which those rights may be exercised; the convocation may confine itself to stating only the deadlines by which those rights may be exercised, provided it contains a reference to more detailed information concerning those rights being made available on the Internet site of the company;

  (ii) the procedure for voting by proxy, notably the forms to be used to vote by proxy and the means by which the company is prepared to accept electronic notifications of the appointment of proxy holders; and

  (iii) where applicable, the procedures for casting votes by correspondence or by electronic means;

The notification shall indicate where and how the full, unabridged text of the documents and draft resolutions may be obtained; and indicate the address of the Internet site on which the information on GM will be made available. Notably that these items are relevant for public joint stock companies.

• The following documents and information shall be available to shareholders in the period between convocation and holding the GM

  (i) the convocation (notification about the GM);
(ii) the total number of shares and voting rights at the date of the convocation (including separate totals for each class of shares where the company’s capital is divided into two or more classes of shares);

(iii) the documents to be submitted to the general meeting;

(iv) a draft resolution or, where no resolution is proposed to be adopted, a comment from a competent body within the company, to be designated by the applicable law, for each item on the proposed agenda of the general meeting; moreover, draft resolutions tabled by shareholders shall be added to the Internet site as soon as practicable after the company has received them;

(v) where applicable, the forms to be used to vote by proxy and to vote by correspondence, unless those forms are sent directly to each shareholder.

- Notably that SRD contains an exhaustive list of cases for restriction of exercising the shareholder rights through proxy holders. Among them are potential conflicts of interest between the proxy holder and the shareholder, in whose interest the proxy holder is bound to act.

- One of requirements of SRD is to permit (i.e. not oblige, instead not prohibit) shareholders to appoint (revoke) a proxy holder by electronic means. Moreover, Member States shall permit companies to accept the notification of the appointment by electronic means, and shall ensure that every company offers to its shareholders at least one effective method of notification by electronic means.

- The JSC Law shall permit companies (i.e. not oblige, instead not prohibit) to offer their shareholders the possibility to vote by correspondence in advance of the general meeting. Voting by correspondence may be made subject only to such requirements and constraints as are necessary to ensure the identification of shareholders and only to the extent that they are proportionate to achieving that objective.

- Every shareholder shall have a right to ask questions related to items on the agenda of the general meeting and the company shall answer the questions put to it by shareholders in accordance with Art. 9 of the Directive.

Notably Member States apply the principle of free exercise of given rights within SRD’s scope. As the result, companies are allowed to decide upon certain issues of the corporate governance upon their own discretion. At the same time SRD contains certain line which can be used by those companies preferring to follow defined concept of action.

It needs to be emphasized that the Directive should not be understood as mandating making the vote by electronic means accessible to all shareholders. The Directive merely requires that the MS allow for for the companies to introduce electronic voting if any given company wishes so (art. 8 SRD). In fact not a single MS has imposed on companies obligation to facilitate eletronic voting, because it would incur to high organisational costs and security problems, especially for SMEs. At the current stage mandating of electronic voting would go against the general proportionality requirement, if it was to be imposed on every company. Instead, the Directive is facilitating and „prohibits prohibiting“, i.e. does not allow Member States to prohibit electronic voting if the company wants to have it in her corporate governance – such a voting needs to be allowed under the legal regime of any MS. It should be added that such information has to be displayed at the company’s website for a continuous period until the GM is held, and including the day of the meeting (SRD art. 5 (4).

Regarding the shareholders’ right to information, it should be mentioned that realization of it under Ukrainian JSCs law includes the obligation of the supervisory and management boards, internal audit commission or the auditor to report to the shareholders at least once a year at the annual general shareholders’ meeting; guarantee of free access to quite a broad statutory list of documents on JSC activity which must be provided by a JSC to a shareholder upon his/her or its written request, obligation of a public JSC to have a dedicated website where all the publicly disclosed and other required statutory information shall be placed\(^\text{147}\). Besides, the Securities Law and NSMSC regulations establish specific disclosure requirements related to a JSCs’ regular and special information\(^\text{148}\). But there is no clear provision granting shareholders right to ask questions directly at the general meeting and obligation of the managers to provide it.

Besides, there is a pending question concerning derivative suits in Ukraine, i.e. bringing a claim or claims in the interests of a company. However, in 2008, the Supreme Court of Ukraine only confirmed in its opinion that shareholders in Ukraine are not entitled to such type of claims\(^\text{149}\). Under Ukrainian JSC law, shareholders are authorized to bring claims to courts only in cases of direct violations of their rights and legitimate interests. We believe that institution of derivative actions should be implemented into Ukrainian legislation, but in order to prevent its transformation into a “strike suit” the so-called “standings” should be introduced as well, which includes verification of the claiming shareholder for compliance with certain requirements, like with property qualification (a certain percentage of shares that would allow the shareholder (shareholders) to bring a derivative action before the court).

It should be emphasized that the draft law No. 2013a On Amending Certain Laws of Ukraine Regarding Protection of Investors’ Rights was registered in Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine in September 2013. However, it has not yet been adopted and several changes are currently discussed. According to the Draft Law, derivative action empowers a participant (shareholder) of a business entity to bring an action on behalf of the entity against its officials, in case such officials caused damages by their illegal actions (failure to act). According to the Draft Law, the right to bring a derivative action could be applied by shareholder(s) and participant(s) holding five or more percent of equity interest (shares) in the authorized capital of the company.

5.2. INCONSISTENCIES BETWEEN JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES LAW AND OTHER LEGAL ACTS REGULATING OPERATIONS OF JOINT-STOCK COMPANIES

As could be seen from the previous sections, the development of a market economy has influenced the improvement of the company legislation of Ukraine. However, it still remains imperfect and differs from the corporate legislation of European countries, although many recurring attempts have been being undertaken by Ukraine in order to re-establish and improve its provisions. The system of national company law could be described as tangled and, at the same time, unstable, with specific legislative provisions being inconsistent with each other and in some cases also contradictory. The simultaneous coexistence of legal acts with different nature and background, different approaches and values they represent (like the new JSCs Law, the Civil Code, the Economic Code, the Law on Business Associations) causes many problems in practice and put obstacles to the efficient development of companies and the investment potential of Ukraine. Moreover, the large number of legislative gaps in Ukrainian legislation gives broad grounds for regulatory agencies and courts to interpret the meaning of the laws and facilitates corruption among the regulators and unfair competition among business competitors.\textsuperscript{150} The major inconsistencies exist between the Economic Code and other company law acts. As it was rightfully noted in the OECD Report, in this regard, the Economic Code appears to present an obstacle to the development of free market because its nature and methods of regulation do not support nascent market economy of Ukraine.\textsuperscript{151} That is why that since its adoption, there have been a lot of opinions that until of the Economic Code is abolished or substantially changed, progress in the development of company legislation and improvement of regulation in other spheres will be difficult to achieve. However, the contradictory of legislation appears not only in provisions of two Codes. The analysis of the most obvious inconsistencies in the Ukrainian corporate legislation is presented in Annex No.1 to the Report.

5.3. Pending Legislation: Planned Reforms and Draft Laws

As may be concluded from the aforementioned, Ukrainian company legislation requires significant changes, not only because of the obligations undertaken according to the AA, but because of the necessity to improve existent business climate and difficult economic situation in Ukraine. Some steps have already been taken by the Ukrainian legislator and currently there are several important legislative initiatives concerning the area of company law.

Since 2012, an adoption of the Law of Ukraine On Limited Liability Companies and Additional Liability Companies has been actively discussed and would be one of the most awaited changes in corporate legislation. There are two alternative drafts - No. 2011 and No.2011-1. The next step would now be acceptance of one of them by Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine for consideration and its further adoption. However, the timing remains uncertain. For detailed information on these drafts, see paragraph 5.1.2.

Another significant step is the introduction of a new Ukrainian corporate protection mechanism - a derivative action. The draft law No. 2013a On Amending Certain Laws of Ukraine Regarding Protection of Investors’ Rights was registered in Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine in September 2013. However, it has not yet been adopted and several changes are currently discussed. It is hoped that such a mechanism would be incorporated into Ukrainian legislation as soon as possible. For detailed information, see paragraphs 4.2.2; 5.1.2; 5.1.13.

Furthermore, Draft Law No. 4534а On Amending Certain Legislative Acts of Ukraine Regarding Improvement of Corporate Governance in Joint Stock Companies was registered in the Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine in August 2014, recalled in November 2014 and expected to be submitted to the new Parliament in the nearest future again. The adoption of this Draft Law will be a step forward to the implementation of EU capital markets legislation, particularly

5.4. General Assessment of the Status and the Alignment Level of the Ukrainian Company Law Legislation with the Acquis

In general, Ukraine has reached a good level of alignment with the Acquis Communautaire.

The Law On Joint Stock Companies is broadly aligned with the First Company Law Directive related to disclosure requirements, validity of obligations and grounds for nullity of public and private limited liability companies; with the Twelfth Company Law Directive on single-member companies; with the Second Company Law Directive as regards capital formation, issues on determination of market value of the property, payment for shares by founders of the joint-stock company, dividend payment procedure and restrictions related to it, regulations on buy-out own shares by a joint stock company and limitations imposed on it, price for shares, annulment of shares, the minimum value of the charter capital, its increasing and decreasing, protection of creditors. The very procedure of mergers and divisions as well as protection of creditors in case of the latter under Ukrainian law are in accordance with the Third and Sixth Company Law Directives. Provisions of JSCL concerning proposals for the General Meeting agenda are in compliance with SRD.

The Civil Code and the Law on Business Associations provide general rules on companies which in general do not conflict with the Acquis, but sometimes are overlapping with each other and do not provide exhaustive and comprehensive regulations for the limited liability companies’ activity. Thus, the problem of absence of modern Law on Limited Liability and Additional Liability Companies remains and should be resolved as soon as possible. At the same time, the market-aliennated Economic Code evidently does not fit into the European standards and practices of private law and should be abolished.

The main discrepancies are related to the rules of Takeover Directive, certain provisions of the Shareholder Rights Directive, Mergers and Divisions Directives, Tenth Company Law Directive regarding cross-border mergers of public limited liability companies, Directive on single-member private limited liability companies and Capital Directive (see the next paragraph).

5.5. Recommendations for Further Alignment with the EU Legislation and Practices as well as for Efficiency Enhancement of Ukrainian Company Law

Our recommendations for further alignment of Ukrainian company and corporate governance legislation with the EU legislation and practices include:

- The outdated Economic Code should be wholly abolished;
Overlapping provisions from the Civil Code and the Law On Business Associations should be eliminated; the same applies for the JSCL and for future special (and recommended) legal acts, i.e. the new law on private limited liability companies and on corporate reorganisations i.e. mergers, divisions and other transformations (see infra)

The requirement of publication of state registration/termination of the legal entity in the print media should be supplemented or replaced by publication in electronic platform (according to the art. 3 par. 5 of the Directive 2009/101/EC);

The limitation on legal actions prior to company’s registration shall be removed as it violates the idea of the Directive 2009/101/EC, which implicitly allows for pre-registration activities of the company;

Adjustments are needed so as to further enhance the reliance of third parties on unrestricted an generally unrestrictable power of the management board to act on behalf of the company;

Legal framework for private limited liability companies should be put in place in form of a new law. This new law should increase the level of minority protection while at the same time leaving enough space for flexible arrangements that are needed in small and medium sized enterprises. This preserved flexibility should be one of the fundamental distinctions of the LLC vis-à-vis JSC. The law should allow for designing the company as a closed company, while at the same time exit rights should be allowed in order to avoid deadlocks and imprisonment of shareholders. Also access to information should be assured. Possibility to establish a supervisory board in a LLC shall be introduced. Derivative action should also be allowed under defined conditions. Legal capital should not be mandatory and non-par value shares should be considered. Abuse should be curbed by introduction of directors liability for acting at the expense of creditors (preferably a mix of German (Insolvenzverschleppungshaftung) and UK (wrongful trading) approach. Liability of de facto directors should be anchored in the law as well. The obligation to specify information on the size of the participants’ share in the company’s statute shall be removed (the relevant data should be stored exclusively in the Unified State Register);

The provisions that a limited (additional) liability company may have a sole member when all its shares come to be held by a single person and the sole member of the limited (additional) liability company shall exercise the powers of the general meeting of the company should be implemented;

Dual regime for listed and non-listed JSC should be introduced. This should allow for implementation of SRD, without burdening smaller, non-listed companies. The exclusive criterion of division into public and private joint stock companies shall be public placement of the shares (not a number of shareholders); the terminology of the JSCL should be reconsidered “private JSC”, as it is currently used, seems to be an oxymoron;

SRD should be implemented wholesale with regard to listed companies, whereas some other provisions may be extended to private JSC as well;

The quorum for the validity of GM in JSC should be decreased to 50% and reduced even further or even abolished for certain issues to be decided by the GM (or reversely, the quorum to be maintained with respect to a number of significant issues). Alternatively, the quorum could apply for the first attempt and be eliminated or reduced for a renewed attempt;

Pre-emptive rights to take up newly issued shares should be mandatory in all JSC companies and must be provided in the law (ex lege) and not merely in the charter;
• The list of triggering events for appraisal rights (art. 68 JSCL) should be reconsidered based on experiences made herewith so far. In the spirit of self-enforcing model of corporate law, the introduction of new exit rights in form of dissenters rights should be considered (see e.g. Italian, German, Spanish, Japanese and US examples);
• Rights of squeeze-out and sell-out shall be implemented to the Law on JSC according to the Directive 2004/25/EC. In addition to takeover-related, the squeeze-out and sell-out mechanisms shall be introduced for all JSC, also the private ones;
• Shareholder derivative action as a possible protection mechanism must be implemented; further thoughts should be given as to the auxiliary mechanism both, facilitating efficient litigation and curbing abusive suits. This could be done through favourable cost rules flanked by liability for strike suits;
• The threshold allowing shareholder to require special audit of a JSC should be lowered to 5% (from 10% as it is under current regime) in order to improve the level of protection of minority shareholders, at least in public companies;
• In the reporting requirements the statement on CG Code to which the listed company adheres shall be added and the ‘comply or explain’ principle shall be introduced;
• Takeover law should be reformed, i.a. through lowering the threshold triggering mandatory takeover bid, improving shareholders protection with regard to the bid price, implementing rules on board information duties and neutrality as well as possible deviation thereof, implementing of break-through-rule,
• The French Rozenblum doctrine should be incorporated into Ukrainian company law (e.g. taking into consideration the recent Czech reform). Approaches to group interest should be considered and possibly anchored in law applicable to companies group issues. Also safe harbors for directors of dependent companies (subsidiaries) should be considered in this connection. Appraisal remedy (exit right through shares buy-out) at the stage of group formation (see German example) or in cases of abuse of power by the parent company (see Italian example) should be introduced. We do not recommend comprehensive, German-style legislation on corporate groups;
• Enactment of special (separate) new law on corporate reorganisations (see e.g. German or Spanish models), embracing all kinds of reorganisations (mergers, divisions, spin-offs) and transformations of all companies types. For such a new law, the definitions of mergers and divisions from the Third and Sixth EU Directives shall be implemented into the Law of Ukraine. The documents which are to be prepared for mergers or divisions shall contain information as it is provided in the Third and Sixth EU Directives. The rule about right of inspection of the documents concerning merger or division by shareholders at the registered office at least one month before the date fixed to the general meeting should be implemented as well. Also, a limit on the cases in which nullity of conducted mergers or divisions can arise by providing that defects be remedied wherever that is possible and by restricting the period within which nullification proceedings may be commenced. Special rules governing the civil liability of members of the management bodies of a company being acquired or divided towards the shareholders of that company as well as the experts responsible for drawing up on behalf of that company the reports related to mergers and divisions in respect of the misconduct in the performance of their duties during preparing and implementing the merger or division shall be introduced. Provisions to align with the Tenth Company Law Directive regarding cross-border mergers of public limited liability companies shall be introduced; allow for arbitration of corporate law disputes, at least for LLC and non-listed JSC. The arbitrability should include disputes concerning validity of general meeting resolutions.

6. ACCOUNTING AND AUDITING LEGISLATION IN UKRAINE IN LIGHT OF THE EU HARMONISATION REQUIREMENTS

6.1. GENERAL OVERVIEW OF ACCOUNTING LEGISLATION OF UKRAINE

Accounting and financial reporting requirements for enterprises in Ukraine are regulated by the Law “On Accounting and Financial Reporting” which came into effect on January 1, 2000. The Law of Ukraine “On Accounting and Financial Reporting” sets the legal framework for regulation, organization of accounting process and bookkeeping, as well as composing the financial statement in Ukraine. The Law applies to all legal entities established under the legislation of Ukraine disregarding the legal form of establishment and ownership as well as to representative offices of foreign legal entities which are subject to accounting requirements according to Ukrainian legislation. Following the ROSK 2002 and ROSK 2008 recommendations the following amendments have been introduced to accounting legislation during the last decade:

- Requirements for general purpose financial reporting have been differentiated from reporting for taxation purposes
- Due process for drafting Ukrainian National Accounting Standards have been established and issuing body (Ministry of Finance of Ukraine) capacity has been strengthened
- The application of International Financial Reporting Standards for public joint stock companies, banks, insurers and other enterprises defined by the regulator has been established by the Law of Ukraine “On Accounting and Financial Reporting”
- The requirement to publish annual financial statements and annual consolidated financial statements together with the auditor’s opinion has been introduced for public joint stock companies, corporate issuers of mortgage bonds, mortgage certificates, corporate bonds and real-estate transaction fund certificates, as well as professional stock market members, banks, insurers and other financial institutions (by means of the placement thereof on their web site and the publication in periodical or non-periodical bulletins)
- The financial statements covering business activities comprising a balance sheet and an annual profit/loss account shall be submitted to the state registrar by all enterprises (other than budget-funded institutions)

Further alignment with Acquis Communautaire in the field of accounting requires implementation of the rules of Directive 2013/34/EU, especially in part of simplifying the financial reporting requirements to small and medium-sized entities. In Ukraine, simplified financial reporting for entities of micro and small enterprises, representative offices of non-residents etc., is regulated by national accounting standard (П(С)БО 25). Currently, the form of abridged balance sheet for Ukrainian small and micro enterprises requires more detailed information on the financial position of the entity than the Directive does. In addition, exemption from consolidation requirement for small groups of undertakings shall be established in Ukrainian legislation.

6.2. General Overview of Ukrainian Legal Framework for Auditing

The main legal act in regulation of audit in Ukraine is the Law “On Audit Activity” adopted in 1993 and substantially amended in December 2006 (new edition). According to World Bank’s estimation (ROSK 2008), the Law represents a significant step towards the adoption of international practices; it clarified and extended provisions related to the regulation of the audit profession and redefined the role and responsibilities of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

The key provisions of the Law are the following:

- The Law contains definitions of audit and audit activity, defines the entities subject to statutory audit.
- In particular, the open joint-stock companies, issuers of securities, professional participants of the stock exchange, financial organizations, and other entities falling within the categories obliged to make their financial reports publicly available are required to have their entity and consolidated financial statements audited. The statutory audit requirement also applies to companies with foreign investments, insurance and holding companies, investment funds, trust institutions, other financial intermediaries as well as to the issuers of securities and derivative securities (derivatives), as well as to the companies applying for the license for the exercise of professional activities on the securities market.
- The Law stated the requirements to persons eligible to exercise audit activities (being qualified as auditor) and the procedure for professional certification.
- Besides, the Law establishes the legal framework for activity of the regulatory body for the Ukrainian audit profession (Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine (CoAU)). In order to establish the level of independence, the composition of CoAU is the following: 20 permanent members (volunteers), including 10 representatives appointed by the state regulatory bodies including the Ministry of Finance, State Statistics Service, Ministry of Economy, the National Bank of Ukraine, the Ministry of Justice, state tax authority, and other State representatives.

The further alignment of Ukrainian audit legislation to Acquis Communautaire requires the following steps:
• Defining ‘public interest entities’ (further ‘PIE’) in the legislation of Ukraine and stating the statutory audit requirement for all PIE, large and medium-sized enterprises and stating the obligation to publish their annual financial statements, audit opinion and management reports;
• Stating the requirement for all PIEs to apply International Financial Reporting Standards (according to ROSC 2008 Policy Recommendations);
• Developing specific requirements to the audit firms and auditors who are eligible to carry out the statutory audit;
• Developing the system of independent public oversight over statutory auditors and audit firms. Playing a role of supervisor over the processes of certification, standardization, quality assurance etc., and the public oversight body shall be independent from the entities directly reliable for these processes (currently, the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine). Besides, the system of public oversight shall be governed by non-practitioners who are knowledgeable in the areas relevant to statutory audit. The State shall guarantee the establishment of the respective public oversight body at national level.
• Bringing the provisions on liability of corporative bodies for drawing up, submission and publishing of the (consolidated) financial report into conformity with the rules of the Directive 2013/34/EU;
• Stating the detailed requirements to statutory auditors and audit firms, compliance with ISA, qualification criteria and submission to quality control monitoring. The procedures relating to the appointment, dismissal and liability of practicing auditors also need to be clarified.

Besides, the Law states that audit standards shall be adopted on the basis of the Standards of Audit and Ethics of the International Federation of Accountants. The approval of audit standards shall be the exclusive right of the CoAU. Following the stated provisions of the Law International Standards of Audit have been adopted by the CoAU as the national auditing standards.

6.3. PENDING LEGISLATION: PLANNED REFORMS AND DRAFT LAWS

With the aim of bringing the Law of Ukraine “On Audit Activity” into conformity with EU Directive 2006/43/EC the Ministry of Finance has developed the Draft law suggesting the amendments to the mentioned Law.

The main purpose of the proposed amendments is to implement the principles of public auditor oversight and quality assurance system for audit services into Ukrainian legislation. Due to the disparity of national legislation in the field of audit activities with Directive Commission Decision 2011/30/EC of 19 January 2011 Ukraine denied the regime transition in the national register of auditors and audit firms auditing domestic issuers whose securities are traded in the capital markets of the European Union.

According to the amendments to the Law of Ukraine “On Accounting and Financial Reporting” in 2011, developed and adopted to implement the program of economic reforms for 2010-2014 "Prosperous Society, Competitive Economy, Effective State" the public joint stock companies, banks are obliged to apply IFRS. However, in the point of view of Ministry of Finance the effectiveness of this reform is reduced due to the mismatch of the system of audit regulation to European practice.

According to the program of economic reforms for 2010-2014 “Prosperous Society, Competitive Economy, Effective State”, approved by the Decree of the President of Ukraine on March 12, 2013 № 128, Ukraine has undertaken to ensure the approximation level of audit regulation to the European legislation by, inter alia, establishing the operation of a public oversight over audit activity and quality assurance systems to guarantee the quality of audit services, direct application of ISA, the introduction of permanent certificate of the auditor, enhancing the role of civil society organizations of accountants and auditors, to avoid a conflict of interest in the auditor certification, inspection over quality of audit services and supervision of these processes etc.

The main provisions of the draft law are the following:

- Obligation of audit firms and auditors to apply ISA by in the course of their work;
- If the financial statements are composed according to IFRS the audit shall confirm that the financial statements are compliant not only with the National Standards of Accounting but also with IFRS.
- The draft law envisages public oversight of the audit profession.
- It is also proposed to improve the system auditor certification. In particular, to establish the unlimited validity of the auditor’s certificate.

6.4. General Assessment of the Status and the Alignment Level of Accounting and Auditing Legislation with the Acquis Communautaire

6.4.1. In Part of Accounting

In general, Ukraine has reached a good level of alignment with the Acquis Communautaire. The rules of the Law of Ukraine “On Accounting and Financial Reporting” comply with the requirements of the Regulation (EC) No 1606/2002 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 19 July 2002 on the application of international accounting standards (in particular, in 2011 the Law “On accounting and Financial Reporting” was amended in order to establish the obligation of public joint stock companies, banks, insurers and other enterprises defined by regulator to compile financial statements and consolidated financial statements in accordance with international standards).

Further alignment with Acquis Communautaire in the field of accounting require implementation of the rules of Directive 2013/34/EU specially in part of simplifying the financial reporting requirements to small and medium sized entities.
6.4.2. IN PART OF AUDITING

Ukraine has reached a fair level of alignment with the Acquis Communautaire. Further alignment requires stating the statutory audit requirement for all PIE, large and medium-sized enterprises and stating the obligation to publish their annual financial statements, audit opinion and management reports; ensuring the public oversight body for auditing activity; requirements to auditors and audit firms carrying out the statutory audit etc.

6.5. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR FURTHER ALIGNMENT WITH THE EU LEGISLATION AND PRACTICES

Further alignment with the Acquis Communautaire requires the following actions:

From the standpoint of law and regulatory acts:

- Defining ‘public interest entities’ in the legislation of Ukraine (the necessity of adoption of the mentioned definition has already been prescribed in Ukrainian regulatory acts, in particular, in the Law of Ukraine “On State Program of Adaptation of the legislation of Ukraine to the legislation of European Union” dated 18.03.2004; Concept of adaptation of Ukrainian legislation to legislation of European Union dated 16.08.1999);
- Stating and actual implementation of statutory audit requirement for all PIE, large and medium-sized enterprises and stating the obligation to publish their annual financial statements, audit opinion and management reports;
- Stating the requirement for all PIEs to apply International Financial Reporting Standards (according to ROSC 2008 Policy Recommendations);
- Simplifying the financial reporting requirements to small and medium sized entities. In Ukraine simplified financial reporting for the entities of micro and small enterprises, representative offices of non-residents etc. is regulated by national accounting standard (П(С)БО 25). Currently the form of abridged balance sheet for Ukrainian small and micro enterprises requires more detailed information re financial position of the entity than the Directive does. In addition, exemption from consolidation requirement for small groups of undertakings shall be established in Ukrainian legislation.

From institutional standpoint:

- Developing specific (more strict) requirements to the audit firms which can carry out the statutory audit;
- Developing the system of independent public oversight over statutory auditors and audit firms;
- Bringing the provisions on liability of corporative bodies for drawing up, submission and publishing of the (consolidated) financial report into conformity with the rules of the Directive 2013/34/EU;
- Stating the detailed requirements to statutory auditors and audit firms, compliance with ISA, qualification criteria and submission to quality control monitoring. The procedures relating to the appointment, dismissal and liability of practicing auditors also need to be clarified.
6.6. Assessment of the Level of Implementation of ISA in Ukraine

Over 10 years ago audits in Ukraine were performed on the basis of Temporary National Regulations on Audit (until 1998) and 32 National Regulations on Audit and Auditors’ Ethics Code (until 2003). The latter were primarily based on International Standards on Audit (ISA), while Ukrainian legislation on audit wasn’t, which caused problems in practice.

In 2003 the CoAU accepted Audit and Ethics Standards of Association of International Accountants as part of Ukrainian national audit standards (Decision of dated 18.04.2003 No.122 “On Usage of Audit and Ethics Standards of International Accountants Association in Ukraine”).

Currently the CoAU (with approval of International Accountants Association) regularly translates into Ukrainian and publishes Audit and Ethics Standards. The Standards Commission of the CoAU also develops national standards on audit practice and instructions in order to adjust international standards to local tax, legal and state governance specifics.

Application of ISA gave rise to a number of problems, namely:

- There is usually a time gap between enactment of ISA and their adaptation in Ukraine, namely translation into Ukrainian and subsequent application. In particular, for example, Handbook of International Quality Control, Auditing, Review, Other Assurance, and related Services Pronouncements (2012 Edition) is used in Ukraine starting from 1 May 2014 (enacted with the Decision of the CoAU as of 27.02.2014 No. 290/7);
- Lack of financing required for timely translation of ISA;
- Lack of knowledge of ISA by Ukrainian audit professionals.

7. Corporate Disputes, the Role of Judiciary, and the Reality of Law Enforcement

7.1. National Legal Traditions and Dispute Settlement Mechanism, State Courts and Arbitration

Ukraine’s judicial system was inherited from the Soviet Union and the former Ukrainian SSR. The Soviet justice system was dependent on the bodies of the Communist Party. The division of powers between the state and the party were not practiced as they were in Western democracies152. With the adoption of the Declaration of the State Sovereignty of Ukraine in 16 July 1990 by the Supreme Rada of Ukrainian SSR, Ukraine began to create its own judicial system without the drawbacks of the Soviet system. It is worth mentioning that Ukraine was the first among the former Soviet republics to establish its own system of arbitral courts, independent from the all-USSR justice system for the settlement of commercial disputes in June 1991 (at that time and until 24 August 1991 Ukraine was still a member of the USSR)\(^{153}\).

After adoption of the Constitution Ukraine in 1996 have continued to build its national judicial system. Its general structure is stipulated in Article 124 of the Constitution of Ukraine, according to which the justice is administered by the Constitutional Court of Ukraine and by courts of general jurisdiction. The courts of general jurisdiction administer justice in the form of civil, commercial, administrative and criminal legislation. The Constitutional Court of Ukraine is a special judicial body of constitutional control.

The system of general jurisdiction is based on the principles of the administrative and territorial division of Ukraine and includes four levels: local courts; courts of appeal; the highest specialized courts (in accordance with the Law of Ukraine on Court System Structure and Judges Status\(^{154}\) there are the Highest Court for Civil and Criminal cases, the Highest Commercial Court, and the Highest Administrative Court); and the Supreme Court of Ukraine.

Civil, family, hereditary, and other cases should be brought before the local general courts when at least one party to the dispute is a natural person, except for an individual entrepreneur. Local general courts may also consider disputes arising out of business activity in cases where one of the parties is a natural person. At the same time, corporate disputes are considered by the commercial courts only (even with a natural person involved as a party). Article12 of the Economic Procedure Code distinguishes two categories of disputes under the jurisdiction of the commercial court: (i) disputes arising out of corporate relations between business entity and its participant (founder, shareholder), including participant who dropped out; (ii) disputes arising out of corporate relations between participants (founders, shareholders) of the business entity, but only those related to the set-up, activities, management or termination of this entity.

The Highest Commercial Court of Ukraine in its 2007 Recommendations defined the following disputes as corporate and therefore subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of commercial courts:

- disputes between participants (shareholders) of a business entity related to its establishment, liquidation and management;
- disputes arising out of participants’ claims on invalidation of statutory documents or their amendments;
- disputes related to liquidation or annulment of state registration of a business entity under the actions of its participants;
- disputes on invalidation of business entity’s deeds under the participants’ (shareholders) actions claiming violation of their corporate rights and interests;

\(^{153}\) Ibid.

The system of commercial courts was set up on the territories of Ukraine in 1832 when Ukraine was a part of the Russian Empire in order to deal with commercial disputed between legal entities and businessmen. After the October revolution 1917 this commercial courts system was transformed into the system of State Arbitrazh, which had been especially adapted to handle disputes between state enterprises (See Alexandra Makovskaya, Russian Company and Capital Market Law [in:], Private Law in Eastern Europe. Autonomous Developments or Legal Transplants?, Ed. by Christa Jessel-Holst, Rainer Kulms and Alexander Trunk, 2010. XV, p. 308)

The commercial courts were established in 1991 by means of the reorganization of the previously existing institute of Departmental Arbitrage, the jurisdiction of which covered commercial disputes between state enterprises.

\(^{154}\) The Law of Ukraine on Court System Structure and Judges Status No. 2453-VI, from July 7, 2010
• disputes arising out of participants’ actions related to invalidation of shareholders’ resolutions on their expulsion from the company’s participation.

Moreover, the Supreme Court of Ukraine in its 2008 Resolution specified the disputes which are not deemed to be corporate and consequently are not subject to commercial courts exclusive jurisdiction:

• disputes arising out of the establishment, activity, management and activities termination of business entities – being not business companies (i.e. cooperatives, private, collective enterprises etc) if one of the parties in a dispute is an individual;

• the prohibition set forth in Article 12 of the Economic Procedure Code of Ukraine (hereinafter – ECP) shall not be applicable by analogy to other business entities;

• the prohibition set forth in Article 12 ECP cannot be construed broadly to disputes, in which one of the parties is not a participant (founder, shareholder) of business entity (disputes involving heirs of the participant which have not gained a participatory interest yet).

Besides, the commercial courts are competent to hear commercial disputes between legal entities, disputes arising out of the conclusion, amendment, termination or execution of economic contracts; bankruptcy cases; cases on accounting of rights to securities; disputes arising out of land relations involving business entities, except those within the jurisdiction of administrative courts, cases on motions of the Antimonopoly Committee of Ukraine, the Accounting Chamber. Labour disputes are excluded from the jurisdiction of the commercial courts. These disputes fall within the competence of the local general courts. Court proceedings are conducted under the Economic Procedure Code of Ukraine155.

The commercial court system consists of three level of courts: local commercial courts in the regions and the cities in Kyiv and Sevastopol156; appellate commercial courts; and the Highest Commercial Court, which acts as the cassation instance. The Highest Commercial Court reviews the acts of the lower courts as a last instance, analyzes court statistics, studies and generalizes case law, provides methodological assistance to lower level courts in order to foster consistent application of legislation in court practices based on the generalization of the latter and analysis of court statistics. Besides, it provides the specialized courts of the lower level with advisory interpretations/clarifications on issues of law application in regards to cases that fall under the corresponding jurisdiction157. Although commercial courts are not formally bound by the recommendations of the Highest Commercial Court, in practice they appear to be obligatory.

The Supreme Court of Ukraine as the highest judicial body in the system of courts of general jurisdiction reviews cases regarding unequal application by the courts of cassation the same rule of substantive law in similar legal relations. It should be pointed out that till 2010, the Supreme Court of Ukraine was also authorized to issue resolutions with summary of court practice that served and serves now as recommendations for the lower courts on resolving the cases including the corporate ones.

155 The Economic Procedure Code of Ukraine No. 1798-XII from November 6, 1991
156 We consider Sevastopol and the Crimean peninsula as Ukrainian territories
157 Art. 32 of the Law On the Judiciary and the Status of Judges adopted by the Verkhovna Rada dated 7 July 2010
Thus, as for now, the system of de jure but not de facto not binding acts issued by the judicial authorities includes:

- Resolution of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of Ukraine on Corporate Disputes No. 13 dated 24 October 2008
- Clarifications of the Presidium of the Highest commercial court of Ukraine of 31.05.2002 No. 05-5/608 “On certain practical issues of consideration of cases involving foreign commercial entities and organizations"
- Letter of the Highest commercial court of Ukraine of 01.01.2009 “On consolidation of the court practice of settlement of certain categories of disputes involving non-residents by the commercial courts"
- Letter of the Highest commercial court of Ukraine of 01.01.2009 “On consolidation of the court practice of settlement of certain categories of disputes involving non-residents by the commercial courts"

Another possibility to resolve the dispute is arbitration. Ukraine have adopted all major international legal acts in the field of international arbitration, including New York Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards of 1958 and European Convention on International Commercial Arbitration of 1961. Moreover, Ukraine ratified the ICSID Convention and the Energy Charter Treaty (ECT).

It should be emphasized that Ukrainian legislation does not contain either a definition of non-arbitrability of disputes or an exhaustive list of disputes which are not capable of settlement by arbitration. However, Ukraine certainly belongs to the jurisdictions with restrictive approach towards arbitration of corporate disputes.

The categories of corporate disputes subject to Ukrainian common jurisdiction are defined in:

- the Recommendations of the Presidium of the Highest Commercial Court of Ukraine "On Practice of Legislation Application in Disputes Arising out of Corporate Relations" No. 04-5/14 dated 28 December 2007;
- the Resolution of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of Ukraine on Corporate Disputes No. 13 dated 24 October 2008. The Court stated that "shareholders irrespective of their shareholding structure have no right to refer corporate disputes related to the activity of a company registered in Ukraine and, in particular, arising out of corporate management, to international arbitration."

Previously no limitations on arbitrability of corporate disputes existed on the legislation level. Parties were free to refer their disputes to arbitration as stated in Article 1 of the Law of Ukraine on International Commercial Arbitration No. 4002-Xii dated 24.02.1994; parties may agree to refer the disputes between companies with foreign investments, international associations and organizations established in Ukraine; disputes between participants of such entities; as well as disputes between such entities and other judicial entities of Ukraine to international arbitration.

In 2006 the Economic Procedure Code of Ukraine was amended and corporate disputes were submitted to the jurisdictions of commercial courts (Article 12 EPC). At the same time part 2 of Article 12 EPC stated that a dispute falling within the jurisdiction of commercial court may be referred to arbitration if agreed by the parties.

2009 Article 12 of the EPC was amended based on recommendations of the Supreme Court of Ukraine and corporate disputes were explicitly excluded from the list of disputes which could be referred to arbitration. Thus, the applicable wording of the Article 12 of ECP provides that the disputes arising out of corporate relations between a company and its participants (founders, shareholders), including former participants as well as disputes between participants (founders, shareholders) of the company relating to the establishment, activity, management and liquidation of the company (except for labour disputes) may not be referred to arbitration and are subject to exclusive jurisdiction of commercial courts of Ukraine. Such situation seems to be incompatible with EU and international standards where the right to arbitration in the sphere of corporate law is generally recognized. Thus, the arbitration of corporate disputes should be allowed under Ukrainian law as it makes possible to resolve disputes efficiently, in shorter time and with satisfaction for both parties.

7.2. APPLICATION OF COMPANY LAW IN THE PRACTICE OF UKRAINIAN COURTS: LEGAL REASONING AND JUDICIAL INTERPRETATION

One could not agree more that in a legal system with uncertain, unstable and inconsistent regulations, the judicial practice should play a special role in eliminating discrepancies in developing legislation, and fill the gaps in missing regulations through a “special form of lawmaking” - the interpretation of law.

Interpretation of law could be defined as an activity which covers the clarification or explanation of the legal rule with purpose to ensure its proper implementation and application. Its social purpose is to guarantee correct and unambiguous (unified) understanding of the meaning of legal regulations by all who have to use them. Interpretation of company law is a key element of its enforcement as every legal interpretation is a “special noesis, which is carried out with aim of practical implementation of law.”

Article 4 of the Economic Procedure Code of Ukraine provides that economic courts are prohibited to refuse the hearing of the case on the grounds of incompleteness, ambiguity, inconsistency or lack of legislation. Therefore, in the absence of regulation, the court has to refer to the case-law, and if there is no such - to create it by itself through the interpretation of existing rules. As a result, commercial courts in justification of their position often refer to the decisions of higher courts. For example, in the case No.26/148-11 of 06.10.2011 the Economic Court of Kiev Region refused to satisfy the claim and for justification of its refusal had referred to the Resolutions of the Highest Commercial Court of 02.03.2010 (case No.12/190/09) and of 21.07.2009 (case No.31/382) according to which the amicable agreement approved by the court’s ruling is not deemed as a civil contract and does not create the substantive legal obligations. There are many other examples where the courts refer directly to the case law when motivating their decisions.

159 Alekseev S.S., Teorija gosudarstva i prava (Теория государства и права), Moskva, 2004, 283 pp.

After 22 December 2005 when the Law of Ukraine “On Access to Court Decisions” was adopted, judicial rulings has become public and courts’ position in different categories of cases – generally known. This event has significantly strengthened the role of positions of higher courts when considering cases in lower ones. However, in Ukraine judicial practice is not formally regarded as a source of law. But it is recognized that the power of a judge to interpret the law is a necessary precondition of the application of law.

The issues of legal interpretation have become especially topical in the area of company law taking into consideration the recent codification of economic and civil legislation. The problems have arisen because of inconsistency of the EC and the CC, many provisions of which are overlapping with each other or even conflicting (the rules concerning agreements, liability, obligations etc.). It is recognized that not every problem may be solved through the application of “lex speciali derogat legi generali” rule. Under conditions of scattered and unclear corporate regulations it is often hard to distinguish what rule is general and what special. Thus, one may conclude that the problem of legal interpretation and enforcement of company law requires new methodological tools and special analyses.

The interpretation of company law has its peculiarities related to the subject of interpretation - business activity, professional terminology, status of legal entities, temporality of rules, hierarchy of laws, necessity to take into account not only legal, but economic and social components of dispute situations. Generally accepted division of interpretational methods into grammatical (literal), logical, historical, systemic, and purposive could be used when analyzing the judicial reasoning during solving the case concerning company law application.

Generally, the rules of company law are subject to static interpretation. Exceptions apply only to the principles, dynamic interpretation of which is based on their particular character derived from being a part of company legislation. General principles of business practice enshrined in the Art. 6 of the EC, principles of entrepreneurial activity laid down in the Art. 44 of the EC, general principles of civil law from Art. 3 of the CC combine not only a normative nature like any other legal rule, but the declaration of state legislators on their social, economic and political intentions as well. Therefore, their evolutionary interpretation in the light of changeable environment is fully justified.

All legal interpretation must start by establishing a range of semantic meanings for a given text, from which the legal meaning is then drawn. It is generally accepted among scholars that grammatical interpretation is primary with respect to all other methods of interpretation. It is due to the fact that legal rules are expressed in legal texts, and constructed in the form of grammatical sentences. Moreover, every interpretation is an intellectual process and therefore must refer to the logic rules. The commercial court in every decisions refers to logical and systemic interpretation. Under logical interpretation one should understand using methods of formal logic in order to identify structural elements of the legal norms. One of the most well-known principles of logical interpretation that is of great topicality for Ukraine as it concerns the contradictions between provisions of laws that have been adopted at different times is a rule “lex posterior derogat legi priori” or “more recent law prevails over a former one”. Thus, for example, in case of contradictory regulations the more recent JSCs law of 2008 is applicable. Systematic interpretation involves the interpretation of a particular legal article with respect to the other articles of the law or other legal acts that are relevant to the subject in question. It defines the place of legal norm in a concrete law or the legal system as a whole. The commercial courts in every case of their practice analyze all scope of the available legislation and define ties and relations between different legal norms in order to define which rule should be applied to the relations in dispute.

Taking into consideration the changeability of Ukrainian company legislation and existence of overlapping provisions, the attention should be paid to the historical interpretation of law. For example, the new JSCs Law foresees the division of joint stock companies to public and private. Thus, the old terminology ("open" and "closed" JSCs) which still are used in some legal acts should be interpreted and applied in accordance with the new provisions. Commercial courts very often refer to previous legislation in order to regulate legal relations which had started before the new regulations were adopted. For example, in case No. 20/5025/2070/11 the Commercial Court stated that according to Art. 46 of the Law of Ukraine "On Business Associations" which was valid before the entry into force of the Law of Ukraine "On Joint Stock Companies", the supervisory board could be created from the shareholders for representation of the interests of the shareholders between the general meetings, review and regulation of the activities of the management board within the jurisdiction defined by the charter. Under such circumstances, given the provisions of the Civil Code of Ukraine, the Law of Ukraine "On Business Associations", the Law of Ukraine "On Joint Stock Companies", given the statute of the claimant and internal regulation on the supervisory board, the court found that the Supervisory Board meeting in question was not valid and therefore the decisions adopted at that meeting were invalid. Another case – No. 5023/8094/11 of 15.12.2012. The Kyiv Commercial Court in its decision had referred to the previously valid Regulation on the procedure for obtaining investor proceeds from corporate rights in joint stock companies from December 25, 2001 No.386, and concluded that the payment of accrued dividends is the responsibility of the executive body of the company before its shareholders.

From analysis of judicial practice of commercial courts it may be noted that they do not often openly refer to purposive (teleological) interpretation. This type of interpretation is used when the law is not plain and unambiguous and the court must give effect to the intention of the legislator, rather than determine what the law should or not should be. Because there are many previously mentioned Recommendations, Letters, Clarifications and Resolutions issued by the Highest Commercial Court of Ukraine and the Supreme Court of Ukraine which clarify vulnerable and questionable provisions, lower commercial courts simply apply those recommendations or refer to the case law and do not try to clarify by themselves the goals that were set out by the legislator and interpret legal norms in the light of these goals. As it is pointed out in the literature, in purposive (teleological) interpretation, the text’s “purpose” is the criterion for establishing which of the semantic meanings yields the legal meaning. Therefore, in our opinion, where the rules are of contradictory nature or there is a gap in the legislation the commercial courts should play more functional role than formal in the application and interpretation of company law. The foregoing allows to conclude that Ukrainian commercial courts when resolving the case are guided by the legislation as a primary source, by recommendations and clarifications issued by the higher courts and by the case-law. The systemic, logical and historical methods of interpretation are the most frequently used ones during the interpretation of company law provisions, i.e. formal interpretation prevails over functional.

7.3. Law on the Books vs. Law in Action: the Problem of Legal Change

The paradigm between “law on the books” and “law in action” has existed since the law was created. The questions “what is law?” and “what it ought to be?” as well as the problems of correlation of the “letter” and “spirit” of law will never lose their topicality. As Rudolf von Jhering has said, the law is like “Saturn devouring his own children,” as law is perpetually renewed by contradictory changes.

The term "law on the books" refers to the actual written statute that can be found in the state’s codified law books. "Law in action" refers the role of law, not just as it exists in the statutes and cases, but as it is actually applied in society. The essence of law-in-action, the characteristic most exactly distinguishing it from law in the books, is this; law-in-action is any decision, action or transaction made or contemplated by individuals and organizations as to which law or legal consequences might be relevant and might have an impact on how decisions are made. The decision maker in a particular context is in the foreground deciding what pieces of law are relevant — along with many other factors. Law does not dictate behavior “from the top.” Decision makers determine the significance of law in decisions, actions and transactions.

Obviously, in the sphere of company law the “law on the books” vs. “law in action” dilemma also finds its bright manifestation. In Ukraine one could distinguish many factors that affect the behavior of business persons – either their strict following the letter of law or, on the contrary, ignoring, improving or even circumvention of certain legal regulations. Business players decide by themselves in their ordinary economic life which discretionary rules apply in practice and which of them seem to be ineffective or meaningless and do not deserve to be put in real life. To the latter category one may include provisions on independent members of the board, adoption of internal codes of corporate governance, practicing of active communication with shareholders, establishment of the supervisory board committees, appointment of the corporate secretary, more disclosure than it is mandatory required etc. At the same time, some legal institutes which de jure are not provided by existing law are used or are tried to be used in practice. The most striking example – the creation of the supervisory board in a LLC. Neither the CC nor the Law On Business Associations provide for the possibility of its establishment. But, very frequently the participants of the LLC feel the necessity to establish a control body over the executives. Their main arguments states that despite not being foreseen, it is not forbidden directly by the laws as well. One may interpret such a situation differently, but it certainly does not mean a circumvention of law but its adaptation to the real needs of business participants. The conclusion from this may be only one: in order to put equal sign between “law on the books” and “law in action” the demand for legal rule must exist. Other factors that matter – effective incentives for compliance and resources available for implementation of specific rules in practice.

Decisions are the “action” in law-in-action. And the fundamental reason why law-in-action differs from law-on-the-books, why the influence of any law or rule is indeterminate, is the wide range of influences and internal value judgments impinging on actual decisions in an endless variety of social contexts. When analyzing the problem what influences the decisions of economic subjects, it should be noted that one of the main factors that have the biggest impact on the state of corporate relations in Ukraine today is the role of the government in its relations with corporations. Many companies in Ukraine are controlled either by a narrow range of private shareholders/individuals or the state. In addition, the majority shareholders often hold managerial/executive positions, which may limit the ability of minority shareholders to verify or challenge the decision management. The main problem in this area is the lack of a unified government policy. The companies of oligarchs, transnational corporations as well as state companies [i.e. those having some financial 172 Article 97 of the CC: General meeting of the company’s participants and the executive body shall act as the management bodies of the company unless otherwise established by the law. Articles 58-62 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations” determines the list of governmental bodies of a limited liability company, namely the supreme body – the general meeting, and an executive body - collective (the board) or sole (the director). According to Art. 23 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Associations” the association shall be managed by its bodies, the composition and manner of election (appointment) of which shall be subject to the form of the business association. However, in accordance with subparagraph d) of Article 59 of the Law “On Business Associations”, the competence of general participants’ meeting of limited liability company includes the determination of forms of control over activities of the executive body, creation of appropriate control bodies and definition of their powers. According to Article 145 of the CC, the exclusive competence of the general meeting of a limited liability company includes establishment of forms of control over the activities of the executive body, creation and establishment of powers of the respective control bodies. Article 146 of the CC stipulates that operation of the executive body of a limited liability company shall be controlled per the procedure established by the charter and the law. The general meeting of a limited liability company may form the bodies that constantly control over financial and economic operation of the executive body. Procedure for creation and powers of the control body shall be determined by the general meeting of the company’s participants.

From the aforementioned, it may be possibly concluded that in a limited liability company several control bodies may be established, such as the audit commission and the supervisory board. But, it should be noted once again that the direct possibility of establishment of a supervisory board in a LLC (as it is in case of a JSC) is not provided by the laws.

backing) look to be much less interested in demonstrating high-quality standards. Ukrainian owners unwillingly invite minority shareholders and independent directors to boards. State companies and TNC assets don’t even consider inviting them. Though there are many public companies among the assets of oligarchs and transnational corporations, the management of many of them is ready to communicate with “ordinary” shareholders only with the main shareholder’s approval.\textsuperscript{175}

Good law without its proper enforcement remains only on paper and has no chances to regulate relations “in action”. The most common complaint of the shareholders in Ukraine is that the enforcement of the laws is to the certain extent ineffective. In fact, empirical analysis suggests that there is little correlation between the level of legal protection afforded by statutes on the one hand, and measures for the effectiveness of legal institutions on the other.\textsuperscript{176} Ukraine today may borrow the most effective corporate solutions but if shareholder rights are systematically violated and Ukraine does not introduce adequate measures for the effectiveness and reliability of the judiciary and administrative institutions, then these solutions remain only “on paper” and do not find their real expression. It should be taken into account that according to the NCSSM the number of written and oral complaints from investors in 2012 was amounted to 3059\textsuperscript{177}. Moreover, 70% of all complaints were related to the violation of minority shareholders’ rights by the company’s management. Among the most typical violations were:

- violations of the right to equal treatment of all shareholders;
- violations of the right to take part in the management of the company;
- Violations of the right to get information about the company’s activity;
- Violations of the right to receive part of profits as dividends;
- Violations of the rights during the additional issue of shares.

8.1. \textbf{EXAMINATION OF THE SUITABILITY OF THE SELF-ENFORCING COMPANY LAW PARADIGM TO THE UKRAINIAN LEGAL REFORMS}

Despite the large progress over the last ten years, Ukraine as a post-communist country continues to battle with both internal and external demand for competitive commercial environments. Soviet legacy with its inflexible and extensive central planning, relatively low openness to western trade, and a market-unfriendly legal system\textsuperscript{178} has left a significant mark in the development of Ukrainian company law. In the next years Ukraine’s company law is going to be adapted in order to meet the requirements of European Union law since Ukraine as the aspiring state have taken an obligation to accept the EU legal framework “off the shelf”. In spite of this, a troublesome question remains to exist: what kind of company law should govern companies in developing and transition countries like Ukraine? Is there a model of company law that would perfectly fit into the conditions and processes in developing countries and emerging markets, and, if the answer is positive, how to create such a model? These questions remain to be open and require further analysis.

It is obvious that company law in an emerging economy must address a broader set of goals, and operate within a far less evolved market and legal infrastructure, than company law in a developed economy. As it is noted in the literature, emerging economies should not simply copy the corporate laws of developed economies because these laws depend upon highly evolved market, legal, and governmental institutions and cultural norms that often do not exist in emerging economies. For example, German corporate law is adapted to strong banks and labor unions, while American - to strong capital markets, weak financial institutions, and strong corporate managers. Thus, corporate law must be designed substantially from scratch to work within the infrastructure available precisely in an emerging market.

When designing particular law, two general approaches are possible: the “prohibitory model” that “bars a wide variety of suspect corporate behavior in considerable detail” and prescribes almost every aspect of corporate activity in the laws, and the “enabling model” which is based on wide dispositiveness and discretion of the parties. The prohibitive model is familiar from nineteenth-century corporation statutes in the United States and Great Britain and, to some extent, from European corporate codes and emerging market corporate codes today, when the enabling model is the product of the twentieth century and now is widespread among the developed markets.

It is needless to say that the company laws of emerging economies have a tendency to a different balance between enabling and restrictive provisions than do the laws of developed economies. Minority shareholders in countries like Ukraine require strong legal protection from insiders because the market control that provide such protection in developed economies and public enforcement are weak. In our opinion, it is obvious that the enabling model are clearly unsuitable for the emerging economies including Ukraine, where transparency and disclosure on the market is not sufficient, financial markets are not competitive with the developed ones, and judicial and law enforcement systems are poor. At the same time, the prohibitory model is not flexible and may impede the development of companies, reduce incentives for the growth and improvement of corporate governance, despite being, actually, a good guarantee of property rights protection for the investors.

179 Ibid.
(presenting the principles of a new corporate law for Russia). The project of privatizing the Russian economy and establishing self-enforcing corporate governance, however, failed miserably. A culture of extreme self-dealing and corruption was among the major reasons, available at: http://www.usdrinc.com/downloads/A-Self-Enforcing-Model.pdf 181 Ibid.
182 Ibid.
183 Ibid.
184 Supra note 176
As a solution for this dilemma, B. Black and R. Kraakman (1996) have developed a “self-enforcing” approach to drafting company law, which, according to the authors, in emerging economies is the best legal strategy for protecting outside investors in large companies while simultaneously preserving managers’ discretion to invest. The self-enforcing model structures corporate decision making processes to allow large outside shareholders to protect themselves from insider opportunism with minimal resort to legal authority, including the courts and administrative agencies for enforcement. Thus, it is robust even when these resources are weak. The authors emphasizes that in transitional economies, a self-enforcing model of corporate law dominates both the prohibitory model and the enabling model.

The central features of the “self-enforcing” model of company law could be summarized to:

(i) the need to control self-dealing of managers with respect to shareholders; (ii) reliance on procedural protections (such as transaction approval by independent directors, shareholders) rather than on flat prohibitions of suspect categories of transactions; (iii) enforcement through actions by direct participants (shareholders, directors, managers), rather than indirect (judges, regulators, legal and accounting professionals etc.); (iv) usage, whenever possible, of bright-line rules, rather than standards, to define proper and improper behavior; (v) strong legal remedies on paper, to compensate for the low probability that the sanctions will be applied in fact.

It seems that the model of self-enforcing company law may be an appropriate choice for emerging markets to protect minority shareholders and improve overall corporate environment. It should be emphasized that Ukraine’s legislators have been designing some provisions of the Law On JSCs from 2008 based on that model. To be precise, in the beginning these were different variants of one and the same draft law, firstly presented in the fall of 1998, which, actually, was drafted on the base of the model law “On Joint Stock Companies”, drawn up by Professor B. Black and Anna Tarasova based on the aforementioned concept of self-enforcing model, introduced by B.Black and R.Kraakman. But since its first presentation the draft started to live its own life, passing through hands of various initiative groups, undergoing modifications, reductions and mutations. Re-shaping the draft to meet the narrow interests of certain groups in search of political and economic compromises couldn’t but affect the structure of the model and connections between its elements. Thus, after the eight-year period of revisions the draft law lost to a considerable extent the features of self-enforcing model. But from 2008 till now the Law On JSCs has been amended many times and partially turned back towards the self-enforcing approach again.

Thus, as for now, the Ukrainian law “On Joint Stock Companies” is step by step approaching to proper standards of development of company legislation. It dedicates special attention to the protection of the rights of minority shareholders, introducing solutions which acknowledge a need to balance of interests of the majority against those of the minority. A series of generally recognized legal instruments based on the self-enforcing model of company law were introduced into it, namely:

186 Ibid.
187 Ibid.
189 Ibid.
190 Ibid.
• a one share, one vote rule;
• rules on determination of market price;
• cumulative voting rule for election of a supervisory board and an audit committee;
• mergers, liquidations, and other transactions require approval by a supermajority of shares;
• the right of a shareholder to claim buy-out of shares by a company in case of significant changes related to the company’s activity (e.g., reorganization, changes in the share capital, etc.);
• the rules on mandatory bid;
• special requirements to be met by the company to enter into significant transactions and transactions with affiliated parties.

Besides, previously, in Ukraine employees which are simultaneously the shareholders of the company, were vulnerable to having their votes controlled by corporate managers. The Law On JSCS introduced special rules that safeguard the rights of employee-shareholders, namely prohibition to require a shareholder being the company employee to provide information about the way he/she has voted or is going to vote at the general meeting, or the alienation of shares by a shareholder being the company employee or the intent to alienate them, or demand a power of attorney for the participation in the general meeting. In case of violation of this rule, the officer of the company shall be drawn to the administrative and pecuniary liability, dismissed from his position, and the contract governed by the civil law or the labour contract with the said officer shall be terminated.

These and other features of the self-enforcing approach have produced a JSCs law of Ukraine to be novel and modern and familiar for investors and regulators of developed countries. But still, as it was shown in the previous paragraphs, company law of Ukraine requires many reforms and efforts to be devoted. When discussing creating the best model of company law particularly for Ukraine it should be taken into account that political and social instability, weak and corrupted judicial and administrative institutions, poor ownership culture, concentration of capital in the hands of small groups of people, huge number of small shareholders are the defining factors that influence the company law paradigm in Ukraine. While western stock companies, which served as a model for the new Law On JSCs, strive to increase the value of their shares, shareholders in Ukraine have the sole purpose of gaining control over the company and keeping hold of it. Practically all Ukrainian political forces have close connections with large financial and industrial groups that by holding companies, mainly off-shore, control the major part of Ukrainian industry\footnote{Supra note 184}, and all the attempts to improve legislation \textit{de-facto} are to be agreed with them. Self-dealing transactions, opportunism of the managers, “tunneling”, constant attempts to circumvent the laws in order to gain certain profits (for example, tax optimization) are very familiar for Ukrainian company law practice.

Taking these into consideration, the reform process in Ukrainian company law is and will be a time-consuming process involving several relevant factors - level of economic development, political influences, culture and level of knowledge of the judges and officials. Whether the self-enforcing model of company law can play a major role in overcoming Ukraine’s problems and challenges remains to be seen. Without doubts, such a model cannot resolve all problems of company law. Since Ukrainian company law regulations contain many ambiguous provisions (especially in the Economic Code of Ukraine) and gaps, they will have to be explained or filled in by a regulator or court. In such a case the self-enforcing model may be not enough in order to provide real protection for shareholders. Moreover, the effectiveness of such a self-enforcing system in a developing country with very weak judicial enforcement and courts may be simply overrated. But still the self-enforcing approach seems to be the most appropriate for Ukraine since it creates corporate decision making processes that allow minority shareholders to protect themselves by their own voting decisions and by exercising transactional rights. In our opinion, instead of an enabling company law, for the emerging economies a much more mandatory company law regime is more suitable as it provides for a scope of possible behavior and prevents future abuses. Naturally, once the Ukrainian corporate society “grows up”, its corporate culture strengthens and both the executives and shareholders feel and understand the benefits from obeying procedures required by the laws, the market constraints and a sophisticated judiciary develop to limit opportunism by managers and large shareholders, the self-enforcement regime may gradually be weakened and some elements from the enabling model be added. As for now, Ukraine has not reached yet such level of culture, both legal and corporate, that will allow to “untie the hands” for managers and majority shareholders. Moreover, company law provisions in Ukraine should be more precise as vague and unstable standards will rarely be understood and followed unlike the explicit instructions. From that point of view all discrepancies and inconsistencies should be eliminated from company legislation of Ukraine.

8.2. TOWARDS COMPETITIVE LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR COMPANIES – BETWEEN BORROWING, LEAPFROGGING, AND INNOVATING

As it is often pointed out in the literature, a country’s company laws, in their entirety, comprise a form of „business constitution“ for all of the participants in the country’s economic life. It is commonly accepted that on a practical level, competitive company law should be straightforward, clear, transparent, universal and, to the extent practicable, adopt a laissez faire attitude towards government regulation of business. In short, company laws should lay out the „rules of the game“ that all participants in a country’s business life will apply consistently, and on which they can depend in conducting their business. The problem lies in defining methods of how to create such a competitive legal framework for companies which will not consist an obstacle for business and economic activities.

At first glance, the borrowing through introducing rules that are applied in foreign countries, where similar problems have already occurred, seems to be a perfect solution due to its simplicity, fastness, popularity and prestige, although the respective rules not always are specifically devised for the recipient country in which they then function. But such an approach leaves many open questions. For example, maybe it is better and more effective to devote significant efforts and resources in order to create some new and extraordinary legal rules perfectly suitable for relevant country, namely to innovate rather than borrow “turnkey solutions”? Maybe it would be much more efficient to use proven solutions and best practices from other countries, which are considered to be leading and developed? Should we develop company law legislation gradually, step by step, without any haste or maybe we should leapfrog some phases and apply the most advanced revolutionary solutions from the examples of Western countries that in one fell swoop are able to put Ukraine on the same level as the EU member states? All these questions are of significant importance when modeling the new system of company law for particular country, in our case – for Ukraine.

Alan Watson has noticed that all changes in legal systems are the result of borrowing. This is true both for the Western world’s private law of Roman Civil law and English Common law”. Obviously, borrowing is the fastest way of creating the new legislation. Transplant could be considered as solutions of good quality which are internationally accepted and attractive for investors. But this cannot eliminate their serious dangers, which are concentrated around two questions: firstly, whether or not the legislation is needed at all, and secondly, whether the transplanted regulation fits into the recipient legal system. Thus, legal transplants pose a two-fold efficiency problem. Even if they meet the efficiency criteria for market-supporting regulation, they still have to pass the reality test within the socio-economic context of the “importing country”.

There are many views on the question what defines the success of borrowing. Actually, Watson in his work does not offer a detailed explanation why lawmakers adopt foreign legal concepts when domestic laws are unable to cope with economic change. He rejects socio-economic analysis. At the same time, LaPorta/Lopez-de-Silanez/Shleifer/Vishny pointed a radical departure: the historical origin of a country’s legal rules is highly correlated with its current regulatory climate and economic outcomes. Kahn-Freund identified a two-step process to determine the viability of a proposed transplant. The first step is to determine the relationship between the legal rule to be transplanted and the socio-political structure of the donor state. The second step involves comparing the socio-political environment of the donor and receiving state.

In our opinion, both socio-economic analysis and assessment of the past and present legal and political environment are important. As was mentioned earlier, Ukraine had inherited most of its regulations from native continental system, although there are many traces of the Anglo-Saxon one as well. Therefore, we believe that the donor legal system is not as much important as a very transplant per se, thus, a special attention should be paid to the issue of how the respected transplant corresponds to the local environment. It should be properly adapted into the national social, economic and regulatory conditions.

It should be emphasized that Ukraine’s company law has been developing gradually: from poor regulations on the minorities’ protection, vide scope of managers’ competence, absence of the supervisory board etc., to a quite competitive and protective framework which is able to attract the investors and help the Ukrainian economy to survive. Probably, it

Three factors should be considered: (1) the macro-political structure of the donor state [democracy or dictatorship?]; (2) the distribution of power within the political system; and (3) the role played by organized interests could be labeled as “leapfrogging”, the concept of which explains how to accelerate the development by skipping inferior, less efficient, and more expensive solutions and move directly to more advanced ones\textsuperscript{200}. In every case, the effect could be achieved only through the borrowing of the most effective provisions outside and adopting such legislative institutions which are tested and proven in other social systems to a local one. Thus, in the transition process the phenomenon of legal transplantation is unavoidable. Moreover, the reception of foreign law is desirable and justified in many cases, however, it must be harmonized with the real needs of the particular target society. It is very doubtful (but, actually, desirable) that nowadays a country could invent its own legal decisions completely autonomously without any spying and reflection to the external sources and trends. All this does not prevent a state from having particular and special legal solutions which are not widespread and mostly criticized abroad, like a 60\% quorum requirement in Ukrainian companies.

Another reason for the implementation of foreign legal rules or institutions into a national legal system could be the demand for the harmonization of laws\textsuperscript{201}. Undoubtedly, the recent events have demonstrated Ukraine’s abilities as a future Member State of the European Union. Thus, Ukrainian company law needs to be changed and become a part of the process of harmonisation and unification with laws of the Member States. Then, one could note that the problem of how to create a competitive company law is removed as now there is only one “lighthouse” on which the Ukraine’s lawmakers should focus – the EU Acquis.
In our opinion, the law of the EU could serve as an excellent solution when establishing a competitive company law framework in Ukraine. Differences between legal regimes hinder commercial cooperation between companies of Ukraine and EU member states, and the desire to overcome them operates as a powerful incentive to accelerate legal reforms in Ukraine.

In such a case the problem lies rather in proper application of law in the judicial, arbitral and business practice than in existence of adequate regulations. It is generally accepted that every statute is as good as its application\textsuperscript{202}. Good application of the law can eliminate to a great deal its contradictions, inconsistencies that are understandable for newer areas of law and legal institutes, and also logically originate in part from the abstract nature of the regulations as opposed to concrete business needs\textsuperscript{203}. Due to weak institutions the enforcement of transplanted law in Ukraine is often problematic and Ukraine should pay special attention to this issue during harmonizing its legislation with the Acquis.

Since 1991, when Ukraine gained independence, the European Union and Ukraine have developed an increasingly dynamic relationship. The EU technical and financial cooperation supports Ukrainian ambitions to get closer to the European Union. The new Association Agreement of 2014 has enhanced the co-operation between EU and Ukraine, inter alia, in all areas of company law, corporate governance, accounting and auditing issues through exchanging experience and information about their best practice and their current regulatory frameworks.

The development of a market economy has influenced the improvement of the company legislation of Ukraine. However, it still remains imperfect and differs from the company legislation of European countries, although various repeated attempts are being undertaken by the state in order to normalize and re-develop the mechanisms of its functioning. Much has been done, but much left to do. The most urgent task is to harmonize the company, corporate governance, accounting and auditing legislation of Ukraine with the EU Acquis. The system of national laws is complicated and unstable, with specific legislative provisions being inconsistent and in some cases also controversial. The provisions of the different legislative acts in the sphere of company can put obstacles in the way of enterprises development and the investment climate of Ukraine.

The distinctive feature of the Ukrainian corporate legislation is preservation of conceptual dualism of parallel existence of the legislative acts based on outdated soviet-time concepts (Economic Code of Ukraine) and relatively new legislation based on the European practice (“Law on Joint-Stock Companies”, and Civil Code). Simultaneous existence of two conceptually incompatible systems of legal persons, aggravated by use of many common terms with different meaning, prevents formation of a clear concept of a legal person. The conceptual dualism hinders development of company legislation and precludes formation of consistent and sustainable judicial practice. The new Law on Joint Stock Companies and its later amendments improved the present legislation, however there are still many areas that should be improved in order to be in compliance with the EU Directives. Therefore, the positive experiences and effective legal solutions of member countries of the European Union (EU) can be used to contribute to the integration of Ukraine in this area within the process of unification and harmonization of the company, corporate governance, accounting and audit legislation of Ukraine.

To unify the legislation of Ukraine it is necessary to define one legislative approach to the classification of the "Types and Organizational Forms of Business Companies".
business companies of the following types can operate in Ukraine depending on forms of ownership envisaged by the law:

- a private enterprise operating on the basis of private property of individuals or a business entity (legal entity);
- an enterprise based on the collective property (collectively owned enterprise);
- a community-owned enterprise operating on the basis of the property owned by a territorial community;
- a state-owned enterprise operating on the basis of the state-owned property;
- an enterprise based on the mixed form of property (based on the combination of property of various forms of ownership).

Other types of enterprises envisaged by law can also operate in Ukraine.

Constitution of Ukraine, of the Civil Code of Ukraine there are only private, state and communal forms of ownership. The definition of "mixed and collective form of ownership" cannot be found in any legislative act of Ukraine except Commercial Code of Ukraine. In addition, the specified provisions refer only to the participation in the establishment of the business company by participants of different forms of ownership.

To unify the legislation of Ukraine it is necessary to exclude the provision about "mixed and collective form of ownership".

Definition of "Foreign Enterprise"
n/a | According to part 2 of the Art. 63, an enterprise, the charter capital of which is composed of foreign investments for one hundred percent, shall be deemed to be a foreign enterprise. | n/a | n/a | An enterprise, the charter capital of which is composed of foreign investments for one hundred percent, shouldn't be deemed to be a "foreign enterprise", because such enterprise is established and registered under Ukrainian legislation. ### Article 142. Agreement on Limited Liability Company Foundation

1. Shall a limited liability company be founded by several persons, these persons, if required to determine their interrelations, conclude an agreement in writing to specify the foundation procedure of the company, conditions of their joint activity on creation of the company, the charter capital amount, participatory interest of each participant in the charter capital as well as terms of and procedure for making contributions and other conditions.

2. The foundation agreement of the limited liability company shall not be deemed an incorporation document. It is not required to submit this document for the state registration of the company.

Article 143. Charter of Limited Liability Company

1. An incorporation document of the limited liability company shall be a charter. In addition to the data indicated in Article 88 of this Code, the charter shall determine conditions regarding: amount of the charter capital; determining participatory interests of each participant; composition and competence of governing bodies and procedure for decision-making by these bodies; amount and procedure for reserve capital creation; procedure for assignment (transfer) of participatory interests in the charter capital.
2. The charter of the limited liability company with all subsequent amendments and additions shall be kept with the body that performed its state registration and be open for familiarization.

Article 144. Charter Capital of Limited Liability Company

1. Charter capital of the limited liability company shall be composed of participants’ contributions. The amount of the charter capital is equal to the sum of such contributions value. The charter capital determines a minimum amount of the company property that secures interests of its creditors.

2. A participant to the limited liability company cannot be released from the obligation to make a contribution to the charter capital of the company, including by offsetting claims against the company.

3. The charter capital of the limited liability company shall be subject to payment by its participant before the end of the first year from the date of state registration. Provided that participants do not pay (paid not in full) their contributions before the end of the first year from the date of state registration, the general participants’ meeting shall adopt one of the following decisions:
   - to exclude those participants from the company, which did not pay (paid not in full) their contributions, and to determine the order of new distribution of participatory interests in the charter capital;
   - to decrease the charter capital and to determine the order of new distribution of participatory interests in the charter capital;
   - to liquidate the company.

Amendments to the charter relating to the change of charter capital and/or change in composition of participants are subject to the state registration in accordance with the law. The decision on decrease of the charter capital of the company shall be sent to all creditors of the company by post within three days from the date of its adoption.

4. If following the second or any subsequent fiscal year the value of the net assets of the limited liability company turns out to be less than the registered charter capital, the company shall be obliged to decrease its charter capital and register respective changes to the charter per the established procedure, unless participants decide to make additional contributions. Provided that the value of net assets becomes less than the minimum amount of charter capital established by the law, the company shall be subject to liquidation.

5. A decrease of the charter capital of the limited liability company shall be allowed only after notification of all its creditors under the procedure provided by the law. In this case the creditors are entitled to... demand early termination or fulfillment of respective obligations of the company and compensation for losses incurred to them.

6. An increase of the charter capital of the limited liability company shall be allowed only after investing all contributions in full by participants. The procedure for making additional contributions shall be determined by the law and the charter of the company.

Article 145. Governance of Limited Liability Company

1. The supreme body of the limited liability company shall be a general participants' meeting.
2. An executive body (collective or single-member) shall be formed in the limited liability company to perform day-to-day management of its activity. The executive body is accountable to the general participants' meeting. The executive body of the company can be also elected not only from participants of the company.
3. The executive body competence of the limited liability company, procedure of decision making and procedure of acting on behalf of the company, shall be established by this Code, other laws and charter of the company.
4. The exclusive competence of the general participants' meeting of the limited liability company shall include:
   1) to determine main directions of activities of the limited liability company and to approve its plans and reports on their fulfillment;
   2) to amend the charter of the company and to change the amount of charter capital;
   3) to appoint and to recall executive body of the company;
   4) to establish forms of supervision over activity of the executive body, to appoint and determine authorities of respective supervisory bodies;
   5) to approve annual reports and accounting balance sheets, to distribute the profits and losses of the company;
   6) to decide upon acquisition of participant's participatory interest by the company;
   7) to exclude a participant from the company;
   8) to decide upon liquidation of the company, to appoint liquidation commission, to approve a liquidation balance sheet.

Other issues can be attributed to the exclusive competence of the general meeting by the charter of the company and the law. Issues attributed to the exclusive competence of the general participants' meeting of the company cannot be delegated to the executive body of the company.

The priority and procedure of convening the general meeting shall be established by the charter of the company and by the law.
Article 146. Supervision over Executive Body of Limited Liability Company

1. Operation of the executive body of a limited liability company shall be supervised per the procedure established by the charter and the law.
2. The general meeting of the limited liability company can appoint bodies that constantly supervise over financial and economic activity of the executive body.
   Procedure for creation and authorities of the supervisory body shall be determined by the general participants' meeting of the company.
3. To supervise over financial activity of the limited liability company an audit can be appointed pursuant to the decision of general meeting and in other cases established by charter of the company and the law.
4. Audit procedure of activity and accounts of the limited liability company shall be established by the charter of the company and the law.
   On request of any participant of the company annual financial statements of the company can be audited by engaging a professional auditor not related to the company or its participants by property interests.
   Expenditures for such audit shall be charged to the participant who requested the audit, unless otherwise established by charter of the company.
5. Public reporting of the limited liability company about results of its activity is not required, except for cases established by the law.

Article 147. Transfer of Participant's Participatory Interest in Charter Capital of Limited Liability Company to Another Person

1. A participant of the limited liability company is entitled to sell or otherwise assign its participatory interest (a part thereof) in the charter capital to one or several participants of this company.
2. Alienation of its participatory interest (a part thereof) by the participant to third persons shall be admissible, unless otherwise established by charter of the company.
   Participants of the company shall have a preemptive right to buy a participant's participatory interest (a part thereof) pro rata to amounts of their participatory interest, unless the charter of the company or arrangement between participants established another procedure for exercising this right. | 1. The charter capital of joint-stock company shall be composed of participants' contributions made as a result of shares acquisition.
   The charter capital determines a minimum amount of the company property that secures interests of its creditors. It cannot be less than the amount established by the law.
   2. During incorporation of the joint-stock company all its shares shall be distributed among founders through private offering. Public offering of the shares can be made after obtaining a certificate of the first share issue.
   3. If following the second or any subsequent fiscal year the value of the net assets of the joint-stock company turns out to be less than the registered charter capital, the company shall be obliged to decrease its charter capital and register respective changes to the charter per the established procedure, unless participants decide to make additional contributions. Provided that the value of net assets becomes less than the minimum amount of charter capital established by the law, the company shall be subject to liquidation. |

| Art. 19 par. 1. In the case of a serious loss of the subscribed capital, a general meeting of shareholders must be called within the period laid down by the laws of the Member States, to consider whether the company should be wound up or any other measures taken.
  par. 2. The amount of a loss deemed to be serious within the meaning of paragraph 1 may not be set by the laws of Member States at a figure higher than half the subscribed capital. |

| Art. 155 par. 3 CC needs to be adjusted to the requirements of art. 19 Directive

The charter may refer other matters to the general meeting's jurisdiction.

The general meeting shall be considered valid when attended by shareholders with over 60% of votes under the charter.

The general meeting's minutes shall be signed by the chairman and secretary of the meeting and shall be submitted to the joint-stock company's executive body not later than three working days after the end of the meeting.

Article 42. Illegibility of general meeting's decisions

Decisions of the general shareholders meetings on the following matter must be adopted by the majority of 3/4 votes of shareholders participating in the meeting:

a) change of the company's charter;

b) adoption of decisions on termination of the company;

The rest of matters are decided by simple majority of shareholders who take part in the meeting.

Article 43. Calling of the shareholders meeting

Each holder of registered shares shall be notified personally on the general meeting, in accordance with procedures set forth in the charter. In addition, a general notice shall be published by the local press at the company's registered address and in one of the official periodicals run by the Supreme Council of Ukraine, Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine or the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market, specifying the time and place of the general meeting and its agenda. Should the agenda envisage changes in the charter capital, the general notice shall be supplemented with information envisaged by Article 40 hereinbefore. The said notice shall be published at least 45 days prior to the general meeting. In case of need, a repeated notice may be published. The general shareholders meeting shall be held on the territory of Ukraine and, as a rule, at the location of the joint-stock company, except if foreigners, stateless individuals, foreign legal entities, as well as international organizations own 10 per cent of shares of a company as of the date of the general meeting.

Each shareholder shall have the right to submit proposals concerning the general meeting’s agenda, but not later than 30 days prior to the date of the meeting. The executive body shall decide whether or not such proposals will be included in the agenda. Proposals made by shareholders holding over 10% of the votes shall obligatory be entered in the agenda. Decisions on changes in the agenda shall be notified to all shareholders no later than 10 days before the date of the meeting, in accordance with procedures set forth in the charter.

The shareholders must have an opportunity to get acquainted with documents related to the agenda of the meeting.

The general meeting has no right to make decisions on matters that were not included in its agenda.

Article 44. Voting at general shareholders meeting

Voting at general shareholders meetings is carried out on the principle one share - one vote.

The representative can be permanent or appointed for certain terms. The shareholder has the right to change his representative in the highest body any time, after informing the executive body of joint-stock company about it.
Article 45. Frequency of calling the shareholders’ meeting. Extraordinary meeting

The general shareholders meeting is called at least once a year unless otherwise foreseen by the charter of the company.

The extraordinary meeting is called in case of insolvency of the company, as well as on the occurrence of circumstances indicated by the charter of the company, and in any other case when it is in demand of the interests of the joint-stock company.

An extraordinary meeting shall also be convened by the executive body if so requested in writing by the supervisory council of a joint-stock company or the revision commission. The executive body of the company shall decide on the convocation of such extraordinary meeting, along with the agenda proposed by the supervisory board of a joint-stock company or revision commission, within 20 days from the date of receipt of such written request.

Shareholders holding more than 10% of votes shall have the right to demand convocation of an extraordinary meeting any time and for any reasons whatsoever. Should the board fail to comply within 20 days, these shareholders shall be within their right to convene an extraordinary meeting, as per Section 1, Article 43 hereinbefore.

Article 46. Supervisory board of a Joint-stock Company

Company participants, which have not made their contributions in full, shall be jointly liable under the company's liabilities within the scope of the value of the non-contributed portion of the contribution of each participant.

Article 51. Features of the charter documents of limited liability companies

Charter documents of a limited liability company, in addition to the information specified in Article 4 of this Law, must contain the information about the percentage of interests of each participant, the amount, composition and the procedure of making contributions by them, the amount and the procedure of the formation of the reserve fund, the procedure of the transfer of interests in the charter capital.

Changes in value of assets assigned as a contribution and additional contributions of participants do not influence on the amount of their share in the charter capital determined by the charter documents unless otherwise foreseen by the charter documents.

Article 52. Charter capital of limited liability company

Charter capital of a limited liability company must be paid in by participants of the company within one year following state registration of the company.

If participants have failed to make contributions within one year following state registration of the company (failed to make them in full), the general participants meeting shall make one of the following decisions:

- to exclude the participants, that failed to make their contributions (failed to make them in full), and to specify the procedure of the re-allocation of interests in the charter capital;
- to reduce the charter capital and to specify the procedure of the re-allocation of interests in the charter capital;
- to liquidate the company.

Changes to the charter associated with the modification of the charter capital and/or the changes in participants shall require state registration in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law.

A decision to reduce the charter capital of the company shall be sent by mail to all creditors of the company within three days following making of the decision.

Participants of limited liability company receive certificate of the partnership upon complete payment of their contributions.

Reduction in the charter capital of a limited liability company shall be allowed after the notification of all its creditors according to the procedure specified by the charter. In this case, the creditors shall have the right to require the early termination or performance of the relevant liabilities of the company, and reimbursement for their losses.

The increase in the charter capital of a limited liability company shall be allowed after all its participants have made their contributions in full.

Article 53. Transfer of participatory interest (a part thereof) of a participant in the charter capital of a limited liability company to another person

Participant of a limited liability company shall have the right to sell or otherwise transfer its interest (a part thereof) in the charter capital to one or several participants of the company.

The alienation of its participatory interest (a part thereof) by a participant of a limited liability company to third parties shall be allowed, unless otherwise provided by the charter of the company.

Participants of the company shall enjoy the pre-emptive right to buy the participatory interest (a part thereof) of the participant in proportion to the values of their participatory interests, unless the charter of the company or an agreement among participants has established a different procedure for the enjoyment of the said right. The purchase shall be effected for the price and on conditions, at/on which the participatory interest (a part thereof) has been offered for sale to third parties. If the participants of the company fail to make use of their pre-emptive right during one month of the date of notification of the participant's intention to sell the interest (a part thereof) or during another term instituted by the charter of the company or an agreement between the participants thereof, then the participatory interest (a part thereof) of the participant may be alienated to a third party.

The participatory interest of a participant of a limited liability company may be alienated before the full payment thereof only to the extent of its having been paid.
In case of the acquisition of the participatory interest (a part thereof) of the participant by the limited liability company itself, it must sell it to other participants or third parties during the period not exceeding one year, or reduce its charter capital in accordance with Article 52 hereof. During the said period, the allocation of the profit and voting and quorum definition at the supreme body shall be carried out disregarding the participatory interest acquired by the company.

Article 54. Payment of assets' value following exit of the participant from the limited liability company

Following exit of a participant from the limited liability company the letter must pay the value of the part of company's assets proportionally to the participatory interest of the exiting participant in the charter capital. The payment is made following adoption of annual report for the year when the exiting participant has left the company, and within 12 months from the day of the exit. On request of the participant and on agreement with the company the contribution can be reimbursed fully or partially in the natural form.

The exiting participant is paid his share in the income gained by the company in the year of exit. The assets assigned by the participant to the company for use only should be returned in the natural form without compensation.

Article 55. Successors (heirs) of the participant of limited liability company

Successors (heirs) enjoy the priority right to joint the company in case of re-organization of participant - legal entity or death of an individual - participant of the company.

In case of refuse of the successor (heir) to join the limited liability company or refuse of the company to accept the successor (heir) the latter is given the share in assets in the form of money or property that belonged to re-organized or liquidated legal entity (deceased individual), the value of which is... determined as of the day of re-organization or liquidation (death) of the participant. In this cases the amount of charter capital of the partnership must be reduced.

Article 56. The term in which the decision on reduction of charter capital of limited liability company comes into force

Participants of the general participants' meeting should be registered notifying the number of votes each participant has. This list must be signed by the head and secretary of the meeting.

Any participant of a limited liability company has the right to demand the consideration of the matter on the general participants' meeting if the matter was suggested not later than 25 days before the beginning of the meeting.

In cases foreseen by the constituent documents or by approved procedures of the company, it is allowed to adopt decisions by absentee voting. In this case the participants should receive the draft of the decision, and they should inform in a written form on their opinion as to the matter. In 10 days term from the moment of receiving the information from the last voting participant, all of the participants should be informed on adopted decision by the head.

Chairman of the general participants' meeting organizes keeping of the minutes. Minutes book must be in disposal to the participant at any moment. Certified extracts from the minutes book must be given to the participants upon their request.

Article 61. Periodicity of convening of general participants' meeting of a limited liability company. Extraordinary meeting.

General participants' meeting of a limited liability company is convened not less than twice a year unless otherwise foreseen by the constituent documents.

Extraordinary meeting is called by the head of the company in case of occurrence of the circumstances mentioned in the charter documents, in case of insolvency of the partnership, as well as in any other case when the interests of the company as a whole demand it, particularly if there is a danger of drastic reduction of charter capital.

General participants meeting of a limited liability company must also be convened on demand of executive body.

Participants of the company owning in total more than 20% of votes are entitled to demand convening of an extraordinary general participants' meeting at any time and on any reason concerning the company's activity. If in 25 days the head of the company has not fulfilled the above mentioned demand, the participants have the right to call the meeting themselves.

Participants should be informed about holding of the general participants meeting of a company in a way foreseen by the charter notifying the time, place and agenda of the meeting. The announcement should be made not less than 30 days before convening of the general assembly. Any participant of a limited liability company has the right to demand the consideration of the matter on the general participants' meeting if the matter was suggested not later than 25 days before the beginning of the meeting. Not later than 7 days before the general participants meeting the participants of the company must be given an opportunity to get acquainted with the documents that are included into the agenda of the meeting. Decisions on matters not included into agenda can be made only upon agreement of all of the participants present on the meeting.

Article 62. Executive body of limited liability company Limited liability company establishes an executive body: either collegial (management board) or sole (director). The Management board is headed by general director. Members of the executive body can be individuals not being participants of the company.

Management board decides on all issues of company's activity except for matters that are under exclusive competence of general participants' meeting. General participants' meeting of a company can make a decision to transfer part of its authorities to the competence of the management board (director).

Management board is accountable to the general participants’ meeting and ensure the implementation of its decisions. The management board (director) has no right to make decisions obligatory for the participants of the company.

Management board (director) acts on behalf of the company within the limits determined by this Law and the charter documents.

General director has the right to act on behalf of the company without power of attorney. Other members of the management board can also be provided with such right.

The general director (director) cannot be the chairman of the general participants meeting at the same time.

Article 63. Control over the activity of the management board (director) of limited liability company

The control over the activity of the management board (director) of limited liability company is carried out by revision commission which is established by the general participants meeting of the company from among themselves, in number foreseen by the charter documents, but not less than 3 persons. Members of the management board (director) cannot be members of the revision commission.

Audit of activity of the management board (director) of the company is carried out by the revision commission upon instruction of the meeting, on their own initiative, or on demand.
of the company's participants. The revision commission has the right to demand from the officials of the company the submission of all necessary materials, book-keeping or other documents, and personal explanations.

The revision commission reports on results of conducted revisions to the highest body of the company.

The revision commission makes conclusions on the basis of annual reports and balance sheets. The general participants' meeting of a company cannot approve the balance of the company without conclusions of the revision commission.

The revision commission has the right to demand convening of the extraordinary general participants' meeting of a company if the danger to the essential interests of the company appears or abuses by the officials are discovered.

Article 64. Exclusion from the limited liability company

A participant of a limited liability company which systematically ignores its duties or fulfils them not in a proper way, or else interferes with reaching the aims of the company with his actions can be excluded from the company on the ground of a decision supported by participants owning more than 50 per cent of the total number of votes of the company's participants. In this case this participant (or representative) does not participate in voting.

Exclusion of participant from the company entails the consequences foreseen by Articles 54 and 55 of this Law.

Article 65. Concept of additional liability company

Additional liability company is a limited liability company the charter (combined) capital of which is divided into shares in amount determined by the charter documents. The participants of such company are responsible for its debts with their contributions to the charter (combined) capital, and, in case of insufficiency of this sums, with their property, in addition, in amount equal for all participants correspondent to the contributions of each participant.
The limit of responsibility of the participant is foreseen by the charter documents.

11. A legal entity shall submit (send) a registration card, confirming the data on the legal entity, to the state registrar to confirm the data on the legal entity annually during the month, following the date of state registration, starting from the next year.

In case if the legal entity, with an approved statute by the founders (participants), has made decision to continue its activity on the basis of a model statute, a legal entity shall submit to the state registrar the decision, the registration card to confirm the data on the legal entity with an appropriate mark and a duplicate of the original statute for putting a stamp that a legal entity carries out activity on the basis of a model statute from a proper date. This stamp shall be also put by the state registrar on the duplicate of the original statute of the legal entity that shall be stored in the registration files.

In case if the founders (participants) of the legal entity, operating on the basis of a model statute, make decision to continue the activity on the basis of drawn up incorporation documents, the legal entity shall submit the decision and registration card to confirm the data on the legal entity with an appropriate mark to the state registrar. The legal entity shall be considered the one, operating on the basis of foundation documents from the moment of state registration of amendments to the foundation documents of the legal entity in the order, prescribed by Article 29 of the present Law.

12. In case of non-delivery, within the term, prescribed by Part eleven of the present Article, of the registration card on confirmation of data on the legal entity, the state registrar shall send by posting, within five working days from the date, prescribed for submission of a registration card, a notification to the legal entity as for necessity to submit the mentioned registration card to the state registrar.

In case if the state registrar receives from the Incomes and Duties body a notification of the prescribed standard on the absence of the legal entity by its location, the state registrar shall send by posting, within five working days from the date of receipt of the mentioned notification, a message as for the necessity to submit a registration card to the state registrar.
13. The state registrar shall shelve the registration card on confirmation of data on the legal entity, inform the requestor about it in the cases, envisaged by Part 6 of the present Article, and in the order, prescribed by Part seven of the present Article.

14. In case of failure to submit by the legal entity, within a month from the date of receipt of the appropriate notification, a registration card on confirmation of data on the legal entity, the state registrar shall introduce an entry to the Unified State Register on absence of confirmation of these data by the date, set for the next submission of the registration card on confirmation of data on the legal entity.
If the state registrar receives the posting back, the state registrar shall introduce an entry to the Unified State Register on absence of the legal entity by its location.

15. In case of loss of the original foundation documents, the founders (participants) of the legal entity or the authorized body or person shall submit to the state registrar by the location of registration files of the legal entity an application on the loss of the original foundation documents of the prescribed standard.
The following shall be added to the application:
document, confirming payment for publishing a report on loss of the original foundation documents in the specialized print mass media; certificate, issued by a police department, on the registration of an application on the loss of the original foundation documents.
If an application on loss of the original foundation documents is submitted by a person, which according to the data, introduced to the Unified State Register, is eligible to perform legal actions on behalf of the legal entity without power of attorney, a passport of the citizen of Ukraine or the passport document of the foreigner shall be additionally shown to the state registrar.
If the documents are submitted by a representative of the legal entity, a passport of the citizen of Ukraine or the passport document of the foreigner and a document, certifying the authorities of a representative shall be additionally shown to the state registrar.
The state registrar shall be entitled to shelve the application on loss of the original foundation documents, if the application is drawn up with breach of the requirements, prescribed by Parts one and two of the Article 8 of the present Law, or if the documents, prescribed by the present Part, are not added to the application, or if the state registrar has received a court decision on denial of registration actions. In case of shelving the application on loss of the documents, a corresponding notification with the statement of the grounds for shelving the application on loss of the original foundation documents shall be handed (sent by posting with the list of inventory) to the requestor by the state registrar within the next working day from the day of its receipt. In case of absence of the grounds for shelving the application on loss of the original foundation documents, the state registrar shall introduce an entry to the Unified State Register on loss of the original foundation documents of the legal entity within the next working day after the date of its receipt.

shares held by them without the consent of other shareholders of the company.

2. The charter of a private joint stock company may provide for the pre-emptive right of its shareholders to the acquisition of shares in the company offered by the holder thereof for sale to a third party. If the charter of a private joint stock company provides for the pre-emptive right of its shareholders to the purchase of shares offered by the holder thereof for sale to a third party, the said pre-emptive right shall be exercised in accordance with parts three to six of this article. The procedure of the exercise of the pre-emptive right of shareholders to the acquisition of shares in a private joint stock company offered by the holder thereof for disposal (other than by way of sale) to a third party shall be specified by the charter of the said company.

3. Shareholders of a private joint stock company shall enjoy the pre-emptive right to the acquisition of shares sold by other shareholders of the company at the price and on conditions offered by the shareholder to a third party in proportion to the number of shares held by each shareholder. The pre-emptive right of shareholders to the acquisition of shares sold by other shareholders of the company shall remain in force for two months since the date of the company's receipt of the shareholder's notice of intent to sell shares, unless a shorter period is prescribed by the company charter.

The validity period of the pre-emptive right envisaged by the company charter may not be shorter than 20 days of receipt of the relevant notice by the company. The pre-emptive right period shall be terminated, if written statements of the use or the waiver of the pre-emptive share purchase right have been received before the expiry of the said period from all shareholders of the company.

4. A shareholder of a private joint stock company intent on selling his shares to a third party must notify thereof in writing the rest of the company shareholders with the indication of the price and other conditions of the sale of shares. The notification of company shareholders shall be carried out via the company. On receipt of a written notice from a shareholder intent on selling the shares to a third party, the company must send copies of the notice to all other shareholders of the company within two business days. The notification... of shareholders shall be carried out at the expense of the shareholder intent on selling the shares, unless otherwise provided by the company charter.

If shareholders of the private joint stock company fail to make use of the pre-emptive right to the acquisition of all shares offered for sale within the time frame prescribed by this Law or the charter of the joint stock company, the shares can be sold to a third party at a price and on conditions notified to shareholders of the company.

5. In case of the violation of the pre-emptive right to the acquisition of shares envisaged by this article, any shareholder of the company shall have the right to require the rights and duties of the buyer of shares to be vested in them by way of judicial procedure within three months of the date, when the shareholder in question became aware or should have become aware of such transgression.

6. No cession of the said pre-emptive right to other parties shall be permitted.

7. The said pre-emptive right of shareholders of a private company shall not apply to events of the conveyance of the ownership of securities of the said company as a result of the inheritance or the succession.

8. In case of the emergence of the right to collect shares in a private joint stock company due to their being pledged, the shares shall be disposed of subject to the exercise of the pre-emptive right of shareholders to the acquisition of such shares.

company shall be made by the supervisory council of the company (in the course of the establishment of the company, the said decision shall be made by the meeting of founders or, in case of the establishment of a joint stock company by a single person, by the founder in person).

2. The market value of equity securities shall be determined as follows:

1) for issued securities not circulating in stock exchanges as the value of securities determined in accordance with the legislation on the valuation of property, property interests and professional valuation activities;

2) for issued securities circulating in stock exchanges as the value of securities determined in accordance with the legislation on the securities and the stock market.

3. The supervisory council or the general shareholder meeting, if the company charter does not provide for the establishment of the supervisory council (or the constituting meeting in the course of the establishment of the company) shall approve the market value of the property (including securities) determined in accordance with parts one and two of this article. The approved value of the property may not differ by more than 10 per cent from the value determined by the appraiser. If the approved market value of the property differs from the property value determined in accordance with the legislation on valuation of property, property interests and professional valuation activities, the supervisory council or the general shareholder meeting, if the company charter does not provide for the establishment of the supervisory council (or the constituting meeting in the course of the establishment of the company), shall substantiate its decision.

authorised to commence business, by one or more independent experts appointed or approved by an administrative or judicial authority. Such experts may be natural persons as well as legal persons and companies or firms under the laws of each Member State.

2. The experts’ report referred to in paragraph 1 shall contain at least a description of each of the assets comprising the consideration as well as of the methods of valuation used and shall state whether the values arrived at by the application of those methods correspond at least to the number and nominal value or, where there is no nominal value, to the accountable par and, where appropriate, to the premium on the shares to be issued for them.

3. The experts' report shall be published in the manner laid down by the laws of each Member State, in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.

See also par. 4 for possible opt-outs.

art. 11

1. Member States may decide not to apply Article 10(1), (2) and (3) of this Directive where, upon a decision of the administrative or management body, transferable securities as defined in point 18 of Article 4(1) of Directive 2004/39/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 21 April 2004 on markets in financial instruments (11) or money-market instructions as defined in point 19 of Article 4(1) of that Directive are contributed as consideration other than in cash, and those securities or money-market instruments are valued at the weighted average price at which they have been traded on one or more regulated markets as defined in point 14 of Article 4(1) of that Directive during a sufficient period, to be determined by national law, preceding the effective date of the contribution of the respective consideration other than in cash.

However, where that price has been affected by exceptional circumstances that would significantly change the value of the asset at the effective date of its contribution, including situations where the market for such transferable securities or money-market instruments has become illiquid, a revaluation shall be carried out on the initiative and under the responsibility of the administrative or management body.

For the purposes of such revaluation, Article 10(1), (2) and (3) shall apply.

2. Member States may decide not to apply Article 10(1), (2) and (3) where, upon a decision of the administrative or management body, assets other than the transferable securities and money-market instruments referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article are contributed as consideration other than in cash.
in cash which have already been subject to a fair value opinion by a recognised independent expert and where the following conditions are fulfilled:

(a) the fair value is determined for a date not more than six months before the effective date of the asset contribution; and

(b) the valuation has been performed in accordance with generally accepted valuation standards and principles in the Member State which are applicable to the kind of assets to be contributed.

In the case of new qualifying circumstances that would significantly change the fair value of the asset at the effective date of its contribution, a revaluation shall be carried out on the initiative and under the responsibility of the administrative or management body.

For the purposes of such revaluation, Article 10(1), (2) and (3) shall apply.

In the absence of such a revaluation, one or more shareholders holding an aggregate percentage of at least 5% of the company's subscribed capital on the day the decision on the increase in the capital is taken may demand a valuation by an independent expert, in which case Article 10(1), (2) and (3) shall apply.

Such shareholder(s) may submit a demand up until the effective date of the asset contribution, provided that, at the date of the demand, the shareholder(s) in question still hold(s) an aggregate percentage of at least 5% of the company's subscribed capital as it was on the day the decision on the increase in the capital was taken.

3. Member States may decide not to apply Article 10(1), (2) and (3) where, upon a decision of the administrative or management body, assets other than the transferable securities and money-market instruments referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article are contributed as consideration other than in cash whose fair value is derived by individual asset from the statutory accounts of the previous financial year provided that the statutory accounts have been subject to an audit in accordance with Directive 2006/43/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2006 on statutory audits of annual accounts and consolidated accounts.

The second to fifth subparagraphs of paragraph 2 of this Article shall apply mutatis mutandis.

National Commission for Securities and Stock Market in concurrence with the State Property Fund of Ukraine.

5. A joint stock company shall be established in the following stages:

1) decision of the meeting of founders to establish a joint stock company and to perform the closed (private) placement of shares;

2) submission of the application and all necessary documents for the registration of the issue of shares to the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market;

3) registration of the issue of shares by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market, and the issue of the provisional share issue registration certificate;

4) assignment of the international securities identification number to shares;

5) entry into a contract with a securities depository for the service of the issue of shares or a contract with the registrar of the registered securities for the maintenance of the register of holders of registered securities;

6) closed (private) placement of shares among founders of the company;

7) payment of the full par value of shares by founders;

8) the approval of results of the closed (private) share placement among founders of the company by the constituting meeting of the company, the approval of the charter of the company, and the other decisions envisaged by law;

9) registration of the company and its charter with the state registration agencies;

10) submission of the closed (private) share placement results report to the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market;

11) registration of the closed (private) share placement results report by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market;
12) Obtainment of the share issue state registration certificate;

13) Issue of documents confirming the ownership of shares to founders of the company.

Actions that violate the procedure of the establishment of a joint stock company prescribed hereby shall constitute the basis for a decision of the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market to deny registration of the closed (private) share placement report. In case of such a decision, the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market shall bring action with court for the liquidation of the joint stock company.

6. In case of the establishment of a joint stock company by a single entity, the decisions to be made by the meeting of founders shall be made by the entity unilaterally in the form of a decision to establish a company. If an individual is a sole founder of the company, then his signature under the decision to establish the company shall be notarized.

Article 10. Constituting Meeting of a Joint Stock Company

1. The constituting meeting of a joint stock company must be held within three months of the date of the full payment for shares by founders.

   The number of votes of a founder at the constituting meeting of the joint stock company shall be determined by the number of shares in the company to be purchased by the founder in question.

2. The issues related to the following shall be solved at the constituting meeting of the joint stock company:

   1) Establishment of the company;
   2) Approval of the valuation of the property contributed by founders by way of the payment for shares in the company;
   3) Approval of the charter of the company;

company;

6) election of members of the supervisory council, the chairman of the collegiate executive body of the company (the individual who exercises powers of the single-person executive agency of the company), members of the examining commission (examiner);

7) the approval of results of the placement of shares;

8) election of the counting commission;

9) performance of other actions needed to establish the company.

3. Decisions on issues referred to in items 1 to 3 of part two of this article shall be deemed to have been made if supported by all founders of the joint stock company. Decisions on other issues shall be made by the simple majority vote of founders, unless otherwise provided by the memorandum of association.

4. In case of the establishment of a joint stock company by a single entity, the decisions listed in part two of this article shall be made by the entity unilaterally in the form of a decision to establish a company. If an individual is a sole founder of the company, then his signature under the decision to establish the company shall be notarised.

The failure of the constituting meeting to approve the charter of a joint stock company shall be deemed to constitute the refusal of founders to establish the company in question and the ground for the refund of contributions lodged by founders by way of the payment for shares. The contributions shall be returned within 20 business days of the date of the constituting meeting that has failed to make a decision to approve the charter of the joint stock company.

Article 11. Payment for Shares by Founders of the Joint Stock Company

1. The payment for shares placed in the course of the establishment of a joint stock company may be effected with cash, securities (other than debt equity securities issued by the founder, and promissory notes), the appraisable property, property interests, and intangible assets.
The payment for the shares being placed during the establishment of a joint stock company may not be made at a price lower than the par value thereof.

The payment for shares being placed during the establishment of a joint stock company may not be made by way of the assumption of liabilities related to the performance of work or the provision of services for the company.

2. The value of the property contributed by founders of the joint stock company by way of payment for shares in the company must match the market value of the property in question determined under Article 8 hereof.

3. Each founder of the joint stock company must pay the full value of the acquired shares before the date of approval of results of the placement of the first issue of shares. In case of the failure to pay (the incomplete payment) of the value of the acquired shares before the date of the approval of results of the placement of the first issue of shares, the joint stock company shall be deemed not to be established. The company shall not have the right to engage into transactions not related to the establishment thereof until 50 per cent of the charter capital is paid up.

The founder shall enjoy all rights certified with shares other than the right to alienate and encumber them until the registration of the share placement results report.

4. A document confirming the ownership of shares by the founder of the joint stock company shall be issued there to after the complete payment for such shares within 10 business days of receipt of the share issue state registration certificate by the company.

Directive 2012/30/EU ("Capital Directive")

art. 7 The subscribed capital may be formed only of assets capable of economic assessment. However, an undertaking to perform work or supply services may not form part of those assets.

art. 8 Shares may not be issued at a price lower than their nominal value, or, where there is no nominal value, their accountable par.

art. 9 Shares issued for a consideration must be paid up at the time the company is incorporated or is authorised to commence business at not less than 25% of their nominal value or, in the absence of a nominal value, their accountable par.

According to the current regime, not only should the in-kind contributions be valued properly, but in any case, be it in-cash, be it in-kind contribution, the shares may not be issued below their nominal value or their accountable par. 25% requirement for a paid-up capital, as set by the Directive, is a minimum standard and national legislators may require more. Consequently Ukrainian Law (50% requirement) is compatible with the Directive.
Article 12. Liability of Founders of the Joint Stock Company

1. Founders of the joint stock company shall be jointly liable under liabilities related to its establishment that came into existence before the state registration thereof.

2. The joint stock company shall be liable under liabilities of founders related to its establishment solely in case of the approval of their actions by the general shareholder meeting. The general shareholder meeting that approves such liabilities of the company founders must be held within six months of the state registration of the company.

The information about such liabilities of the company must be stated in the charter of the company.

Article 13. Charter of a Joint Stock Company

1. The charter shall be the constituting document of a joint stock company.

2. The charter of a joint stock company must contain information about the following:

Section 3. Capital of the Joint Stock Company

Article 14. Charter Capital and Equity of a Joint Stock Company

1. The minimum value of the charter capital of a joint stock company shall amount to 1,250 minimum salary amounts on the basis of the minimum salary level being in effect as of the establishment (registration) of the joint stock company. The charter fund of the company determines the minimum value of the property of the company that guarantees interests of its creditors.

2. The equity (the value of net assets) of the company shall be defined as the difference between the total value of assets of the company and the value of its liabilities to other parties.

4. The procedure of increasing (reducing) the charter capital of a joint stock company shall be specified by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

5. The charter of a joint stock company may provide for setting up a special fund for the dividend payment under preference shares. The procedure of the formation and the utilisation of such a fund shall be specified by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

Directive 2012/30/EU (“Capital Directive) Section 1 – art. 6 par. 1
The laws of the Member States shall require that, in order that a company may be incorporated or obtain authorisation to commence business, a minimum capital shall be subscribed the amount of which shall be not less than EUR 25 000.

Section 4 – art. 29 et seq.
1. Any increase in capital must be decided upon by the general meeting. Both that decision and the increase in the subscribed capital shall be published in the manner laid down by the laws of each Member State, in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.
2. Nevertheless, the statutes or instrument of incorporation or the Requirements about minimum value of the charter capital are met.
The general provisions on increasing and decreasing of the charter capital are prescribed in the Law on JSC. Peculiarities on increasing and decreasing of the charter capital are prescribed in the Decision of the NSSMS No. 822 dated 14.05.2013 On Approval of the Public or Private Joint Stock Company Charter Capital Increase (Reduction) Procedure).

The question remains if the use of NSSMS Decision instead a law passed by the parliament (here Law on JSC) is sufficient from the perspective of a proper transposition. According to the case law of the Court of Justice of European Communities following criteria need to be considered: - legal certainty must be assured, Article 15. Increase in the Charter Capital

1. The charter capital of the company shall be increased by means of the increase in the par value of shares or the placement of additional shares with the existing par value in accordance with the general meeting, the decision of which must be published in accordance with the rules referred to in paragraph 1, may authorise an increase in the subscribed capital up to a maximum amount which they shall fix with due regard for any maximum amount provided for by law. Where appropriate, the increase in the subscribed capital shall be decided on within the limits of the amount fixed by the company body empowered to do so. The power of such body in this respect shall be for a maximum period of five years and may be renewed one or more times by the general meeting, each time for a period not exceeding five years.

3. Where there are several classes of shares, the decision by the general meeting concerning the increase in capital referred to in paragraph 1 or the authorisation to increase the capital referred to in paragraph 2 shall be subject to a separate vote at least for each class of shareholder whose rights are affected by the transaction.

4. This Article shall apply to the issue of all securities which are convertible into shares or which carry the right to subscribe for shares, but not to the conversion of such securities, nor to the exercise of the right to subscribe.

- legal binding of the act is assured
- the legal act has been duly, promulgated,
- parties can rely on the implementing act as being enforçable befor national courts,
- they should have at least the same significance as the legal acts normally used for legislating a given matter.

(see ECJ Judgment C-102/79, 10).
Article 16. Reduction in the Charter Capital

1. The charter capital of a joint stock company shall be reduced in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market by means of the reduction Directive 2012/30/EU (“Capital Directive”) art. 33. See comments to art. 27 of Law on JSC (below).

2. The joint stock company shall have the right to increase the charter capital after the registration of reports on results of the placement of all prior share issues.

3. The increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company with the lodgement of additional contributions shall be carried out by means of the placement of additional shares.

The pre-emptive right of shareholders to the acquisition of shares additionally placed by the company shall only be effective in the course of the private placement of shares and shall be instituted by the legislation.

4. The increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company without the lodgement of additional contributions shall be carried out by means of the increase in the par value of shares.

A joint stock company shall not have the right to make a decision to increase the charter capital by means of the public placement of shares, if the value of its equity is lower than the value of its charter capital.

The increase in the charter capital of the joint stock company in case of the existence of shares bought out by the company shall be disallowed.

5. No increase in the charter capital of a company shall be permitted for the coverage of losses, except for cases specified by law.

The conformity of the charter capital after the increase thereof with requirements of part one of Article 14 hereof as of the date of the registration of changes in the charter of the company shall be an obligatory condition for the increase in the charter capital by the joint stock company.

Pre-emptive right should be mandated by law for both private and public placement of newly issued shares. See comments to art. 27 of Law on JSC (below).

The prohibitions on capital increases in cases whenever
(i) the value of its equity is lower than the value of its charter capital; or
(ii) such an increase would be designed to cover losses of the company appears inefficient and hindering corporate restructurisations. It is recommended that the prohibitions would be eliminated.
in the par value of shares or the annulment of the shares earlier bought out by the company, and the reduction in their total number, if the charter of the company so provides.

2. Upon decision to reduce the charter capital of the joint stock company, the executive body must notify each creditor, whose claims on the joint stock company are not secured with pledge, guarantee or surety, of such a decision in writing within 30 days.

3. Within 30 days of receipt of the notice referred to in part two of this article, the creditor, whose claims to the joint stock company are not secured with pledge or surety contracts, may require the company in writing that one of the following measures be taken within 45 days at the discretion of the company: the securing of the liabilities by means of the entry into the pledge or surety contract, the early termination or the performance of liabilities to the creditor, unless otherwise provided by the contract between the company and the creditor.

If the creditor has failed to submit a written demand to the company within the time frame prescribed by this part, it shall be deemed that the creditor does not require the company to take additional measures in respect of liabilities to the creditor in question.

4. The reduction in the charter capital by the joint stock company lower than the value prescribed by law shall result in the liquidation of the company.

2. The joint stock company shall have the right to split all shares placed thereby resulting in the conversion of a single share into two or more shares of the same type and class.

3. The share consolidation and the share split must not result in the alteration of the charter capital of the joint stock company.

4. In case of the share consolidation or split, the charter of the joint stock company shall be properly amended in respect of the par value and the number of the placed shares.

5. The procedure of the company share split and consolidation shall be specified by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

Article 19. Reserve Capital

1. The reserve capital shall be formed at the level of at least 15 per cent of the charter capital of the company by means of annual allocations from the net profit of the company or at the expense of the retained earnings. The amount of annual charges may not be lower than 5 per cent of the annual net profit of the company until the attainment of the reserve capital value prescribed by the charter.

2. The reserve capital shall be set up to cover losses of the company and to pay out dividend on the preference shares. Laws may additionally provide for other lines of use of the reserve capital.
3. A joint stock company, which only places ordinary shares, may set up the reserve capital in accordance with the procedure prescribed by part one of this article.

4. A joint stock company, which places both ordinary and preference shares, must set up the reserve capital in accordance with the procedure prescribed by part one of this article.

Section 4. Shares of the JSC

Article 20. Shares of the Company

1. A share of a company shall certify corporate rights of a shareholder in respect of the said joint stock company.

2. All shares of the company shall be registered. Shares of companies shall only exist in a non-documentary form.

3. A joint stock company may place shares of two types: ordinary and preference shares. The company charter may provide for the placement of one or several classes of preference shares vesting their holders with different rights.

   The company may not set restrictions in respect of the number of shares or the number of votes under shares held by a single shareholder.

4. Ordinary shares of the company shall not be convertible into preference shares or other securities of the joint stock company.

5. The share of the preference shares in the charter capital of a joint stock company may not exceed 25 per cent.

Article 21. Issue of Securities

1. A joint stock company may only issue shares on the basis of a decision of the general meeting.

   The company may place securities other than shares on the basis of a decision of the supervisory council, unless otherwise provided by its charter. A decision to place securities in the amount exceeding 25 per cent of the value of the company's assets shall be made by the general shareholder meeting.

2. Joint stock companies shall be permitted to issue shares and bonds for the transformation of liabilities of the company into securities in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

2. Nevertheless, the statutes or instrument of incorporation or the general meeting, the decision of which must be published in accordance with the rules referred to in paragraph 1, may authorise an increase in the subscribed capital up to a maximum amount which they shall fix with due regard for any maximum amount provided for by law. Where appropriate, the increase in the subscribed capital shall be decided on within the limits of the amount fixed by the company body empowered to do so. The power of such body in this respect shall be for a maximum period of five years and may be renewed one or more times by the general meeting, each time for a period not exceeding five years. […]

Authorised capital may be introduced pursuant to art. 29 par. 2 of the Capital Directive.

Securities other than shares may be issued pursuant to art. 21 par. 1 of the Law on JSC (“the company may place securities other than shares on the basis of a decision of the supervisory council, unless otherwise provided by its charter. A decision to place securities in the amount exceeding 25 per cent of the value of the company's assets shall be made by the general shareholder meeting”), but this may not apply to convertible bonds (see art. 29 par. 4 of the Capital Directive).

Directive 2012/30/EU (“Capital Directive”), art. 8 Shares may not be issued at a price lower than their nominal value, or, where there is no nominal value, their accountable par.

Article 23. Payment for Securities

1. In case of the placement of securities by a joint stock company, they shall be paid with cash or, subject to an agreement between the company and the investor, with property interests, non-property interests with the monetary value, securities (other than debt equity securities issued by the acquiring party, and promissory notes, except for government bonds to be exchanged for shares in Naftogaz of Ukraine National Joint Stock Company and Ukrhidroenergo National Joint Stock Company in cases specified by law), and with other property.

The investor may not pay for securities by assuming liabilities in respect of the performance of work or the provision of services for the company.

The charter of the joint stock company may set other restrictions in respect of forms of payment for securities. The company may not institute a restriction or a prohibition of the payment for securities with cash.

2. The placed shares must be fully paid up by the time of the approval of the share placement results by the issuer’s body authorised to make such a decision.

3. If the property is contributed by way of payment for securities, the value of the property in question must match the market value of the said property determined under Article 8 hereof.

The monetary valuation of claims against the company that have come into being before the placement of securities and with which securities of the company are paid shall be carried out in accordance with the procedure set out in paragraph one of this article for the property valuation.

4. The ownership of securities by the acquiring party in the course of the securities placement shall come into existence in accordance with the procedure and within time frames specified by the legislation on the depository system of Ukraine.

5. The joint stock company may not grant loans for the acquisition of its securities or the surety under loans granted by a third party for the acquisition of its shares.

Art. 10 – expert examination to assure the proper valuation of the contribution in kind.

Art. 25 (financial assistance)

1. Where Member States permit a company to, either directly or indirectly, advance funds or make loans or provide security, with a view to the acquisition of its shares by a third party, they shall make such transactions subject to the conditions set out in paragraphs 2 to 5.

2. The transactions shall take place under the responsibility of the administrative or management body at fair market conditions, especially with regard to interest received by the company and with regard to security provided to the company for the loans.

Capital protection rules are predominantly designed to protect corporate creditors. Consequently, if the value assumed by the founders of the company is less than the market value of the contribution in kind, than the interest of the shareholder is affected and not that of the company. So the directive sets a minimum standard here.

Rules on financial assistance have been loosened with the 2006 reform of the Capital Directive (see recommendations of the SLIM Group as well as the HLG).

The credit standing of the third party or, in the case of multiparty transactions, of each counterparty thereto shall have been duly investigated.

3. The transactions shall be submitted by the administrative or management body to the general meeting for prior approval, whereby the general meeting shall act in accordance with the rules for a quorum and a majority laid down in Article 44.
The administrative or management body shall present a written report to the general meeting, indicating:
(a) the reasons for the transaction;
(b) the interest of the company in entering into such a transaction;
(c) the conditions on which the transaction is entered into;
(d) the risks involved in the transaction for the liquidity and solvency of the company; and
(e) the price at which the third party is to acquire the shares.
That report shall be submitted to the register for publication in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.

4. The aggregate financial assistance granted to third parties shall at no time result in the reduction of the net assets below the amount specified in Article 17(1) and (2), taking into account also any reduction of the net assets that may have occurred through the acquisition, by the company or on behalf of the company, of its own shares in accordance with Article 21(1).

The company shall include, among the liabilities in the balance sheet, a reserve, unavailable for distribution, of the amount of the aggregate financial assistance.

5. Where a third party by means of financial assistance from a company acquires that company's own shares within the meaning of Article 21(1) or subscribes for shares issued in the course of an increase in the subscribed capital, such acquisition or subscription shall be made at a fair price.

6. Paragraphs 1 to 5 shall not apply to transactions concluded by banks and other financial institutions in the normal course of business, nor to transactions effected with a view to the acquisition of shares by or for the company's employees or the employees of an associate company. However, those transactions may not have the effect of reducing the net assets below the amount specified in Article 17(1).

7. Paragraphs 1 to 5 shall not apply to transactions effected with a view to acquisition of shares as described in point (h) of Article 22(1).

procedure with at least one stock exchange.

2. Shares of a private joint stock company may not be bought and/or sold at the stock exchange, except for the sale by means of holding an auction at the exchange.

3. The joint stock company shall not have the right to accept own securities as pledge.

4. Legal instruments related to shares shall be executed in writing.

Directive 2012/30/EU (“Capital Directive”) art. 27 par. 1 The acceptance of the company's own shares as security, either by the company itself or through a person acting in his own name but on the company’s behalf, shall be treated as an acquisition for the purposes of Article 21, Article 22(1), and Articles 24 and 25.

The Directive sets a minimum standard – more strict national law is allowed under the Directive, although it is questionable if a wholesale prohibition is justified as a policy option.

Section 5. Rights and obligations of the shareholders.

Article 25. Rights of Holders of Ordinary Shares

1. Each ordinary share in a joint stock company shall vest its owner being the shareholder with the same totality of rights, including the rights:

   1) to take part in the management of the joint stock company;
   2) to receive dividends;
   3) to receive a portion of the property or the value a portion of the property of the company in case of the liquidation of the company;
   4) to obtain information about business activities of the joint stock company.

   One ordinary share in the company shall vest a shareholder with a single vote for the solution of each issue at the general meeting, except for the cumulative voting events.

   Shareholders that own ordinary shares in the company may also have other rights envisaged by acts of the legislation and the charter of the joint stock company.
Article 26. Rights of Holders of Preference Shares

1. Each preference share of the same class shall vest its owner being the shareholder with the same totality of rights.

2. The charter of the joint stock company shall specify the extent of rights vested in a shareholder that owns each class of preference shares, including:
   1) the amount and the priority of the dividend payment;
   2) the liquidation value and the priority of disbursements in case of the company liquidation;
   3) cases and conditions of the conversion of preference shares of the class in question into preference shares of another class, ordinary shares or other securities;
   4) the information obtainment procedure.

3. A joint stock company shall pay dividend on preference shares, except for events covered with part two of Article 31 of this Law, in the amount specified by the charter.

4. Shareholders that own preference shares in the company shall only have the vote in events covered with part five of this article and the charter of the joint stock company.

   One preference share of the company shall give a shareholder one vote for solving each issue. The charter of a joint stock company may provide for a special vote counting procedure: either together or separately from votes under ordinary and/or preference shares of other classes.

5. Shareholders that own preference shares of a certain class shall have the vote in case of the solution of the following issues by the general meeting of the joint stock company:
   1) the termination of the company that provides for the conversion of preference shares of the class in question into preference shares of another class, ordinary shares or other securities;
   2) the introduction of amendments into the charter of the company that restrict the rights of shareholders that own the preference shares;
shares of the class in question;

3) the introduction of changes into the company charter that provide for the placement of a new class of preference shares, whose owners will have preference in terms of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the company liquidation or the increase in the extent of rights of shareholders that own the placed classes of preference shares that have preference in terms of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the company liquidation.

The charter of a private company may vest a shareholder that owns preference shares with the vote on other issues as well.

6. A decision of the general meeting of a joint stock company made with the participation of shareholders that own preference shares and have the vote under part five of this article shall be deemed to have been made, if it has been supported with three quarters of votes of shareholders that own preference shares and took part in the voting procedure, provided that the charter of a company with 25 or fewer shareholders does not contain a requirement for a larger number of votes of holders of preference shares needed to make a decision.

During the voting of shareholders that own preference shares of several classes in accordance with part five of this article, the votes under such shares shall be counted together, unless otherwise prescribed by the company charter.

7. In case of the modification of the type of a joint stock company from private to public, the grant of rights not accorded by this Law to shareholders that own preference shares in a public company shall be terminated.

Article 27. Pre-emptive Right of Shareholders in Case of the Additional Share Issue

the right of a shareholder that owns preference shares to acquire preference shares of the same or another class placed by the company, if shares of such class vest their holders with preferences in respect of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the company liquidation, in proportion to the percentage of preference shares of a certain class held by the shareholder in the total number of preference shares of the class in question.

2. The pre-emptive right shall be granted to a shareholder that owns ordinary shares in the process of the private placement on an obligatory basis in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the legislation.

The pre-emptive right shall be granted to a shareholder that owns preference shares in the course of the private placement of preference shares by the company, if the charter of the joint stock company so provides.

The company shall notify each eligible shareholder in writing of the possibility of the exercise of the pre-emptive right and publish the notice thereof in an official printed bulletin not later than 30 days prior to the commencement of the share placement with granting shareholders the pre-emptive right.

The notice must contain details of the total number of shares being placed by the company, the placement price, the rules of determining the number of securities, for whose acquisition the shareholder enjoys the pre-emptive right, the time frames and the procedure of the exercise of the said right. In case of the placement of preference shares, the notice must contain the information about the rights vested in holders of the said securities.

3. A shareholder intent on exercising its pre-emptive right shall submit a share acquisition statement to the joint stock company by the specified deadline and transfer funds in the amount that equals the value of securities being purchased to the appropriate account. The application of the shareholder must specify its name, place of residence (seat), the number of securities to be purchased thereby. The application and the transferred funds shall be accepted by the company not later than on the day that precedes the securities placement commencement shareholders in proportion to the capital represented by their shares.

2. The laws of a Member State:
(a) need not apply paragraph 1 to shares which carry a limited right to participate in distributions within the meaning of Article 17 and/or in the company's assets in the event of liquidation; or
(b) may permit, where the subscribed capital of a company having several classes of shares carrying different rights with regard to voting, or participation in distributions within the meaning of Article 17 or in assets in the event of liquidation, is increased by issuing new shares in only one of these classes, the right of pre-emption of shareholders of the other classes to be exercised only after the exercise of that right by the shareholders of the class in which the new shares are being issued.

3. Any offer of subscription on a pre-emptive basis and the period within which that right must be exercised shall be published in the national gazette appointed in accordance with Directive 2009/101/EC. However, the laws of a Member State need not provide for such publication where all of a company's shares are registered. In such case, all the company's shareholders must be informed in writing. The right of pre-emption must be exercised within a period which shall not be less than 14 days from the date of publication of the offer or from the kind contributions as well (the Directive sets a minimum standard here). This (i.e. embracing in-kind contributions as well) should be recommended as it is a clear-cut rule capable of protecting minority shareholders from dilution of their stock, both in terms of vote and value.

Pre-emptive right should be granted to shareholders in private and public JSC companies alike (see Annex I to the Capital Directive).

Pre-emptive right should be given to shareholders of ordinary shares as well as to holders of preferred shares.

Pre-emptive right should allow to maintain the status quo in the company both in terms of influence (voting rights proportions) and value (protection against dilution, protection against expropriation by means of repeated stock dilution).

date of dispatch of the letters to the shareholders.

4. The right of pre-emption may not be restricted or withdrawn by the statutes or instrument of incorporation. This may, however, be done by decision of the general meeting. The administrative or management body shall be required to present to such a meeting a written report indicating the reasons for restriction or withdrawal of the right of pre-emption, and justifying the proposed issue price. The general meeting shall act in accordance with the rules for a quorum and a majority laid down in Article 44. Its decision shall be published in the manner laid down by the laws of each Member State, in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.

5. The laws of a Member State may provide that the statutes, the instrument of incorporation or the general meeting, acting in accordance with the rules for a quorum, a majority and publication set out in paragraph 4, may give the power to restrict or withdraw the right of pre-emption to the company body which is empowered to decide on an increase in subscribed capital within the limit of the authorised capital. That power may not be granted for a longer period than the power for which provision is made in Article 29(2).

6. Paragraphs 1 to 5 shall apply to the issue of all securities which are convertible into shares or which carry the right to subscribe for shares, but... not to the conversion of such securities, nor to the exercise of the right to subscribe.

7. The right of pre-emption is not excluded for the purposes of paragraphs 4 and 5 where, in accordance with the decision to increase the subscribed capital, shares are issued to banks or other financial institutions with a view to their being offered to shareholders of the company in accordance with paragraphs 1 and 3.

Section 6. Dividends of the JSC

Article 30. Dividend Payment Procedure

1. "Dividend" shall be understood as a portion of the net profit of a joint stock company paid out to the shareholder per share of a certain type and/or class held by the shareholder. The same amount of dividends shall accrue on shares of the same type and class.

   The company shall pay dividends in cash only.

   The dividend shall be paid on shares, whose placement result report has been registered in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the legislation.

   2. The dividends on ordinary shares shall be paid from the net profit of the reporting year and/or from the retained earnings on the basis of a decision of the general meeting of a joint stock company within six months of the date of the decision of the general meeting to pay dividends.

   The dividends on preference shares shall be paid from the net profit of the reporting year and/or the retained earnings in accordance with the charter of a joint stock company within six months of the end of the reporting year.

   In case of the lack or the insufficiency of the net profit of the reporting year and/or the retained earnings of prior years, the dividend on preference shares shall be paid at the expense of the reserve capital Directive 2012/30/EU ("Capital Directive" Art. 17

1. Except for cases of reductions of subscribed capital, no distribution to shareholders may be made when on the closing date of the last financial year the net assets as set out in the company's annual accounts are, or following such a distribution would become, lower than the amount of the subscribed capital plus those reserves which may not be distributed under the law or the statutes.

2. Where the uncalled part of the subscribed capital is not included in the assets shown in the balance sheet, that amount shall be deducted from the amount of subscribed capital referred to in paragraph 1.

3. The amount of a distribution to shareholders may not exceed the amount of the profits at the end of the of the company or the special preference share dividend fund.

3. The decision to pay out dividends and the amount thereof under ordinary shares shall be made by the general meeting of the joint stock company.

The amount of dividends under preference shares of all classes shall be specified in the charter of the joint stock company.

4. The date of the compilation of the list of parties eligible for dividends, the procedure and the time frame of the disbursement thereof shall be specified by the supervisory council of the joint stock company for each dividend payment. The date of the compilation of the list of the parties eligible for dividends under ordinary shares may not precede the date of the decision of the general meeting to pay out dividends. The list of the parties eligible for dividends under preference shares must be compiled within one month of the end of the reporting year.

The list of the parties eligible for dividends shall be drawn up in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the legislation on the depository system of Ukraine.

The company shall notify the parties entitled to dividends of the date, the amount, the procedure and the time frames of the disbursement thereof. The public joint stock company shall notify the stock exchange (exchanges) in whose exchange register (registers) such a company is listed, of the date, the amount, the procedure and the time frame of the dividend payment on ordinary shares within 10 days of the decision to pay out dividends on ordinary shares.

In case of the disposal of shares owned by a shareholder after the date of the compilation of the list of the parties eligible for dividends, but before the dividend payment date, the eligibility for the dividends shall be vested in the listed party.

5. In order to disburse dividends, the company shall transfer dividends in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the legislation on the depository system of Ukraine to the Central Securities Depository to an account held with the Financial Market Contract Settlement Centre for credits to accounts of depository institutions and last financial year plus any profits brought forward and sums drawn from reserves available for this purpose, less any losses brought forward and sums placed to reserve in accordance with the law or the statutes.

4. The expression ‘distribution’ used in paragraphs 1 and 3 includes in particular the payment of dividends and of interest relating to shares.

5. When the laws of a Member State allow the payment of interim dividends, the following conditions at least shall apply:
   (a) interim accounts shall be drawn up showing that the funds available for distribution are sufficient;
   (b) the amount to be distributed may not exceed the total profits made since the end of the last financial year for which the annual accounts have been drawn up, plus any profits brought forward and sums drawn from reserves available for that purpose, less losses brought forward and sums to be placed to reserve pursuant to the requirements of the law or the statutes.

6. Paragraphs 1 to 5 shall not affect the provisions of the Member States as regards increases in subscribed capital by capitalisation of reserves.

7. The laws of a Member State may provide for derogation from paragraph 1 in the case of investment companies with fixed capital.

The expression ‘investment company with fixed capital’, within the meaning correspondent depositories for the subsequent transfers by depository institutions to accounts of depositors or the disbursement to depositors otherwise in a manner envisaged by contract, as well as for the subsequent transfers by correspondent depositories to individuals eligible for the receipt of income and other payments in accordance with the legislation of another country.

In so far as the laws of Member States make use of this option they shall:
(a) require such companies to include the expression ‘investment company’ in all documents indicated in Article 5 of Directive 2009/101/EC;
(b) not permit any such company whose net assets fall below the amount specified in paragraph 1 to make a distribution to shareholders when on the closing date of the last financial year the company's total assets as set out in the annual accounts are, or following such distribution would become, less than one-and-a-half times the amount of the company's total liabilities to creditors as set out in the annual accounts; and
(c) require any such company which makes a distribution when its net assets fall below the amount specified in paragraph 1 to include in its annual accounts a note to that effect.

   (b) have the right to table draft resolutions for items included or to be included on the agenda of a general meeting.

Option:
Member States may provide that the right referred to in point (a) may be exercised only in relation to the annual general meeting, provided that shareholders, acting individually or collectively, have the right to call, or to require the company to call, a general meeting which is not an annual general meeting with an agenda including at least all the items requested by those shareholders. […]

2. Where any of the rights specified in paragraph 1 is subject to the condition that would be too costly for private JSC or even for some of the public companies, who are not regarded as listed companies in the meaning of the SRD. Recommendation: introduction and further elaboration of the dual regime for private and public companies should be made. SRD should be implemented wholesale with regard to listed companies, whereas some other provisions may be extended to private JSC as well.

In the light of art. 6 of the SRD, the current art. 32 par. 3 of the Law on JSC might be interpreted as an unlawful limitation of shareholders rights. It is acceptable under the SRD, if the option is made use of, so shareholders may exercise those rights in any general meeting. But if the option is used, then requirement to pay the expenses of all extraordinary meetings by shareholders would mean that SRD was not implemented correctly, as it would go against SRD art. 3, as it would be an additional obligation imposed on shareholders (which is forbidden), and not on companies.
Article 33. Competence of the General Meeting

1. The general meeting may solve any issues of activity of a joint stock company.

2. The following shall fall within the sole competence of the general meeting:

   1) the identification of main lines of business of the joint stock company;
   2) the amendment of the charter amendment;
   3) the decision to annul the bought-out shares;
   4) the decisions on the modification of the company type;
   5) the decisions on the placement of shares;
   6) the decisions on the increase in the charter capital of the company;
   7) the decisions on the reduction in the charter capital of the company;
   8) the decisions on the share split or the share consolidation;
   9) the approval of charters of the general meeting, the supervisory council, the executive body and the examining commission.

10) the approval of other internal documents of the company, if the company charter so provides;

11) the approval of the annual statement of the company;

12) the allocation of the profit and losses of the company subject to requirements of the law;

13) the decision on the buy-out by the company of shares placed by the company, except for cases of the obligatory buy-out of shares referred to in Article 68 hereof;

14) the decision on the form of existence of shares;

15) the approval of the amount of the annual dividends taking account of the requirements of the law;

16) the decisions on the procedure of the holding of the general meeting;

17) the election of members of the supervisory council, the approval of terms and conditions of civil or labour contracts to be concluded with them, the setting of their remuneration, the election of the individual authorized to sign contracts with members of the supervisory council;

18) the decision to terminate powers of members of the supervisory council, except for cases specified by this Law;

19) the election of the head and members of the examining commission (the examiner), the decision on the early termination of their powers;

20) the approval of findings of the examining commission (the examiner);

21) the election of the members of the counting commission, the decision on the termination of their powers;

22) the decision to engage into a considerable transaction, if the market value of the property, the work or the services being the object thereof exceeds 25 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the company;

23) the decision on the spin off and the termination of the company, except for the event covered with part four of Article 84 hereof, the liquidation of the company, the election of the liquidation commission, the approval of the procedure and time frames of the liquidation, the procedure of the allocation of the property remaining after the satisfaction of claims of creditors among shareholders, and the approval of the liquidation balance sheet;

24) the decision as a result of the review of a report of the supervisory council, a report of the executive body, a report of the examining commission (examiner);

25) the approval of principles (code) of the corporate governance of the company;

26) the election of the joint stock company termination commission;

27) the solution of other issues falling within the sole competence of the general meeting in accordance with the company charter.

3. The powers to solve issues that fall within the exclusive competence of the general meeting may not be vested in other bodies of the company.

Article 34. Right to Participate in the General Meeting

1. The parties entered into the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting of a joint stock company or their representatives may take part in the general meeting of the joint stock company. A representative of the auditor of the company and officers of the company regardless of their ownership of shares of the company, and the representative of the body representing rights and interests of the employee team may also be present at the general meeting on the invitation of the party convening the general meeting.

The list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting shall be drawn up as of 0.00 a.m. three business days prior to the meeting date in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the legislation on the depository system of Ukraine.

Nothing to mention.
On request of a shareholder, the company or the party that keeps record of the ownership of shares in the company shall be obliged to provide information about the entry of the shareholder into the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting.

2. It shall be prohibited to modify the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting of a joint stock company, once it has been compiled.

Restrictions of the rights of a shareholder to the participation in the general meeting shall be set by law.

(b) that the rights of a shareholder to sell or otherwise transfer his shares during the period between the record date, as defined in paragraph 2, and the general meeting to which it applies are not subject to any restriction to which they are not subject at other times.

2. Member States shall provide that the rights of a shareholder to participate in a general meeting and to vote in respect of his shares shall be determined with respect to the shares held by that shareholder on a specified date prior to the general meeting (the record date).

Member States need not apply the first subparagraph to companies that are able to identify the names and addresses of their shareholders from a current register of shareholders on the day of the general meeting.

3. Each Member State shall ensure that a single record date applies to all companies. However, a Member State may set one record date for companies which have issued bearer shares and another record date for companies which have issued registered shares, provided that a single record date applies to each company which has issued both types of shares. The record date shall not lie more than 30 days before the date of the general meeting to which it applies. In implementing this provision and Article 5(1), each Member State shall ensure that at least eight days elapse between the latest transfer and the record date. It needs to be transposed into the Law on JSC, in particular it needs to be clearly stipulated that rights of a shareholder to participate in the GM cannot be limited by the fact that he/she sold the shares (even all the shares) before the general meeting, after the record date (see art. 7 par. 2 and 3 of the SRD). It means that shareholders who earned that right on the record date can fully participate in the GM even if they are no longer shareholders of that company on the day of the GM.

In the circumstances described in Article 5(1), third subparagraph, however, a Member State may require that at least six days elapse between the latest permissible date for the second or subsequent convocation of the general meeting and the record date. In calculating that number of days those two dates shall not be included.

4. Proof of qualification as a shareholder may be made subject only to such requirements as are necessary to ensure the identification of shareholders and only to the extent that they are proportionate to achieving that objective.

3. The notice of the general meeting of a joint stock company must contain the following data:
   1) full name and the seat of the company;
   2) date, the time and the venue (with the indication of the number of the room, the office or the hall where the shareholders must arrive) of the general meeting;
   3) time of the commencement and the completion of the registration of shareholders for the participation in the general meeting;

   5) list of issues offered for voting;
   6) procedure of the familiarization of shareholders with materials, with which they can familiarize themselves in the course of the preparation for the general meeting.

The general meeting of shareholders shall be held on the territory of Ukraine within boundaries of the populated area of the seat of the company, except if 100 per cent of shares in the company are owned by foreigners, stateless individuals, foreign legal entities and international organizations as of the date of the general meeting.

mean accessible to all shareholders, the general meeting of shareholders may decide that it shall issue the convocation of a general meeting which is not an annual general meeting in one of the manners specified in paragraph 2 of this Article not later than on the 14th day before the day of the meeting. This decision is to be taken by a majority of not less than two thirds of the votes attaching to the shares or the subscribed capital represented and for a duration not later than the next annual general meeting.

Member States need not apply the minimum periods referred to in the first and second subparagraphs for the second or subsequent convocation of a general meeting issued for lack of a quorum required for the meeting convened by the first convocation, provided that this Article has been complied with for the first convocation and no new item is put on the agenda, and that at least 10 days elapse between the final convocation and the date of the general meeting.

2. Without prejudice to further requirements for notification or publication laid down by the competent Member State as defined in Article 1(2), the company shall be required to issue the convocation referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article in a manner ensuring fast access to it on a non-discriminatory basis. The Member State shall require the company to use such media as may reasonably be relied upon to be imposed on every company. Instead, the Directive is facilitating and “prohibits prohibiting”, i.e. does not allow Member States to prohibit electronic voting if the company wants to have it in her corporate governance – such a voting needs to be allowed under the legal regime of any MS.

It should be added that such information has to be displayed at the company’s website for a continuos period until the GM is held, and including the day of the meeting (SRD art. 5(4).

Not only a list of issues (items on the agenda) offered for voting, but full proposed agenda has to be disclosed, including issues that are not offered for voting, if such issues are included in the agenda (SRD art. 5(3)(a).

In either case the company may not charge any specific cost for issuing the convocation in the prescribed manner.
3. The convocation referred to in paragraph 1 shall at least:
(a) indicate precisely when and where the general meeting is to take place, and the proposed agenda for the general meeting;
(b) contain a clear and precise description of the procedures that shareholders must comply with in order to be able to participate and to cast their vote in the general meeting. This includes information concerning:
(i) the rights available to shareholders under Article 6, to the extent that those rights can be exercised after the issuing of the convocation, and under Article 9, and the deadlines by which those rights may be exercised; the convocation may confine itself to stating only the deadlines by which those rights may be exercised, provided it contains a reference to more detailed information concerning those rights being made available on the Internet site of the company;

(ii) the procedure for voting by proxy, notably the forms to be used to vote by proxy and the means by which the company is prepared to accept electronic notifications of the appointment of proxy holders; and

(iii) where applicable, the procedures for casting votes by correspondence or by electronic means;

(c) where applicable, state the record date as defined in Article 7(2) and explain that only those who are shareholders on that date shall have the right to participate and vote in the general meeting;

(d) indicate where and how the full, unabridged text of the documents and draft resolutions referred to in points (c) and (d) of paragraph 4 may be obtained;

(e) indicate the address of the Internet site on which the information referred to in paragraph 4 will be made available.

| Article 36. Documents To Be Provided to Shareholders and Documents With Which Shareholders May Familiarize Themselves During the Preparation for the General Meeting | |
1. The joint stock company must provide shareholders with the opportunity to familiarize themselves with documents needed for making decisions on agenda items in the seat of the company on weekdays during working hours in an accessible area and, on the general meeting date, in the venue of the meeting between the date of the notice of the general meeting and the date of the general meeting. The notice of the general meeting must specify the place (the room or office number, etc.) for the familiarization of shareholders with documents, and the officer of the company responsible for the familiarization procedure.

If the agenda of the general meeting calls for voting on issues defined in Article 68 hereof, the joint stock company must grant shareholders an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the draft contract on the buy-out of shares by the company in accordance with the procedure prescribed by Article 69 hereof. The conditions of the said contract (other than the quantity and the total value of shares) must be the same for all shareholders.

2. The charter of a joint stock company with over 100 shareholders that own ordinary shares may provide for a different procedure of the provision of shareholders with documents for the familiarization during the preparation for the general meeting. Such documents can be provided in the electronic form or otherwise in a manner envisaged by the charter.

3. The joint stock company shall not have the right to amend documents issued to shareholders or familiarized by shareholders after the sending of the notice of the general meeting to shareholders, except for amendments in such documents due to changes in the agenda or due to the mistake correction. In this case, the changes shall be undertaken not later than 10 days prior to the date of the general meeting or, in respect of candidates to the company bodies, not later than four days prior to the date of the general meeting.

Directive 2007/36/EU (SRD) art. 5 par. 4
Member States shall ensure that, for a continuous period beginning not later than on the 21 day before the day of the general meeting and including the day of the meeting, the company shall make available to its shareholders on its Internet site at least the following information:

(a) the convocation referred to in paragraph 1;
(b) the total number of shares and voting rights at the date of the convocation (including separate totals for each class of shares where the company’s capital is divided into two or more classes of shares);
(c) the documents to be submitted to the general meeting;
(d) a draft resolution or, where no resolution is proposed to be adopted, a comment from a competent body within the company, to be designated by the applicable law, for each item on the proposed agenda of the general meeting; moreover, draft resolutions tabled by shareholders shall be added to the Internet site as soon as practicable after the company has received them;
(e) where applicable, the forms to be used to vote by proxy and to vote by correspondence, unless those forms are sent directly to each shareholder.

Where the forms referred to in point (e) cannot be made available on the...
For technical reasons, the company shall indicate on its Internet site how the forms can be obtained on paper. In this case the company shall be required to send the forms by postal services and free of charge to every shareholder who so requests.

Where, pursuant to Articles 9(4) or 11(4) of Directive 2004/25/EC, or to the second subparagraph of paragraph 1 of this Article, the convocation of the general meeting is issued later than on the 21st day before the meeting, the period specified in this paragraph shall be shortened accordingly.

Article 37. General Meeting Agenda

1. The agenda of the general meeting of a joint stock company shall be preliminarily approved by the supervisory council of the company or, in case of the convention of the extraordinary general meeting on request of shareholders in cases covered with part six of Article 47 hereof, by the shareholders that require the meeting to be held.

2. The shareholders shall have the opportunity to familiarize themselves with draft decisions on agenda items before the meeting on its request in accordance with the procedure specified by Article 36 of this Law.

Directive 2007/36/EU (SRD)

Article 5 para. 4 (d)

4. Member States shall ensure that, for a continuous period beginning not later than on the 21st day before the day of the general meeting and including the day of the meeting, the company shall make available to its shareholders on its Internet site at least the following information:

   - a draft resolution or, where no resolution is proposed to be adopted, a comment from a competent body within the company, to be designated by the applicable law, for each item on the proposed agenda of the general meeting; moreover, draft resolutions tabled by shareholders shall be added to the Internet site as soon as practicable after the company has received them;
Article 38. Proposals for the General Meeting Agenda

1. Each shareholder shall have the right to make proposals on items included into the agenda of the general meeting of a joint stock company and on new candidates for bodies of the company, whose number may not be higher than the number of members in each of the bodies. In this case, the changes shall be undertaken not later than 20 days prior to the date of the general meeting or, in respect of candidates to the company bodies, not later than seven days prior to the date of the general meeting.

2. A proposal for the joint stock company general meeting agenda shall be submitted in writing with the indication of the family name (the name) of the shareholder making the proposal, the number, the type and/or the class of shares held thereby, the content of the proposal on the issue and/or the draft decision, as well as the number, the type and/or the class of shares owned by the candidate nominated by the said shareholder to the bodies of the company.

3. The supervisory council of a joint stock company or, in case of the convention of the extraordinary general meeting on request of shareholders in cases covered with part six of Article 47 hereof, the shareholders who require the meeting to be held shall make a decision on the inclusion of proposals into the agenda not later than 15 days prior to the general meeting date or, in respect of candidates to the company bodies, not later than four days prior to the general meeting date.

4. Proposals of shareholders (a shareholder) that own 5% or more ordinary shares in aggregate must be included into the general meeting agenda. In this case, no decision of the supervisory council on the inclusion of the issue into the agenda shall be required; the proposal shall be deemed to be included into the agenda if it is submitted in conformity with requirements of this article.

Changes to the agenda of the general meeting shall be introduced only by means of the inclusion of new issues and draft decisions on the suggested issues. The company shall not have the right to amend issues or draft decisions suggested by shareholders.

5. A decision to deny the entry of a proposal of a shareholder (shareholders) jointly owning 5 or more per cent of ordinary shares into the agenda of a general meeting of a joint stock company may only be made in the case of:

Directive 2007/36/EU(SRD)

art. 6
Right to put items on the agenda of the general meeting and to table draft resolutions

1. Member States shall ensure that shareholders, acting individually or collectively:
   (a) have the right to put items on the agenda of the general meeting, provided that each such item is accompanied by a justification or a draft resolution to be adopted in the general meeting; and
   (b) have the right to table draft resolutions for items included or to be included on the agenda of a general meeting.

Member States may provide that the right referred to in point (a) may be exercised only in relation to the annual general meeting, provided that shareholders, acting individually or collectively, have the right to call, or to require the company to call, a general meeting which is not an annual general meeting with an agenda including at least all the items requested by those shareholders.

Member States may provide that those rights shall be exercised in writing (submitted by postal services or electronic means).

2. Where any of the rights specified in paragraph 1 is subject to the condition that the relevant shareholder or shareholders hold a minimum stake in the company, such minimum stake the failure of shareholders to abide by the time frame specified in part one of this article; the incompleteness of details required by part two of this article.

6. A substantiated decision to deny the entry of the proposal into the agenda of the general meeting of the joint stock company shall be sent by the supervisory council to the shareholder within three days of its date.

7. The joint stock company must notify shareholders, in accordance with the charter, of changes in the agenda not later than 10 days prior to the general meeting date. A public joint stock company shall additionally send the notice of changes in the agenda of the general meeting to the stock exchange, at which the company is listed, and, not later than 10 days prior to the general meeting date, place the relevant information about changes in the agenda of the general meeting on its own Internet web site.

The disputing of the company's decision to deny the entry of proposals into the agenda by the shareholder at court shall not suspend the general meeting. As a result of the case review, the court may require the company to hold a general meeting on the issue, whose entry into the agenda was groundlessly denied to the shareholder.

Article 39. Representation of Shareholders

1. An individual or an authorized agent of a legal entity, as well as an authorized agent of the state or the territorial community may be a representative of the shareholder at a general meeting of the joint stock company.

Officers of bodies of the company and their affiliated parties may not represent other shareholders of the company at the general meeting.

An individual or legal entity shareholder may be represented at a general meeting by an individual or an authorized agent of a legal entity, as well as an authorized agent of the state or the territorial community.

3. Each Member State shall set a single deadline, with reference to a specified number of days prior to the general meeting or the convocation, by which shareholders may exercise the right referred to in paragraph 1, point (a). In the same manner each Member State may set a deadline for the exercise of the right referred to in paragraph 1, point (b).

4. Member States shall ensure that, where the exercise of the right referred to in paragraph 1, point (a) entails a modification of the agenda for the general meeting already communicated to shareholders, the company shall make available a revised agenda in the same manner as the previous agenda in advance of the applicable record date as defined in Article 7(2) or, if no record date applies, sufficiently in advance of the date of the general meeting so as to enable other shareholders to appoint a proxy or, where applicable, to vote by correspondence.

Directive 2007/36/EU(SRD) art. 10 (Proxy voting)

1. Every shareholder shall have the right to appoint any other natural or legal person as a proxy holder to attend and vote at a general meeting in his name. The proxy holder shall enjoy the same rights to speak and ask questions in the general meeting as those to general meeting of the joint stock company by another individual or an authorized agent of a legal entity; the state or territorial community may be represented as a shareholder by the authorized officer of the agency that manages state or community-owned property.

2. A shareholder shall have the right to appoint a representative on a permanent basis or for a term. A shareholder shall have the right to replace the representative at any time subject to the notification of the executive body of the joint stock company thereof.

3. The power of attorney for the participation and the voting at the general meeting may be authenticated by the registrar, the depository, the custodian, the notary and other officers that perform notarial acts or otherwise according to a procedure envisaged by the legislation.

2. Member States may limit the appointment of a proxy holder to a single meeting, or to such meetings as may be held during a specified period. Without prejudice to Article 13(5), Member States may limit the number of persons whom a shareholder may appoint as proxy holders in relation to any one general meeting. However, if a shareholder has shares of a company held in more than one securities account, such limitation shall not prevent the shareholder from appointing a separate proxy holder as regards shares held in each securities account in relation to any one general meeting. This does not affect rules prescribed by the applicable law that prohibit the casting of votes differently in respect of shares held by one and the same shareholder.

Apart from the limitations expressly permitted in paragraphs 1 and 2, Member States shall not restrict or allow companies to restrict the exercise of shareholder rights through proxy holders for any purpose other than to address potential conflicts of interest between the proxy holder and the which the shareholder thus represented would be entitled.

The issue of a power of attorney for the participation and the voting at the general meeting shall not rule out the right of the shareholder that has issued the power of attorney in the general meeting in question in lieu of the representative.
shareholder, in whose interest the proxy holder is bound to act, and in doing so Member States shall not impose any requirements other than the following:

(a) Member States may prescribe that the proxy holder disclose certain specified facts which may be relevant for the shareholders in assessing any risk that the proxy holder might pursue any interest other than the interest of the shareholder;

(b) Member States may restrict or exclude the exercise of shareholder rights through proxy holders without specific voting instructions for each resolution in respect of which the proxy holder is to vote on behalf of the shareholder;

(c) Member States may restrict or exclude the transfer of the proxy to another person, but this shall not prevent a proxy holder who is a legal person from exercising the powers conferred upon it through any member of its administrative or management body or any of its employees.

A conflict of interest within the meaning of this paragraph may in particular arise where the proxy holder:

(i) is a controlling shareholder of the company, or is another entity controlled by such shareholder;

(ii) is a member of the administrative, management or supervisory body of the company, or of a controlling shareholder or controlled entity referred to in point (i);
(iii) is an employee or an auditor of the company, or of a controlling shareholder or controlled entity referred to in (i);
(iv) has a family relationship with a natural person referred to in points (i) to (iii).

4. The proxy holder shall cast votes in accordance with the instructions issued by the appointing shareholder. Member States may require proxy holders to keep a record of the voting instructions for a defined minimum period and to confirm on request that the voting instructions have been carried out.

5. A person acting as a proxy holder may hold a proxy from more than one shareholder without limitation as to the number of shareholders so represented. Where a proxy holder holds proxies from several shareholders, the applicable law shall enable him to cast votes for a certain shareholder differently from votes cast for another shareholder.

Powers of the registration commission may be vested in a registrar, a custodian or a depository on the basis of a contract. In this case, a representative of the registrar, the custodian or the depository shall chair the registration commission.

The list of shareholders registered for the participation in the general meeting shall be attached to the minutes of the general meeting.

A substantiated decision of the registration commission to deny registration of a shareholder or a representative thereof for the participation in the general meeting signed by the chairman of the registration commission shall be attached to the minutes of the general meeting and issued to the person denied the registration.

A shareholder shall have the right to replace the representative before the expiry of the time allotted for the registration of meeting participants, having notified thereof the registration commission and the executive body of the joint stock company, or to take part in the general meeting in person.

If several representatives of a shareholder appeared to take part in the general meeting, the representative with the power of attorney issued later shall be registered.

If a share is co-owned by several parties, their general meeting voting powers shall be exercised subject to their consent by one of co-owners or their joint representative.

4. Shareholders (a shareholder) that own in aggregate 10 and more per cent of ordinary shares as of the date of the compilation of the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting of the joint stock company, as well as the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market may appoint their representatives for the supervision of the registration of shareholders, the holding of the general meeting, the voting and the ascertainment of the voting results. The company shall be notified in writing of the appointment of such representatives before the commencement of the registration of shareholders.

Officers of the joint stock company shall be required to ensure free access of representatives of shareholders (a shareholder) and/or the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market to the supervision over the registration of shareholders, the conduct of the general meeting, the voting and the ascertainment of the voting results.

5. The progress of the general meeting or the review of a specific issue may be recorded using technical facilities by decision of initiators of the general meeting or the general meeting itself; the relevant records shall be attached to the minutes of the general meeting.

A shareholder may not be deprived of the vote except for situations specified in this Law.

3. A decision of the general meeting of a joint stock company on an issue offered for voting shall be made by the simple majority vote of shareholders registered for the participation in the general meeting and holding shares that vote on the issue in question, unless this Law prescribes otherwise. The charter of a private company may set a higher percentage of votes of shareholders needed for making decisions on agenda items, except for the following issues:

- the early termination of powers of officers of bodies of the company;
- the submission of a claim against officers of company bodies for the reimbursement for damages caused to the company;
- the submission of a claim in case of the failure to abide by requirements hereof on the entry into a considerable transaction.

4. Members of a body of a company shall be elected by way of the cumulative voting procedure in cases prescribed by this Law and/or the charter of the joint stock company.

In case of the election of members of a body of a joint stock company by way of the cumulative voting procedure, the votes shall be cast on all candidates simultaneously.

Candidates, who have obtained the highest number of votes of shareholders in comparison with other candidates, shall be deemed elected.

Members of a body of a company shall be deemed elected and the body of the company shall be deemed formed solely on condition of the election of the full number of members of the company body by way of the cumulative voting procedure.

5. Decisions of the general meeting on issues covered with items 2 to 7 and 23 of part two of Article 33 of this Law shall be made by more than three quarters of the total number of votes of shareholder registered for the participation in the general meeting and holding the shares voting on the relevant issue. The charter of a private joint stock company may also provide for other issues on which decisions are to be made with three quarters of the total number of shareholders registered for the participation in the general meeting and holding the shares voting on the relevant issue, except for issues listed in paragraph two of part three of this article.

6. The general meeting may not make decisions on issues not included into the agenda.

7. In case of an issue offered for voting, if the shareholders that own ordinary and preference shares have the voting rights for the solution of the issue in question, the votes shall be counted jointly for all the shares voting on the issue in question, except for cases covered with the charter of the company and part four of Article 26 hereof.

8. A break till the next day may be announced during the general meeting. The decision to make a break till the next day shall be made by the simple majority of votes of shareholders that have registered for the participation in the general meeting and own shares, which vote on at least one issue to be reviewed on the next day. No repeated registration of shareholders (their representatives) shall be held on the next day.

   The number of votes of shareholders that have registered for the participation in the general meeting shall be determined on the basis of the registration data of the first day.

   The general meeting shall be held in the same venue after the break as specified in the notice of the general meeting.

   The number of breaks in the course of the general meeting may not exceed three.

9. The voting shall be held at the general meeting on all agenda items offered for sale.

Article 43. Voting Method

1. The voting at the general meeting of a joint stock company on agenda items may be held using ballots.

   In a company that has carried out the public placement of Directive 2007/36/EU (SRD) art. 8 (Participation in the general meeting by electronic means) These norms of the SRD (art. 8, art. 12) are facilitative, i.e. they do not require companies to introduce these provisions (participation and voting in shares, the voting on agenda items of the general meeting shall only be held using ballots.

In a company with more than 100 holders of ordinary shares in the company, the voting on agenda items of the general meeting shall only be held using ballots.

The use of ballots shall be obligatory for the voting on issues listed in Article 68 hereof.

2. The voting ballot (except for the cumulative vote ballot) must contain:

1) the full name of the joint stock company;
2) the date and the time of the general meeting;
3) the issue offered for the vote and the draft decision (decisions) on the said issue;
4) the voting options on each draft decision ("in favour", "against", "abstained");
5) a reservation that the vote must be signed by the shareholder (shareholder representative) and is deemed invalid in case of the lack of such a signature;
6) the indication of the number of votes held by each shareholder.

In case of the voting on the election of members of the executive body, the supervisory council or the examining commission (the examiner) of the company, the ballot must contain the last, first and patronymic names of the candidate (candidates).

The cumulative vote ballot must contain:

1) the full name of the joint stock company;
2) the date and the time of the general meeting;
3) the list of candidate members of a body of a joint stock company with the provision of the information about them in accordance with requirements of the National Commission for the GM by electronic means and voting by correspondence — respectively), instead they oblige MS not to hinder and whenever needed, put a legal framework in place so that those companies which want to allow their shareholders e-GM and/or voting by correspondence, are able, under the national law, to do so.

6) the indication of the number of votes held by each shareholder.

The cumulative voting for the election of members of a body of a joint stock company shall take place using ballots.

3. The form and the text of the ballot shall be approved by the supervisory council not later than 10 days prior to the general meeting date or, in case of the election of candidates to bodies of the company, not later than four days prior to the general meeting date or, in case of the convention of the extraordinary general meeting on request of shareholders in cases covered with part six of Article 47 of this Law, by the shareholders that require the meeting to be held. Shareholders shall have the right to familiarise themselves with the ballot form before the general meeting in accordance with the procedure specified in Article 35 of this Law.

4. The ballot shall be deemed invalid, if it is different from the specimen officially produced by the joint stock company or lacks the signature of the shareholder (representative).

If the ballot contains several issues put to vote, the invalidation of the ballot in respect of one issue shall constitute the ground for the invalidation thereof in respect of other issues.

Ballots invalidated on the grounds envisaged by this article shall be disregarded during the vote counting.

Article 44. Counting Commission

1. Explanations on the procedure of the voting, the counting of votes and other issues related to securing the voting process at a general meeting shall be provided by the counting commission to be elected by the general meeting of shareholders (the constituting meeting). Powers of the counting commission may be vested in a registrar, a custodian or a depository of the company on the basis of a contract. Conditions of the said contract shall be approved by the general shareholder meeting.

2. The counting commission should be at least three people strong in a joint stock company with over 100 holders of ordinary shares. The individuals who are members or candidates to bodies of the company may not be members of the counting commission.

Article 45. Voting Results Protocol

1. A protocol shall be drawn up as a result of the voting to be signed by all members of the counting commission of the joint stock company who have taken part in the vote counting.

   In case of the vesting of counting commission powers in the registrar, the custodian or the depository, the voting results protocol shall be signed by a representative of the registrar, or the custodian or the depository.

2. The following must be indicated in the voting results protocol:
   1) the date of the general meeting;
   2) the list of issues, on which decisions have been made by the general meeting;
   3) the decisions and the numbers of votes "in favour", "against" and "abstained" on each draft decision for each agenda item put to vote.

3. A decision of the general meeting of the joint stock company shall be deemed to have been made upon the compilation of the voting results protocol.

   The voting results shall be announced at the general meeting, during which the voting has taken place. After the closure of the general meeting, the voting results shall be communicated to shareholders within 10 business days in a manner prescribed by the charter of the joint stock company.

Article 46. Minutes of the General Meeting

1. The minutes of the general meeting of the joint stock company shall be compiled within 10 days of the closure of the general meeting and signed by the chairman and the secretary of the general meeting.

2. The information about the following shall be entered into the minutes of the general meeting of the joint stock company:

   1) the date, the time and the venue of the general meeting;

   2) the compilation date of the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting;

   3) the total number of entities entered into of the list of shareholders eligible for the participation in the general meeting;

   4) the total number of votes of shareholders that own voting shares in the company that has registered for the participation in the general meeting (if some shares are voting not on all agenda items, the number of voting shares shall be specified for each agenda item);

   5) the general meeting quorum (if some shares are voting not on all agenda items, the quorum of the general meeting on each issue must be indicated);

   6) the chairman and the secretary of the general meeting;

   7) the membership of the counting commission;

   8) the general meeting agenda;

   9) the major theses of speeches;

   10) the voting procedure at the general meeting (open vote,
11) the voting results with the indication of voting results on each general meeting agenda item and decisions made by the general meeting.

The minutes of the general meeting signed by the chairman and the secretary of the general meeting shall be filed, sealed with the company seal and the signature of the head of the executive body of the company (in case of the collegiate executive body) or the single-person executive body.

Article 47. Extraordinary General Meeting

1. An extraordinary general meeting of a joint stock company shall be convened by the supervisory council:

   1) on own initiative;

   2) on request of the executive body in case of the initiation of bankruptcy proceedings against the company or the need to engage into a considerable transaction;

   3) on request of the examining commission (the examiner);

   4) on request of shareholders (a shareholder) that own in aggregate 10 and more per cent of ordinary shares in the company as of the request date;

   5) in other cases prescribed by law or the charter of the company.

The request for convening the extraordinary general meeting shall be submitted in writing to the executive body at the address in the location of the joint stock company with the indication of the body or the names of shareholders that require an extraordinary general meeting to be held, the grounds for convening the same, and the agenda. In case of the convention of the extraordinary general meeting on the initiative of shareholders, the request must also contain information about the quantity, the type and the class of shares held by shareholders, and must be signed by all shareholders submitting the same.

Directive 2007/36/EU (SRD) art. 6 (1) 2

1. Member States shall ensure that shareholders, acting individually or collectively:

   (a) have the right to put items on the agenda of the general meeting, provided that each such item is accompanied by a justification or a draft resolution to be adopted in the general meeting; and

   (b) have the right to table draft resolutions for items included or to be included on the agenda of a general meeting.

Member States may provide that the right referred to in point (a) may be exercised only in relation to the annual general meeting, provided that shareholders, acting individually or collectively, have the right to call, or to require the company to call, a general meeting which is not an annual general meeting with an agenda including at least all the items requested by those shareholders.
stock company within 10 days of receipt of the request for the convention of the same.

3. A decision to deny the convention of an extraordinary general meeting of a joint stock company may only be made in the case of:

if shareholders do not own the number of ordinary shares in the company prescribed by paragraph one of part one of this article as of the request submission date;

the incompleteness of details required by paragraph two of part one of this article.

The decision of the supervisory council in respect of convening the extraordinary general meeting or the substantiated decision to deny the convention thereof shall be issued to the relevant managing body of the company or the requesting shareholders not later than in three days of the decision date.

The supervisory council shall not have the right to modify the agenda of the general meeting contained in the request for convening the extraordinary general meeting, other than to include new issues or draft decisions into the agenda.

4. The extraordinary general meeting of a joint stock company must be held within 45 days of receipt of the request for convening the same by the company.

5. If so required by the interests of the joint stock company, the supervisory council shall have the right to make a decision to convene the extraordinary general meeting with the written notification of shareholders of the extraordinary general meeting and the agenda thereof in accordance with this Law not later than 15 days prior to the meeting date with the divestment of shareholders of the right to amend the agenda.

In this case, the repeated general meeting shall not be held in case of the lack of the quorum at the extraordinary general meeting.

The supervisory council may not make the decision referred to in paragraph one of this part, if the agenda of the extraordinary general

6. If the supervisory council has failed to make a decision on convening the extraordinary general meeting of the joint stock company within the time frame specified in part two of this article, the said meeting can be convened by the requesting shareholders. The decision of the supervisory council to deny the convention of the extraordinary general meeting may be disputed by shareholders with court.

7. The company or the party that maintains the record of ownership of shares in the company shall be required to provide information about the list of owners of shares in the company, as well as other information needed for organising the extraordinary general meeting of the joint stock company on request of the supervisory council of the company within five business days.

In case of the convention of the general meeting by shareholders, the notice thereof and other materials shall be sent out to all shareholders of the company by the party that maintains the record of ownership of shares in the company.

Article 48. General Shareholder Meeting in the Form of the Absentee Voting

1. In cases covered with a charter of the joint stock company with not more than 25 shareholders, it shall be permitted to make decisions by means of polling. In this case, the draft decision or the voting issue shall be sent out to shareholders that own voting shares; the shareholders must provide a written notice of their opinion on the issues within five calendar days of receipt of the relevant draft decision or the voting issue. All shareholders that own voting shares must be notified in writing by the chairman of the meeting about the decision made within 10 days of receipt of the notice from the last shareholder that owns voting shares. The decision shall be deemed made if supported by all shareholders that own voting shares.

Article 49. Specific Features of a General Meeting of a Company That Consists of a Single Person

1. Provisions of Articles 33 to 48 of this Law in respect of the procedure of convening and holding the general meeting of a joint stock company that consists of a single person shall be subject to the Directive 2009/102/EC (SMCD) art. 4.
2. The powers of the general meeting of the company envisaged by Article 33 hereof and the internal documents of the company shall be exercised by the shareholder unilaterally.

The decision of the shareholder on issues that fall within competence of the general meeting shall be executed thereby in writing (in the form of a decision) and authenticated with the company seal, or notarised. The said decision of the shareholder shall have the status of the minutes of the general meeting of a joint stock company.

3. The election of members of the supervisory council, the examining commission (if any) shall take place without cumulative voting.

1. The sole member shall exercise the powers of the general meeting of the company.

2. Decisions taken by the sole member in the field referred to in paragraph 1 shall be recorded in minutes or drawn up in writing.

Article 50. Disputing Decisions of the General Meeting

1. If decisions of the general meeting or the procedure of making the decision in question violate the requirements of this Law, other acts of the legislation, the charter or the general meeting policy of the joint stock company, the shareholder, whose rights and legitimate interests are violated with the said decision, may dispute the decision in question with court within three months of the decision date.

Taking account of all circumstances of the case, the court shall have the right to leave the disputed decision in force, if the committed violations do not violate legitimate rights of the shareholder that owns the decisions.

2. The shareholder may dispute decisions of the general meeting on issues listed in part one of Article 68 of this Law solely on receipt of the written denial of the exercise of the right to require the obligatory buy-out of the voting shares by the company or in case of the non-receipt of response to the shareholder's request within 30 days of sending the same to the company's address in accordance with the procedure prescribed by this Law.

Section 8. Supervisory Council of a Joint Stock Company

Article 51. Establishment of the Supervisory Council of a Joint Stock Company

1. The supervisory council of a joint stock company shall be the agency that protects the rights of the company shareholders and, within the competence defined in the charter and this Law, controls and regulates the activities of the executive body.

2. The establishment of a supervisory council shall be obligatory in joint stock companies with 10 and more holders of ordinary shares. The powers of the supervisory council in case of the lack thereof in a company with 9 or fewer holders of ordinary shares shall be exercised by the general meeting.

   In this case, the powers of the supervisory council related to the preparation and the holding of the general meeting as envisaged by this Law shall be exercised by the managing body, unless otherwise prescribed by the charter of the joint stock company.

3. The working procedure, the procedure of remuneration and the liability of members of the supervisory council shall be defined by this Law, the charter of the company, the supervisory council charter of the joint stock company, and a civil-law or labour contract to be concluded with a member of the supervisory council. The said contract shall be signed on behalf of the company by the chairman of the executive body or another individual authorized by the general meeting on terms and conditions approved with the decision of the general meeting. In case of the entry into a civil-law contract with a member of the supervisory council, the contract in question may be either reimbursable or non-reimbursable.

4. A member of the supervisory council must perform his duties in person and may not vest his powers in a person, other than a member of the supervisory council being a shareholding legal entity.

   Members of the supervisory council shall be entitled to the remuneration of their activities at the expense of the company. The remuneration conditions shall be determined by the general meeting on the basis of the cost estimate approved by the meeting.

Recommendation 2004/913/EC: fostering an appropriate regime for the remuneration of directors of listed companies
Recommendation 2005/162/EC: on the role of non-executive or supervisory directors of listed companies and on the committees of the (supervisory) board

Article 52. Competence of the Supervisory Council

1. The competence of the supervisory council shall cover the issues envisaged by this Law and the charter, and those assigned to the supervisory council by the general meeting.

2. The following shall fall within the exclusive competence of the supervisory council:

   1) the approval of policies that govern issues related to activities of the company within the scope of its powers;

   2) the preparation of the agenda of the general meeting, making the decision on the date of the said meeting and the inclusion of proposals into the agenda, except for convening extraordinary general meeting by shareholders;

   3) making a decision on holding regular or extraordinary general meeting in accordance with the company charter and in cases covered with this Law;

   4) making the decision to sell shares bought out by the company earlier;

   5) making the decision on the placement of securities other than shares by the company;

   6) making the decision on the buy-out of securities other than shares placed by the company;

   7) the approval of the market value of the property in events envisaged by this law;

   8) electing and terminating powers of the chairman and members of the executive body;

   9) the approval of conditions of contracts to be concluded with members of the executive body, the setting of their remuneration;

11) electing and suspending the chairman and the members of other bodies of the company;

12) electing the registration commission, except for events set out by this Law;

13) electing the auditor of the company and determining terms and conditions of the contract to be concluded with the auditor, setting the auditor's remuneration. If the supervisory council does not exist, this issue shall fall within the competence of the executive body, unless otherwise provided by the charter;

14) setting the date of the compilation of the list of the parties entitled to dividends, the procedure and the time frames of the dividend payment within the deadline specified in part two of Article 30 of this Law;

15) setting the date of the compilation of the list of shareholders to be notified of the general meeting in accordance with part one of Article 35 of this Law and entitled to take part in the general meeting in accordance with Article 34 of this Law;

16) solving issues related to the participation of the company in industrial financial groups and other associations, the establishment of other legal entities;

17) solving issues falling within the competence of the supervisory council with Section XVI hereof in case of the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off or the transformation of the company;

18) the decision to execute substantial transactions in cases covered with part one of Article 70 of this Law;

19) determining the likelihood of the company's being declared insolvent as a result of the assumption or the performance of liabilities by the company, for instance, as a result of the dividend payment or the share buy-out; making proposals for consideration by another corporate body, in the process for appointment and/or removal of directors, a nomination committee should be set up within the (supervisory) board.

subsec. 2. The nomination committee should be composed of at least a majority of independent non-executive or supervisory directors. When a company deems it appropriate for the nomination committee to comprise a minority of non-independent members, the Chief Executive Officer could be a member of such a committee.
20) making a decision on the election of the company property appraiser and the approval of terms and conditions of the contract to be concluded with the appraiser, setting the appraiser's remuneration;

21) making a decision on the election (replacement) of the registrar of holders of registered securities of the company or the depository of securities, and the approval of terms and conditions of the contract to be concluded therewith, setting their remuneration;

22) sending proposals to shareholders on the acquisition of ordinary shares held by them by an entity (jointly acting entities), which have procured the controlling interest in accordance with Article 65 of this Law;

23) the solution of other issues falling within the sole competence of the supervisory council in accordance with the charter of the joint stock company, including making decisions on the transformation of the share issue in the documentary form of existence into the non-documentary form of existence.

3. Issues that fall within the exclusive competence of the supervisory council of the joint stock company may not be solved by bodies of the company other than the general meeting, except for cases specified by this Law.

4. Officers of bodies of the joint stock company shall provide members of the supervisory council with access to the information within the limits set by this Law and the charter of the company.

Article 53. Election of Members of the Supervisory Council

1. Members of the supervisory council of a joint stock company shall be elected from among individuals, who have the full civil-law capability, and/or from among shareholding legal entities.

A legal entity supervisory council member may have an unlimited number of representatives in the supervisory council. The procedure of the operation of the shareholder's representative in the supervisory council shall be determined by the shareholder.

2. Powers of a member of the supervisory council shall come into effect upon his election by the general meeting of the company.

Recommendation 2005/162/EC on the role of non-executive or supervisory directors of listed companies and on the committees of the (supervisory) board

Sec. 11.1 In order to maintain a proper balance in terms of the qualifications possessed by its members, the (supervisory)board should determine its desired composition in relation to the

| Recommendation 2005/162/EC on the role of non-executive or supervisory directors of listed companies and on the committees of the (supervisory) board |
| Sec. 5 Boards should be organised in such a way that a sufficient number of independent non-executive or supervisory directors play an effective role in key areas where the potential for conflict of interest is particularly high. To this end, but subject to point 7, nomination, remuneration and audit committees should be created within the (supervisory) board, where that board plays a role in the areas of nomination, remuneration and audit under national law, taking into account Annex I. |
| However, pursuant to sec. 1.3.2 Member States should be allowed to choose, in whole or in part, between the creation within the (supervisory) board of any of the committees with the characteristics advocated in this |
| Recommended on a ‘comply or explain’-basis (sec. 1.2 of the Recommendation 2005/162/EC). |
3. Opinions of committees shall be reviewed by the supervisory council in accordance with the procedure envisaged herein for the decision making by the supervisory council.

4. The supervisory council shall have the right to elect a corporate secretary in accordance with the established procedure on the basis of the proposal of the chairman of the supervisory council. A corporate secretary shall be the individual responsible for the relations of the joint stock company with shareholders and/or investors.

Recommendation, and the use of other structures – external to the (supervisory) board – or procedures. Such structures or procedures, which could be either mandatory for companies under national law or best practice recommended at national level through a ‘comply or explain’ approach, should be functionally equivalent and equally effective.

Sec. 7.1. Companies should make sure that the functions assigned to the nomination, remuneration and audit committees are carried out. However, companies may group the functions as they see fit and create fewer than three committees. In such a situation, companies should give a clear explanation both of the reasons why they have chosen an alternative approach and how the approach chosen meets the objective set for the three separate committees.

Sec. 7.2. In companies where the (supervisory) board is small, the functions assigned to the three committees may be performed by the (supervisory) board as a whole, provided that it meets the composition requirements advocated for the committees and that adequate information is provided in this respect. In such a situation, the national provisions relating to board committees (in particular with respect to their role, operation, and transparency) should

| Article 58. Activity Principles of an Executive Body of a Joint Stock Company | n/a |
| 1. The executive body of the joint stock company shall manage day-to-day activities of the company. | n/a |
The executive body shall be competent to solve all issues related to the management of the day-to-day activities of the company, except for those that fall within the exclusive competence of the general meeting and the supervisory council.

2. The executive body of a joint stock company shall report to the general meeting and the supervisory council, and organize the implementation of their decisions. The executive body shall act on behalf of the joint stock company within the limits set by the charter of the joint stock company and the law.

3. The executive body of a joint stock company may be either a collegiate body (management board, directorate) or single-person body (director, general manager).

4. Any individual who has the full civil-law capability and is not a member of the supervisory council or the examining commission of the company in question may be a member of the executive body of the joint stock company.

5. Rights and duties of members of the executive body of the joint stock company shall be defined by this Law, other acts of legislation, the company charter and/or the executive body charter of the company, as well as the contract to be concluded with each member of the executive body. The contract shall be signed on behalf of the company by the chairman of the supervisory council or the individual authorized to do so by the supervisory council.

6. On request of bodies and officers of the company, the executive body must provide an opportunity for the familiarization with the information about activities of the company within the limits set out by law, the charter and internal policies of the company.

Individuals who have gained access to restricted-access information shall be liable for the illegitimate use thereof.

Article 59. Collegiate Executive Body of a Joint Stock Company

1. The number of members of the executive body, the procedure of the appointment of its members shall be specified by the charter of the company. The procedure of convening and holding meetings of the collegiate executive body shall be specified by the charter or the executive body charter of the joint stock company.

2. Each member of the collegiate executive body shall have the right to require a meeting of the collegiate executive body to be held and to suggest issues for the meeting agenda.

3. Members of the supervisory council, as well as a representative of a trade union body or another body authorized by the employee team that has signed the collective contract on behalf of the employee team shall have the right to be present at meetings of the collegiate executive body. The charter may also vest other parties with the right to be present at a meeting of the collegiate executive body.

4. Minutes of meeting of a collegiate executive body shall be kept. The minutes of meeting of the collegiate executive body shall be signed by the chairman and issued for familiarization on request of a member of the collegiate executive body, a member of the supervisory council or a representative of a trade union body or another body authorized by the employee team that has signed the collective contract on behalf of the employee team. The charter of the joint stock company may also vest other individuals with the right to receive the minutes of meeting of the collegiate executive body for the familiarization.

5. The chairman of the collegiate executive body shall be elected by the supervisory council of the company, unless otherwise provided by the charter of the company, in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the charter of the joint stock company.

The chairman of the collegiate executive body shall organize the work of the collegiate executive body, convene meetings and ensure the maintenance of the minutes of meetings.

The chairman of the collegiate executive body shall have the right to act without the power of attorney on behalf of the company in accordance with decisions of the collegiate executive body, e.g., represent interests of the company, enter into transactions on behalf of the company, issue orders and instructions binding upon all employees of the company. Another member of the collegiate executive body may also be vested with these powers, if the charter of the company so provides, in accordance with the procedure specified by the legislation.
6. In case of the inability of the chairman of the collegiate executive body to exercise his powers, the powers in question shall be exercised by one of the members of the collegiate executive body by decision of the said body, unless otherwise provided by the charter of the company or the charter of the executive body of the joint stock company. Other parties may act on behalf of the company by way of the representation as provided for by the Civil Code of Ukraine.

Article 60. Single-person Executive Body

1. The procedure of the decision-making by an individual who exercises powers of a single-person executive body shall be specified by the charter of the company.

2. The individual exercising powers of a single-person executive body shall have the right to act without the power of attorney on behalf of the company in accordance with decisions of the collegiate executive body, e.g., represent interests of the company, enter into transactions on behalf of the company, issue orders and instructions binding upon all employees of the company.

3. In case of the inability of the individual exercising the powers of a single-person executive body to exercise his powers, these powers shall be exercised by an individual appointed by him, unless otherwise prescribed by the charter of the company or the executive body charter.

Article 61. Termination of Powers of the Chairman and Members of the Executive Body

1. Powers of a chairman of the collegiate executive body (an individual exercising the powers of a single-person executive body) shall be terminated by decision of the supervisory council, unless the charter of the joint stock company includes this issue into the competence of the general meeting.

Powers of a member of the collegiate executive body shall be terminated by decision of the supervisory council, unless the charter of the joint stock company includes this issue into the competence of the general meeting.

The grounds for the termination of powers of a chairman.
and/or a member of the executive body shall be specified by law, the company charter, and the contract concluded with the chairman and/or the member of the executive body.

2. If the election and the termination of powers of the chairman of the collegiate executive body (the individual exercising powers of the single-person executive body) is included into the competence of the general meeting in accordance with the charter of the company, the supervisory council shall have the right to suspend the chairman of the collegiate executive body (the individual exercising powers of the single-person executive body), whose actions or inaction violate rights of shareholders or the company itself, from his powers until the general meeting solves the issue of the termination of his powers.

Until the general meeting solves the issue of the termination of powers of the chairman of the collegiate executive body (the individual exercising powers of the single-person executive body), the supervisory council shall be required to appoint an individual who will provisionally exercise the powers of the chairman of the collegiate executive body (the individual exercising powers of the single-person executive body), and convene an extraordinary general meeting.

3. In case of the suspension of the chairman of the executive body or the individual acting in his capacity, the supervisory council shall be required to announce a general meeting of the company whose agenda must include the issue of the re-election of the chairman of the executive body of the company, within 10 days of the approval of the relevant decision.

Section 9. Officers of Bodies of a Joint Stock Company

Article 62. Requirements for Officers of Bodies of a Joint Stock Company

1. Deputies of the Parliament of Ukraine, members of the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine, heads of central and local executive bodies, local self-government bodies, military servicemen, notaries, officers of public prosecution, court, security service, internal affairs agencies, state officials may not be officers of bodies of a joint stock company, except for cases when they exercise functions related to the management of corporate rights of the state and represent interests of the state or the territorial community in the supervisory council or the examining commission of the company. Individuals prohibited by court from exercising a certain activity may not be officers of bodies of a company that exercises the activity in question. Individuals, who have non-cancelled convictions for crimes against property, service or economic crimes, may not be officers of bodies of a company.

2. Officers of bodies of a joint stock company shall not have the right to divulgate commercial secrets and confidential information about activities of the company, except for cases envisaged by law.

3. Officers of bodies of the company must provide documents on the financial and business activities of the company on request of the examining commission (examiner) or the auditor.

4. Officers of bodies of the joint stock company shall be paid remuneration solely on terms and conditions set out by contracts governed by civil law or labour contracts concluded with them.

2. The share acquisition offer addressed to shareholders must contain the data on:

1) the party (each of the parties acting together), which has acquired the controlling interest in the company, and its affiliated parties: the last name (the name), the place of residence (the seat), the number, the type and/or the class of shares in the company held by each party so listed;

2) the offered share purchase price and the procedure of determining the same;

3) the time frame for the notification of the acceptance of the share acquisition offer by shareholders in accordance with part three of this article;

4) the procedure of the payment for shares being acquired.

3. The time frame, during which the shareholders may notify the entity (jointly acting entities) that has acquired the controlling interest of the acceptance of the share acquisition offer, must range from 30 to 120 days from the offer date.

4. The share acquisition price may not be lower than the market price determined in accordance with Article 8 of this Law.

5. The entity (jointly acting entities) that has acquired the controlling interest must pay shareholders, which have accepted the offer, the value of their shares on the basis of the acquisition price stated in the proposal within 30 days of the expiry of the time frame stated in the proposal; the shareholder, which has accepted the proposal, must take all actions required for the acquisition of the ownership of its shares by the entity (jointly acting entities) that has acquired the controlling interest.

6. Provisions of this part of the article shall not apply to the entity (jointly acting entities), which already owns a controlling interest taking account of the number of shares held by them and entities affiliated therewith.

The provisions that within the aforementioned period, the board of the offeree company shall obtain the prior authorization of the general meeting of shareholders given for this purpose before taking any action, other than seeking alternative bids, which may result in the frustration of the bid and in particular before issuing any shares which may result in a lasting impediment to the offeror’s acquiring control of the offeree company shall be added.

The rules which govern the conduct of bids shall be stipulated, at least as regards the following:

To that end, they may draw up a list of circumstances in which the highest price may be adjusted either upwards or downwards, for example where the highest price was set by agreement between the purchaser and a seller, where the market prices of the securities in question have been manipulated, where market prices in general or certain market prices in particular have been affected by exceptional occurrences, or in order to enable a firm in difficulty to be rescued. They may also determine the criteria to be applied in such cases, for example the average market value over a particular period, the break-up value of the company or other objective valuation criteria generally used in financial analysis. Any decision by a supervisory authority to adjust the equitable price shall be substantiated and made public.

5. By way of consideration the offeror may offer securities, cash or a combination of both. However, where the consideration offered by the offeror does not consist of liquid securities admitted to trading on a regulated market, it shall include a cash alternative.

In any event, the offeror shall offer a cash consideration at least as an alternative where he/she or persons acting in concert with him/her, over a period beginning at the same time as the period determined by the Member State in accordance with paragraph 4 and ending when the offer closes for acceptance, has purchased for cash securities carrying 5% or more of the voting rights in the offeree company. Member States may provide that a cash consideration must be offered, at least as an alternative, in all cases.

6. In addition to the protection provided for in paragraph 1, Member States may provide for further instruments intended to protect the interests of the holders of securities in so far as those instruments do not hinder the normal course of a bid.

Article 6

1. Member States shall ensure that a decision to make a bid is made public without delay and that the supervisory authority is informed of the bid. They may require that the supervisory authority must be informed before such a decision is made public. As soon as the bid has been made public, the boards of the offeree company and of the offeror shall inform the representatives of their respective employees or, where there are no such representatives, the employees themselves.

3. The offer document referred to in paragraph 2 shall state at least:
(a) the terms of the bid;
(b) the identity of the offeror and, where the offeror is a company, the type, name and registered office of that company;
(c) the securities or, where appropriate, the class or classes of securities for which the bid is made;
(d) the consideration offered for each security or class of securities and, in the case of a mandatory bid, the method employed in determining it, with particulars of the way in which that consideration is to be paid;
(e) the compensation offered for the rights which might be removed as a result of the breakthrough rule laid down in Article 11(4), with particulars of the way in which that compensation is to be paid and the method employed in determining it;
(f) the maximum and minimum percentages or quantities of securities which the offeror undertakes to acquire;
(g) details of any existing holdings of the offeror, and of persons acting in concert with him/her, in the offeree company;
(h) all the conditions to which the bid is subject;
(i) the offeror’s intentions with regard to the future business of the offeree company and, in so far as it is affected by the bid, the offeror company and with regard to the safeguarding of the jobs of their employees and management, including any material change in the conditions of employment, and in particular the offeror’s strategic plans for the two companies and the likely repercussions on employment and the locations of the companies’ places of business;
(j) the time allowed for acceptance of the bid;
(k) where the consideration offered by the offeror includes securities of any kind, information concerning those securities;
(l) information concerning the financing for the bid;
(m) the identity of persons acting in concert with the offeror or with the offeree company and, in the case of companies, their types, names, registered offices and relationships with the offeror and, where possible, with the offeree company;
(n) the national law which will govern contracts concluded between the offeror and the holders of the offeree company’s securities as a result of the bid and the competent courts.

Article 7
1. Member States shall provide that the time allowed for the acceptance of a bid may not be less than two weeks nor more than 10 weeks from the date of publication of the offer document.
Provided that the general principle laid down in Article 3(1)(f) is respected, Member States may provide that the period of 10 weeks may be extended on condition that the offeror gives at least two weeks’ notice of his/her intention of closing the bid.

Article 9
2. During the period referred to in the second subparagraph, the board of the offeree company shall obtain the prior authorization of the general meeting of shareholders given for this purpose before taking any action, other than seeking alternative bids, which may result in the frustration of the bid and in particular before issuing any shares which may result in a lasting impediment to the offeror’s acquiring control of the offeree company.

2. Member States shall ensure that an offeror is able to require all the holders of the remaining securities to sell him/her those securities at a fair price. Member States shall introduce that Amendment proposal: provisions about the right of squeeze-out and sell-out shall be implemented to the Law on JSC.
right in one of the following situations: (a) where the offeror holds securities representing not less than 90% of the capital carrying voting rights and 90% of the voting rights in the offeree company, or (b) where, following acceptance of the bid, he/she has acquired or has firmly contracted to acquire securities representing not less than 90% of the offeree company’s capital carrying voting rights and 90% of the voting rights comprised in the bid.

In the case referred to in (a), Member States may set a higher threshold that may not, however, be higher than 95% of the capital carrying voting rights and 95% of the voting rights.

3. Member States shall ensure that rules are in force that make it possible to calculate when the threshold is reached.

Where the offeree company has issued more than one class of securities, Member States may provide that the right of squeeze-out can be exercised only in the class in which the threshold laid down in paragraph 2 has been reached.

4. If the offeror wishes to exercise the right of squeeze-out he/she shall do so within three months of the end of the time allowed for acceptance of the bid referred to in Article 7.

5. Member States shall ensure that a fair price is guaranteed. That price shall take the same form as the consideration offered in the bid or shall be in cash. Member States may provide that cash shall be offered at least as an alternative.
Following a voluntary bid, in both of the cases referred to in paragraph 2(a) and (b), the consideration offered in the bid shall be presumed to be fair where, through acceptance of the bid, the offeror has acquired securities representing not less than 90% of the capital carrying voting rights comprised in the bid.
Following a mandatory bid, the consideration offered in the bid shall be presumed to be fair.

Article 16

The right of sell-out
1. Member States shall ensure that, following a bid made to all the holders of the offeree company’s securities for all of their securities, paragraphs 2 and 3 apply.
2. Member States shall ensure that a holder of remaining securities is able to require the offeror to buy his/her securities from him/her at a fair price under the same circumstances as provided for in Article 15(2).
3. Article 15(3) to (5) shall apply mutatis mutandis.

subject to the consent of holders of such shares. The procedure of the exercise of this right shall be set out in the company charter and/or the decision of the general meeting. The decision of the general meeting must specify:

1) the buy-out procedure that includes the maximum number, the type and/or the class of shares to be bought out;

2) the time frame of the buy-out;

3) the price of the buy-out (or the price determination procedure);

4) actions of the company in respect of the bought-out shares (their annulment or sale).

The time frame of the buy-out shall include the time frame of the acceptance of written share sale offers of shareholders and the time frame of the payment therefor. The share buy-out time frame may not exceed one year. A written offer by a shareholder to sell shares to the company shall be irrevocable.

The share buy-out price may not be lower than their market price determined in accordance with part three of Article 8 of this Law. The shares being bought out shall be paid for in cash.

The company shall be required to purchase shares from each shareholder who accepts the share buy-out offer at the price stated in the decision of the general meeting.

The legal instruments in respect of the conveyance of the ownership of shares to the company executed during the time frame specified in the decision of the general meeting at a price other than the price stated in the said decision shall be null and void.

2. If the general meeting has made a decision on a proportionate share buy-out, the company shall send each shareholder a notice in writing about the number of shares to be bought out, their price and the buy-out time frame. In a company with over 1,000 holders of ordinary shares, the acceptance of offers of shareholders on the sale of shares to the company shall last for at least 30 days since sending the said notice to the shareholders.

| 1. Without prejudice to the principle of equal treatment of all shareholders who are in the same position, and to Directive 2003/6/EC, Member States may permit a company to acquire its own shares, either itself or through a person acting in his own name but on the company's behalf. To the extent that the acquisitions are permitted, Member States shall make such acquisitions subject to the following conditions:

   (a) authorisation shall be given by the general meeting, which shall determine the terms and conditions of such acquisitions and, in particular, the maximum number of shares to be acquired, the duration of the period for which the authorisation is given, the maximum length of which shall be determined by national law without, however, exceeding five years, and, in the case of acquisition for value, the maximum and minimum consideration. Members of the administrative or management body shall satisfy themselves that, at the time when each authorised acquisition is effected, the conditions referred to in points (b) and (c) are respected;

   (b) the acquisitions, including shares previously acquired by the company and held by it, and shares acquired by a person acting in his own name but on the company's behalf, may not have the effect of reducing the net assets below the amount mentioned in Article 17(1) |

However, the maximum consideration shall be foreseen as well in the decision of the general meeting concerning the acquisition. The data to be stated in the annual report need to be revised.
The general meeting may make a decision to buy out a specific quantity of shares of a certain type and/or class from specific shareholders subject to their consent. In this case, the decision must contain last names (names) of shareholders, from whom shares are being bought out, and the number of shares of a certain type and/or class bought out from such shareholders.

3. Shares bought out by the joint stock company shall be disregarded for the purposes of the profit allocation, the voting and the ascertainment of the general meeting quorum. The company must sell shares bought out by the company or annul them in accordance with the decision of the general meeting, which provided for the buy-out of own shares by the company, within one year since the time of buy-out.

The sales price of shares bought out by the company may not be lower than their market price determined in accordance with Article 8 of this Law.

Legal instruments related to the conveyance of the ownership of shares bought out by the company executed with the violation of requirements of this part shall be null and void.

4. The joint stock company shall have the right to buy out securities other than shares placed thereby by decision of the supervisory council subject to the consent of owners of such securities, if so provided by the company charter and the issue prospectus of such securities.

and (2); and
(c) only fully paid-up shares may be included in the transaction.

art. 23
Shares acquired in contravention of Articles 21 and 22 shall be disposed of within one year of their acquisition. Should they not be disposed of within that period, Article 22(3) shall apply.

art. 24
1. Where the laws of a Member State permit a company to acquire its own shares, either itself or through a person acting in his own name but on the company's behalf, they shall make the holding of those shares at all times subject to at least the following conditions:
(a) among the rights attaching to the shares, the right to vote attaching to the company's own shares shall in any event be suspended;
(b) if the shares are included among the assets shown in the balance sheet, a reserve of the same amount, unavailable for distribution, shall be included among the liabilities.

2. Where the laws of a Member State permit a company to acquire its own shares, either itself or through a person acting in his own name but on the company's behalf, they shall require the annual report to state at least:
(a) the reasons for acquisitions made during the financial year;
Article 67. Limitation of the Share Buy-out by a Joint Stock Company

1. The general meeting of a joint stock company shall have no right to make decisions to buy-out shares, if:
   1) the company has mandatory share buy-out liabilities under Article 68 hereof as of the share buy-out date;
   2) the company is insolvent or will become insolvent as a result of the share buy-out;
   3) the equity of the company is lower than the sum of its authorized capital and reserved capital, and the exceedence of the liquidation value of preference shares over their par value, or will become lower than the said sum as a result of the said buy-out.

2. The joint stock company shall have no right to place ordinary shares placed thereby until the full disbursement of the current dividend under preference shares.

   The joint stock company shall have no right to buy out preference shares placed thereby until the full disbursement of the current dividends under preference shares, whose holders enjoy priority in terms of the obtainment of dividends.

(b) the number and nominal value or, in the absence of a nominal value, the accountable par of the shares acquired and disposed of during the financial year and the proportion of the subscribed capital which they represent;
(c) in the case of acquisition or disposal for a value, the consideration for the shares;
(d) the number and nominal value or, in the absence of a nominal value, the accountable par of all the shares acquired and held by the company and the proportion of the subscribed capital which they represent.

Directive 2012/30/EU ("Capital Directive")
Art. 21 (supra)

The Directive’s requirements are met.
3. The joint stock company shall have no right to make decisions that provide for the company share buy-out without the annulment thereof, if the portion of the company's shares in circulation will become lower than 80 per cent of the authorized capital after the buy-out.

Article 68. Mandatory Share Buy-out by a Joint Stock Company on Demand of Shareholders

1. Each shareholder holding ordinary shares in the company shall have the right to demand a mandatory buy-out by the joint stock company of the voting shares held by the shareholder, if the shareholder has registered for the participation in the general meeting and voted against a decision of the general meeting on:

   1) the merger, the affiliation, the division, the transformation, the spin off and the modification of the type of a company;

   2) the engagement of the company into a substantial transaction;

   3) the modification of the amount of the authorized fund;

2. Each shareholder holding preference shares in the company shall have the right to demand a mandatory buy-out by the joint stock company of the preference shares held by the shareholder, if the shareholder has registered for the participation in the general meeting and voted against a decision of the general meeting on:

   1) the introduction of changes into the company charter that provide for the placement of a new class of preference shares, whose owners will have preference in terms of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the joint stock company liquidation;

   2) the increase in the extent of rights of shareholders that own the placed preference shares that have preference in terms of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the joint stock company liquidation.

The list of shareholders eligible for demanding a mandatory buy-out of shares held by them under parts one and two of this article shall be compiled on the basis of a list of shareholders registered for the participation in the general meeting, at which decisions that underlie the demand for the mandatory share buy-out have been made.

Article 69. Procedure of the Exercise by Shareholders of the Right to Demand the Mandatory Buy-out of Their Shares by the Joint Stock Company

1. The share buy-out price may not be lower than their market price.

   The share buy-out price shall be calculated as of the date preceding the date of the publication of the notice of the general meeting, at which decisions that underlie the demand for the mandatory share buy-out have been made, in accordance with the established procedure.

   The market value of shares shall be determined according to the procedure prescribed by Article 8 hereof.

   The contract between the joint stock company and the shareholder on the mandatory buy-out of the shareholder's shares by the company shall be concluded in writing.

2. A shareholder intent on exercising the right to demand the mandatory share buy-out shall submit a written demand to the company within 30 days of the decision of the general meeting, which underlies the demand for the mandatory share buy-out. The shareholder's mandatory share buy-out demand must indicate the shareholder's last name (name), place of residence (seat), the number, the type and/or the class of shares whose mandatory buy-out is demanded by the shareholder.

3. The company shall pay the value of shares at the buy-out price stated in the notice of the demand for the mandatory buy-out of shares held by the shareholder within 30 days of receipt of the demand of the shareholder for the mandatory share buy-out, while the relevant shareholder must take all actions required for the obtainment of the

The shares shall be paid in cash, unless the parties have agreed on a different form of payment within the time frames specified in this article.

Section 13. Significant Transaction and Non-Arm's Length Transaction

Article 70. Significant Transaction

1. A decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by the supervisory council, if the market value of the property or the services being the object thereof ranges from 10 to 25 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company.

   The charter of a joint stock company may specify additional criteria for the categorization of a transaction as significant.

   In case of the failure of the supervisory council to make a decision on the engagement into a significant transaction, the issue of such a transaction may be raised at the general meeting.

2. A decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by the general meeting on the basis of a proposal by the supervisory council, if the market value of the property or the services being the object thereof exceeds 25 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company.

   A decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by the simple majority of votes of shareholders registered for the participation in a general meeting and holding shares that vote on the issue in question, if the market value of the property or the services being the object thereof exceeds 25 per cent and is lower than 50 per cent of the value of assets according to the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company.

   A decision to engage into a significant transaction shall be made by more than 50 per cent of the total number of shareholders, if the market value of the property, the work or the services being the object thereof equals or exceeds 50 per cent of the value of assets according to

   However, see the Proposal for a Directive amending Directive 2007/36/EC (SRD) as regards the encouragement of long-term shareholder engagement (Presidency compromise text of November 10th, 2014), motive No. 19 of the Preamble: Transactions with related parties may cause prejudice to companies and their shareholders, as they may give the related party the opportunity to appropriate value belonging to the company. Thus, adequate safeguards for the protection of shareholders’ interests are of importance. For this reason Member States should ensure that related party transactions representing more than 5% of the companies’ assets or transactions which can have a significant impact on profits or turnover should be submitted to a vote by the shareholders in a general meeting. Where the related party transaction involves a shareholder, this shareholder should be excluded from that vote. The company should not be allowed to conclude the transaction before the shareholders’ approval of the transaction.
the latest annual financial statement of the joint stock company.

3. If it is not possible to determine as of the general meeting date, what kind of significant transactions will be carried out by the joint stock company in the course of the day-to-day business, the general meeting may make a decision to pre-approve significant transactions that can be carried out by the company within not more than one year of the said decision date with the indication of the type of transactions and their ultimate aggregate value. In this case, the relevant provisions of part two of this article must be applied depending on the ultimate aggregate value of such transactions.

4. Requirements of this section for the significant transaction procedure shall be applied as additional to other requirements for the procedure of the performance of certain transactions set out by law or the charter of a joint stock company.

5. It shall be prohibited to divide the object of the transaction in order to evade the procedure of making decisions on substantial transactions provided for hereby.

For transactions with related parties that represent more than 1% of their assets companies should publicly announce such transactions at the time of the conclusion of the transaction, and accompany the announcement by a report from an independent third party assessing whether the transaction is on market terms and confirming that the transaction is fair and reasonable from the perspective of the shareholders, including minority shareholders.

Member States should be allowed to exclude transactions entered into between the company and its wholly owned subsidiaries. Member States should also be able to allow companies to request the advance approval by shareholders for certain clearly defined types of recurrent transactions above 5 percent of the assets, and to request from shareholders an advance exemption from the obligation to produce an independent third party report for recurrent transactions above 1 percent of the assets, under certain conditions, in order to facilitate the conclusion of such transactions by companies.

See also art. 9c of the compromiss text of the draft amending Directive.

Article 71. Non-Arm's Length Transaction

1. An officer; his family member being a spouse, parents (adoptive parents), tutors (guardians), a brother, a sister, children and their spouses, a legal entity, in which the share held by the officer of bodies of the company or his family members accounts for 25 or more

per cent; a shareholder, who owns 25 or more per cent of ordinary shares in the company personally or together with his family members shall be deemed to be a person interested in the performance of a transaction by a joint stock company, provided that the said person (persons, jointly or severally) meets at least one of the following criteria:

1) he (it) is a party to the said transaction or is a member of the executive body of the legal entity being a party to the transaction;

2) he (it) is remunerated for the engagement into the said transaction by the company (officers of the company) or a party to the transaction;

3) he (it) acquires property as a result of the said transaction;

4) he (it) takes part in a transaction as a representative or an intermediary (other than the representation of the company by officers).

A party interested in a transaction must inform the company of his (its) interest within three business days of the emergence of the interest on the party's part.

2. The executive body of a joint stock company shall be required to provide the supervisory council (or, lacking the supervisory council, each shareholder in person) with the information about non-arm's length transactions within five days of receipt of the information about the possible engagement into a non-arm's length transaction; the information shall include, for instance, the following:

1) the object of the transaction;

2) the unit cost of the commodities or services, if envisaged by the transaction;

3) the total amount of the transaction in respect of the acquisition, the alienation or the possible alienation of the property, the performance of work, the provision or the receipt of services;

4) the party interested in the engagement into such a transaction.

If a non-arm's length transaction violates interests of the company, the supervisory council may prohibit its commission or present it for review by the general meeting.

The supervisory council must make a decision on the performance of a non-arm's length transaction by the company or the refusal of the company to do so within five business days of receipt of the information about the non-arm's length transaction.

If the party interested in the transaction is a member of the supervisory council, the said party shall not take part in the vote on the engagement into such a transaction. If the majority of members of the supervisory council are the parties interested in the said transaction or if the supervisory council has not been established or has not made a decision on the performance or the refusal to perform the non-arm's length transaction within the time frame prescribed by this article, the relevant issue shall be presented to the general meeting for review.

The supervisory council may make a decision to engage into the transaction or to refuse to engage into the transaction.

3. Provisions of this article shall not be applied in case of:

   1) the exercise of the pre-emptive right by shareholders under Article 27 of this Law;

   2) the buy-out by the company of shares placed by the company from shareholders under Article 66 hereof;

   3) the spin off and the termination of a joint stock company;

   4) the provision of a guarantee or suretyship (including property suretyship), pledge or mortgage to parties, which grant a loan to the company, by an officer of bodies of the company or a shareholder, which holds 25 and more per cent of ordinary shares in the company unilaterally or together with affiliated entities, free of charge.

Article 72. Results of the Failure to Meet Requirements for the Procedure of the Engagement into a Non-Arm's Length Transaction

1. A transaction performed with the violation of requirements of Article 71 hereof may be invalidated by court.

2. The person interested in the performance of a transaction in question by the joint stock company shall be liable for the damage caused to the company by the transaction committed with the violation of requirements of Article 71 hereof.

the confirmation of the adequacy and the completeness of the financial reporting data for the relevant period; facts of the violation of the legislation during the exercise of the financial and business activities, as well as the prescribed procedure of the maintenance of accounts and the submission of statements.

Article 75. Auditor

1. Annual financial statements of a public joint stock company shall require a statutory audit by an independent auditor.

2. Officers of the company must provide access for an independent auditor to all documents needed for the inspection of results of the financial and business activities of the company.

3. The following parties may not be an independent auditor:
   1) an affiliated party of the company;
   2) an affiliated party of an officer of the company;
   3) a party that provides consultancy services to the company.

4. In addition to the data envisaged by the legislation on audit activities, the audit report must contain the information envisaged by part two of Article 74 of this Law, and the assessment of the completeness and the trueness of the presentation of the financial and business standing of the company in its accounting statements.

5. An audit of activities of a joint stock company may also be carried out on demand of a shareholder (shareholders) that own more than 10 per cent of ordinary shares in the company. In this case, the shareholder (shareholders) shall enter into a contract for the audit of the financial and business activities of the company with an auditor (audit firm) chosen thereby indicating the scope of the audit.

Expenses related to the performance of the audit shall be borne by the shareholder (shareholders) that have demanded the audit. A general shareholder meeting may make a decision to reimburse the expenses related to the audit.
shareholder (shareholders) for expenses for such an audit.

6. The company must provide the auditor with the possibility of the performance of the audit within 10 days of receipt of an inquiry of the shareholder (shareholders) in respect of such an audit. The executive body must issue a response to the shareholder (shareholders) with the information about the audit commencement date within the specified time frame.

The audit on request of a shareholder (shareholders) holding more than 10 per cent of shares in the company may be carried out not more than twice a calendar year.

In case of the audit of the company performed on the basis of a request of the shareholder (shareholders), which own more than 10 per cent of ordinary shares in the company, the executive body of the company must provide copies of all documents authenticated with a signature of an authorized officer of the company and the seal of the company on demand of such a shareholder (shareholders) within five business days of receipt of the relevant request from the auditor.

Article 76. Special Inspection of Financial and Business Activities of a Joint Stock Company

1. A special inspection of the financial and business activities of a joint stock company shall be carried out by the examining commission (the examiner) or, lacking the same, by the auditor. The said inspection shall be carried out on the initiative of the examining commission (the examiner), on decision of the general meeting, the supervisory council, the executive body or on demand of the shareholder (shareholders) that together own at least 10 per cent of ordinary shares in the company as of the demand submission date.

2. Regardless of the existence of the examining commission (the examiner) in the company, the special inspection of financial and business activities of a joint stock company may be performed by an auditor on demand and at the expense of the shareholder (shareholders) that together own at least 10 per cent of ordinary shares in the company as of the demand submission date.

The threshold allowing shareholder to demand special inspection of a JSC should be reduced to 5% in order to improve the level of protection of minority shareholders, at least in public JSCs.

Section 15. Storage of Documents of a Joint Stock Company. Information about JSC

Article 77. Storage of Documents of a Joint Stock Company.
1. A joint stock company shall be required to store:

The responsibility for the storage of documents of the company shall be vested in the head of the collegiate executive body (the individual who exercises powers of the single-person executive agency) and the chief accountant as regards the accounting and financial reporting documents.

3. Documents referred to in part one of this article shall be kept for the whole period of activities of the company, except for accounting documents, whose storage periods shall be determined in accordance with the legislation.

Article 78. Disclosure of the Information by a Joint Stock Company

1. A joint stock company shall provide each shareholder with access to documents referred to in items 1 to 3, 5 to 11, 13, 14, 16 and 17 of part one of Article 77 hereof.

2. Article 80. Merger, Affiliation, Division, Spin off and Transformation of a Company

1. The merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off and the transformation of a joint stock company shall be carried out on the basis of a decision of the general meeting or, in cases covered by law, by decision of court or appropriate authorities.

   In cases envisaged by law, the division of a joint stock company or the spin off of one or several joint stock companies therefrom shall be undertaken on the basis of the decision of appropriate state authorities or by court decision.

   Law may provide for the obtainment of the consent from relevant state authorities to the termination of a joint stock company by means of the merger or the affiliation.

   A joint stock company may not undertake the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off and/or the transformation simultaneously.

2. Shares of a company terminated as a result of the division shall be converted into shares of successor companies and placed among their shareholders.

   Shares of companies terminated as a result of the merger or the affiliation shall be converted into shares of the successor company and placed among its shareholders.

   Shares of a company being transformed shall be converted into interests (units) in the successor business corporation and allocated among its participants.

   In case of the spin off, shares of a company, from which another company is separated, shall be converted into the shares of the joint stock company in question and the separating joint stock company, and placed among shareholders of the company, from which another company is being separated.

   Shares of companies that take part in the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off or the transformation owned by shareholders

   Directive 2011/35/EU

   Article 3

   1. For the purposes of this Directive, ‘merger by acquisition’ shall mean the operation whereby one or more companies are wound up without going into liquidation and transfer to another all their assets and liabilities in exchange for the issue to the shareholders of the company or companies being acquired of shares in the acquiring company and a cash payment, if any, not exceeding 10 % of the nominal value of the shares so issued or, where they have no nominal value, of their accounting par value.

   2. A Member State’s laws may provide that merger by acquisition may also be effected where one or more of the companies being acquired is in liquidation, provided that this option is restricted to companies which have not yet begun to distribute their assets to their shareholders.

   Article 23

   1. Articles 5, 6 and 7 and Articles 9 to 22 of this Directive shall apply, without prejudice to Articles 12 and 13 of Directive 2009/101/EC, to merger by formation of a new company. For this purpose, ‘merging companies’ and ‘company being acquired’ shall mean

   The definitions of mergers and divisions from the Directives 2011/35/EU and 82/891/EEC shall be implemented into Ukrainian legal system.

   A new law on corporate transformations (see German or Spanish examples), embracing all transformations of all companies’ types and including rules on domestic as well as cross-border mergers and divisions should be enacted. This should also provide legal certainty and reliable framework for mergers and divisions involving different corporate forms, and possibly also partnerships. The new law should be free of gaps but also of overlaps resulting from possible collisions with provisions on transformation contained in other laws.
that have demanded a mandatory share buy-out from the joint stock company and are eligible therefor shall not be converted.

The procedure of the conversion of shares to be terminated into shares of a newly established joint stock company shall be specified by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

3. Issued securities (other than shares) of joint stock companies taking part in the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off or the transformation must vest their holders with at least the same extent of rights as they were vested with before the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off or the transformation. It shall be disallowed to reduce the extent of rights of holders of such securities.

4. Shareholders of companies taking part in the merger, the affiliation, the division or the spin off may also receive monetary payments not exceeding an amount specified in the charter of the company in the course of the conversion of shares in the course of the merger, the affiliation, the division or the spin off of a joint stock company.

The procedure of making such payments shall be specified by the merger (affiliation) contract or the division (spin off) plan.

5. Each participant shall have the number of votes at a meeting of participants of the successor business corporation that would be vested in the participant with shares (units, interests) in the successor business corporation, which can come into the participant’s ownership as a result of the merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off or the transformation of the joint stock company.

6. The merger, the division or the transformation of a joint stock company shall be deemed completed on the date of the entry of a record of termination of the joint stock company and a record of the registration of the successor business corporation (corporations) into the United State Register.

The affiliation of a joint stock company to another joint stock company shall be deemed completed on the date of the entry of record of the termination of such a joint stock company into the United State Register of Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs.

the companies which will cease to exist, and ‘acquiring company’ shall mean the new company.

Point (a) of Article 5(2) of this Directive shall also apply to the new company.

2. The draft terms of merger and, if they are contained in a separate document, the memorandum or draft memorandum of association and the articles or draft articles of association of the new company shall be approved at a general meeting of each of the companies that will cease to exist.

Directive 82/891/EEC
Article 2
1. For the purposes of this Directive, 'division by acquisition' shall mean the operation whereby, after being wound up without going into liquidation, a company transfers to more than one company all its assets and liabilities in exchange for the allocation to the shareholders of the company being divided of shares in the companies receiving contributions as a result of the division (hereinafter referred to as 'recipient companies') and possibly a cash payment not exceeding 10% of the nominal value of the shares allocated or, where they have no nominal value, of their accounting par value.

Article 21
For the purposes of this Directive, 'division by Article 23 the formation of new companies' means the operation
The spin off of a joint stock company shall be deemed completed on the date of entry of a record of the establishment of the separated joint stock company into the Universal State Register.

The affiliation of a joint stock company to another joint stock company shall be deemed completed on the date of the entry of record of the termination of such a joint stock company into the Unified State Register of Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs.

whereby, after being wound up without going into liquidation, a company transfers to more than one newly-formed company all its assets and liabilities in exchange for the allocation to the shareholders of the company being divided of shares in the recipient companies, and possibly a cash payment not exceeding 10% of the nominal value of the shares allocated or, where they have no nominal value, of their accounting par value.

company involved into the merger or the affiliation, the company must notify thereof creditors of the company in writing, and publish a notice of the decision in an official printed bulletin. A public company must also notify each stock exchange, at which it is listed, of the said decision.

2. A creditor, whose claims to a joint stock company, whose activities are being terminated as a result of the merger, the affiliation, the division, the transformation or from which the spin off takes place, are not secured with pledge or surety contracts may demand the company in writing that one of the following measures be taken at discretion of the company within 20 days of being sent a notice of the company termination: the securing of the liabilities by means of the entry into the pledge or surety contract, the early termination or the performance of liabilities to the creditor and the reimbursement for damages, unless otherwise provided by the contract between the company and the creditor. If the creditor has failed to submit a written demand to the company within the time frame prescribed by this part, it shall be deemed that the creditor does not require the company to take additional measures in respect of liabilities to the creditor in question.

The merger, the affiliation, the division, the spin off or the transformation may not be completed until the satisfaction of claims presented by creditors.

If the distribution balance sheet or the deed of conveyance does not make it possible to determine the successor, to which the liability was transferred or whether the company from which the spin off has taken place remained liable, then the successors and the company form which the spin off has taken place shall be jointly liable under such a liability.
publication of the draft terms of division and have not yet fallen due at the time of such publication.

2. To that end, the laws of Member States shall at least provide that such creditors shall be entitled to obtain adequate safeguards where the financial situation of the company being divided and that of the company to which the obligation will be transferred in accordance with the draft terms of division make such protection necessary and where those creditors do not already have such safeguards.

3. In so far as a creditor of the company to which the obligation has been transferred in accordance with the draft terms of division has not obtained satisfaction, the recipient companies shall be jointly and severally liable for that obligation. Member States may limit that liability to the net assets allocated to each of those companies other than the one to which the obligation has been transferred. However, they need not apply this paragraph where the division operation is subject to the supervision of a judicial authority in accordance with Article 23 and a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or any class of creditors of the company being divided have agreed to forego such joint and several liability at a meeting held pursuant to Article 23 (1) (c).
1. The emergence of a new successor joint stock company with the conveyance of all property, rights and duties of two and more joint stock companies simultaneously with their termination on the basis of deeds of conveyance shall be deemed to be the merger of joint stock companies.

A joint stock company may take part in the merger only with another joint stock company.

2. The supervisory council of each joint stock company taking part in the merger shall present the issue of the company termination by means of the merger, the approval of the merger contract, the charter of the company established as a result of the merger and the approval of the deed of conveyance to the general meeting of each joint stock company taking part in the merger for approval.

3. The bodies of the successor joint stock company shall be formed at a joint general shareholder meeting of the company taking part in the merger.

4. Shares in companies terminated as a result of the merger that have been bought out by the issuing company or owned by the company taking part in the merger together with the issuing company shall not be subject to the conversion.

Such shares shall be annulled in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

5. In case of the merger of companies, all rights and liabilities of each company shall be vested in the successor company in accordance with the deed of conveyance.

6. The merger of joint stock companies shall take place in accordance with the following procedure:

1) the making of a decision to terminate the company by means of the merger, to establish the company termination commission and to elect members of the termination commission by general meetings of each joint stock company taking part into the merger;

2) the satisfaction of claims of creditors presented to each joint stock company.

Article 20
The laws of the Member States shall at least lay down rules governing the civil liability towards the shareholders of the company being acquired of the members of the administrative or management bodies of that company in respect of misconduct on the part of members of those bodies in preparing and implementing the merger.

Article 22
1. The laws of the Member States may lay down nullity rules for mergers in accordance with the following conditions only:
   (a) nullity must be ordered in a court judgment;
   (b) mergers which have taken effect pursuant to Article 17 may be declared void only if there has been no judicial or administrative preventive supervision of their legality, or if they have not been drawn up and certified in due legal form, or if it is shown that the decision of the general meeting is void or voidable under national law;
   (c) nullification proceedings may not be initiated more than 6 months after the date on which the merger becomes effective as against the person alleging nullity or if the situation has been rectified;
   (d) where it is possible to remedy a defect liable to render a merger void, the competent court shall grant the companies involved a period of time within which to rectify the situation;
(e) a judgment declaring a merger void shall be published in the manner prescribed by the laws of each Member State in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC;
(f) where the laws of a Member State permit a third party to challenge such a judgment, that party may do so only within 6 months of publication of the judgment in the manner prescribed by Directive 2009/101/EC;
(g) a judgment declaring a merger void shall not of itself affect the validity of obligations owed by or in relation to the acquiring company which arose before the judgment was published and after the date on which the merger takes effect;

Such shares shall be annulled in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

5. The joint stock company from which the spin off takes place shall bear subsidiary liability under liabilities vested in the separated company in accordance with the distribution balance sheet. The separated company shall bear subsidiary liability under liabilities that have come into existence in the company from which the spin off takes place before the spin off but have not been vested in the separated company. If there are two or more separated companies, they shall bear joint subsidiary liability together with the company from which the spin off has taken place.

6. The joint stock company spin off procedure shall be implemented in accordance with the procedure specified in part six of Article 83 of this Law.

Article 87. Transformation of a Joint Stock Company

1. The modification of the organizational and legal form of a joint stock company with the termination thereof and the conveyance of all its property, rights and liabilities to a successor business corporation on the basis of the deed of conveyance shall be deemed to be the transformation of a joint stock company.

A joint stock company may only be transformed into another business corporation or a production co-operative society.

2. The supervisory council of the joint stock company to be transformed shall present the issue of the transformation of the company, the procedure and conditions of the transformation, the procedure of the exchange of shares in the company into interests (units) in the successor business corporation to the general meeting of
3. The general shareholder meeting of the company to be transformed shall make decisions on the transformation of the company, the procedure and conditions of the transformation, the procedure of the exchange of shares in the company into interests (units) in the successor business corporation.

Participants of the new business corporation established in the course of the transformation shall make decisions at their joint meeting on the approval of constituting documents of such a legal entity and the election (appointment) of managing bodies in accordance with requirements of the legislation.

4. The interests (units) in the successor business corporation shall take place with the preservation of the same ratios among shares of shareholders in the charter capital of the joint stock company that has been transformed.

The shares in the company to be transformed that have been bought out by the company in question, which have not been sold and/or annulled in accordance with this Law as of the date of the decision to terminate the company, shall not be subject to the exchange. Such shares shall be annulled in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the National Commission for Securities and Stock Market.

Article 88. Liquidation of a Joint Stock Company

1. The voluntary liquidation of a joint stock company shall be carried out on the basis of a decision of the general meeting, for instance, due to the expiry of the period for which the company has been established or after the attainment of the objective of its establishment in accordance with the procedure specified by the Civil Code of Ukraine and other acts of legislation subject to the specific features instituted by this Law. Other grounds for, and the procedure of, the termination of the company shall be specified by the legislation.

2. If the joint stock company is not liable to creditors as of the time of the decision to liquidate, its property shall be allocated among shareholders in accordance with Article 89 of this Law.
3. The decision on the liquidation of the joint stock company, the election of the liquidation commission, the approval of the liquidation procedure and the procedure of the allocation of the property remaining after the satisfaction of claims of creditors among the shareholders shall be solved by the general meeting of the joint stock company, unless otherwise prescribed by law.

4. The powers of a supervisory council and an executive body of a joint stock company shall be vested in the liquidation commission upon the election thereof. The liquidation balance sheet compiled by the liquidation commission shall require the approval by the general meeting.

5. The liquidation of a joint stock company shall be deemed completed and the company shall be deemed terminated from the date of entry of a record of the state registration of the termination of the company as a result of its liquidation into the Universal State Register.

Article 89. Allocation of the Property of a Joint Stock Company To Be Liquidated Between Creditors and Shareholders

1. In case of the liquidation of a solvent legal entity, the claims of its creditors and shareholders shall be satisfied in the following sequence:

   firstly, the claims for the reimbursement for the damage caused by the mutilation, other health impairment or death, and claims of creditors secured with pledge;

   secondly, the claims of employees related to labour relations, claims of authors for the fee for the utilization of the result of his intellectual or creative activities;

PUBLIC OR PRIVATE JOINT STOCK COMPANY CHARTER CAPITAL INCREASE (REDUCTION)
I. General Provisions

1. This Procedure shall apply to public and private joint stock companies (other than joint investment institutions) that undertake an increase or a reduction in the charter capital.

   This Procedure shall not apply to events of the increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company undertaken in connection with the conversion of liabilities of the company into shares, the change in the amount of the charter capital of the joint stock company in connection of the accession or the separation.

2. The share tranche registration, the share issue prospectus registration, the share issue prospectus changes registration, the public share placement results report registration, the private share placement results report registration or the refusal of the relevant registration shall be undertaken by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission (hereinafter referred to as the "Commission") in accordance with a regulatory act of the Commission that governs the procedure of the registration of a share tranche in case of a change in the amount of the charter capital of the joint stock company.

3. The joint stock company shall have the right to increase the charter capital after the registration of reports on results of the placement of all prior share tranches.

   The increase in the charter capital of the joint stock company in case of the existence of shares bought out by the company shall be disallowed.

   The general shareholder meeting may not make decisions to increase the charter capital until the registration of reports on placement results of all prior share tranches and/or in case of the availability of shares bought out by the company.

4. The charter capital value after the increase (reduction) therein must meet the requirements of part one of Article 14 of the Law of Ukraine "On Joint Stock Companies".

2012/30/EU Article 29
1. Any increase in capital must be decided upon by the general meeting. Both that decision and the increase in the subscribed capital shall be published in the manner laid down by the laws of each Member State, in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.

2012/30/EU Article 29
4. This Article shall apply to the issue of all securities which are convertible into shares or which carry the right to subscribe for shares, but not to the conversion of such securities, nor to the exercise of the right to subscribe.

n/a

Nothing to mention
The reduction in the charter capital of a joint stock company below the value prescribed by law shall result in the liquidation of the joint stock company.

The reduction in the charter capital of a joint stock company below the value prescribed by law shall result in the liquidation of the joint stock company.

Article 38
The subscribed capital may not be reduced to an amount less than the minimum capital laid down in accordance with Article 6. However, Member States may permit such a reduction if they also provide that the decision to reduce the subscribed capital may take effect only when the subscribed capital is increased to an amount at least equal to the prescribed minimum.

5. A joint stock company shall not have the right to make a decision to increase the charter capital by means of the public placement of shares, if the value of its equity is lower than the value of its charter capital.

In this case, the value of the issuer's equity as of the last reporting date preceding the date of decision to increase the charter capital by means of the public placement of shares shall be used as the basis.

6. The pre-emptive right of shareholders to the acquisition of shares additionally placed by the joint stock company (hereinafter referred to as the "pre-emptive right") shall only be effective in the course of the private placement of shares.

The pre-emptive right of a shareholder that owns ordinary shares shall be understood as the right of a shareholder to acquire ordinary shares placed by the company in proportion to the percentage of ordinary shares held thereby in the total number of ordinary shares.

The pre-emptive right of a shareholder that owns preference shares shall be the right to acquire preference shares of the same or another class placed by the company, if shares of such class vest their holders with preferences in respect of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the company liquidation, in proportion to the percentage of preference shares of a certain class held by the shareholder in the total number of preference shares of the class in question. 17 and/or in the company's assets in the event of liquidation; or (b) may permit, where the subscribed capital of a company having several classes of shares carrying different rights with regard to voting, or participation in distributions within the meaning of Article 17 or in assets in the event of liquidation, is increased by issuing new shares in only one of these classes, the right of pre-emption of shareholders of the other classes to be exercised only after the exercise of that right by the shareholders of the class in which the new shares are being issued.

4. The right of pre-emption may not be restricted or withdrawn by the statutes or instrument of incorporation. This may, however, be done by decision of the general meeting. The administrative or management body shall be required to present to such a meeting a written report indicating the reasons for restriction or withdrawal of the right of pre-emption, and justifying the proposed issue price. The general meeting shall act in accordance with the rules for a quorum and a majority laid down in Article 44. Its decision shall be published in the manner laid down by the laws of each Member State, in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.
5. The laws of a Member State may provide that the statutes, the instrument of incorporation or the general meeting, acting in accordance with the rules for a quorum, a majority and publication set out in paragraph 4, may give the power to restrict or withdraw the right of pre-emption to the company body which is empowered to decide on an increase in subscribed capital within the limit of the authorised capital. That power may not be granted for a longer period than the power for which provision is made in Article 29(2).

6. Paragraphs 1 to 5 shall apply to the issue of all securities which are convertible into shares or which carry the right to subscribe for shares, but not to the conversion of such securities, nor to the exercise of the right to subscribe.

7. The right of pre-emption is not excluded for the purposes of paragraphs 4 and 5 where, in accordance with the decision to increase the subscribed capital, shares are issued to banks or other financial institutions with a view to their being offered to shareholders of the company in accordance with paragraphs 1 and 3.

7. In case of the increase or the reduction in the charter capital of a joint stock company, in whose respect the court has opened bankruptcy proceedings, the stages of the increase or the reduction in the charter capital may be modified subject to requirements of the Law of Ukraine "On Restoring Debtor's Solvency or Declaring a Debtor Bankrupt".

8. If the National Bank of Ukraine appoints the provisional administration of a bank, the stages of the increase or reduction in the charter capital may be modified subject to requirements of the banking legislation.

9. A joint stock company shall place each share at a price lower than its market value, and may not place shares at a price below their par value. Shares may not be issued at a price lower than their nominal value, or, where there is no nominal value, their accountable par. However, Member States may allow those who

A joint stock company must buy out the voting shares held by a shareholder, if the shareholder has registered for the participation in the general meeting and voted against the decision of the general meeting to modify the charter capital. In this case, the shares shall be bought out in accordance with the procedure and within the time frame prescribed by the Law of Ukraine "On Joint Stock Companies" at a buy-out price that equals the market value of shares, unless a higher buy-out price has been approved with a decision of the general shareholder meeting or the supervisory council (if the supervisory council is vested with powers required for the approval of the buy-out price in accordance with the charter).

Does this mean that if you do not agree with modification of the capital you have no right to be a shareholder of the company?

10. The market value of the property (other than stock exchange-traded equity securities) and/or property interests contributed by way of the payment for shares shall be determined on the basis of the independent valuation carried out in accordance with the legislation on the valuation of the property, property interests and professional valuation activities.

The market value of the exchange-traded equity securities contributed as the payment for shares shall be determined on the basis of the exchange quotation as of the last business day preceding the payment date or, if the securities are traded at more than one stock exchange, they shall be marked to market at the lowest of the stock-exchange quotations determined and published at each stock exchange as of the last business day preceding the payment date.

The conveyance of interests in intellectual property rights objects being the objects of technology and contributed as the payment for shares of the company shall take place in accordance with the Law of Ukraine "On State Regulation of Activities in the Area of the Technology Transfer".

2012/30/EU Article 10
1. A report on any consideration other than in cash shall be drawn up before the company is incorporated or is authorised to commence business, by one or more independent experts appointed or approved by an administrative or judicial authority. Such experts may be natural persons as well as legal persons and companies or firms under the laws of each Member State.
2. The experts' report referred to in paragraph 1 shall contain at least a description of each of the assets comprising the consideration as well as of the methods of valuation used and shall state whether the values arrived at by the application of those methods correspond at least to the number and nominal value or, where there is no nominal value, to the accountable par and, where appropriate, to the premium on the shares to be issued for them.

11. The documents (copies) submitted pursuant to this Order shall be sealed with a stamp (seal) upon the existence of such stamp (seal).

II. Increase in the Charter Capital of a Joint Stock Company

1. Sources and Ways of Increasing the Charter Capital of a Joint Stock Company

1. A joint stock company may increase its charter capital solely by decision of the general shareholder meeting.

2. The sources of the increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company shall be as follows:
   1) additional contributions;
   2) the supplementary capital or a part thereof (except for banks and non-bank financial institutions);
   3) the profit or a part thereof.

3. The ways of increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company shall be as follows:
   1) the increase in the par value of shares;
   2) the placement of additional shares of the existing par value.

2012/30/EU

Article 29

1. Any increase in capital must be decided upon by the general meeting. Both that decision and the increase in the subscribed capital shall be published in the manner laid down by the laws of each Member State, in accordance with Article 3 of Directive 2009/101/EC.

Article 31

1. Where shares are issued for a consideration other than in cash in the course of an increase in the subscribed capital the consideration must be transferred in full within a period of five years from the decision to increase the subscribed capital.

2. The consideration referred to in paragraph 1 shall be the subject of a report drawn up before the increase in capital is made by one or more experts who are independent of the company and appointed or approved by an administrative or judicial authority. Such experts may be natural persons as well as legal persons and companies and firms under the laws of each Member State. Article 10(2) and (3) and Articles 11 and 12 shall apply.

3. Member States may decide not to apply paragraph 2 in the event of an increase in subscribed capital made in order to give effect to a merger, a division or a public offer for the purchase or exchange of shares and to pay the shareholders of the company which is being absorbed or divided or which is the object of the public offer for the purchase or exchange of shares. In the case of a merger or a division, however, Member States shall apply the first subparagraph.
4. The increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company with the lodgement of additional contributions shall be carried out by means of the placement of additional shares.

5. The increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company by means of the channelling of the supplementary capital (a part thereof) and/or the profit (a part thereof) to the charter capital shall be carried out by means of the increase in the par value of shares.

6. In case of the placement of shares, they shall be paid with cash or, subject to an agreement between the company and the investor, with property interests, non-property interests with the monetary value, securities (other than equity securities issued by the acquiring party, and promissory notes), and with other property. Restrictions upon the forms of payment for shares shall be specified by law and the charter of the joint stock company.

7. The increase in the charter capital of the company by means of channelling the profit (a part thereof) into the charter capital shall be possible subject to the approval of the allocation of the profit, which (whose part) is channelled for the increase in the charter capital only where a report by one or more independent experts on the draft terms of merger or division is drawn up.

Where Member States decide to apply paragraph 2 in the case of a merger or a division, they may provide that the report under this Article and the report by one or more independent experts on the draft terms of merger or division may be drawn up by the same expert or experts.

4. Member States may decide not to apply paragraph 2 if all the shares issued in the course of an increase in subscribed capital are issued for a consideration other than in cash to one or more companies, on condition that all the shareholders in the company which receive the consideration have agreed not to have an experts' report drawn up and that the requirements of points (b) to (f) of Article 10(4) are met.

The number of shareholders of a private joint stock company as a result of the private placement of shares may not exceed 100 shareholders.

3. The increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company by means of the public placement of additional shares of the existing par value shall comprise the following stages:

1) the approval of the market value of shares by the supervisory council or the general shareholder meeting of the company, if the company charter does not provide for the establishment of the supervisory council.

The market value of shares shall be determined in accordance with the legislation as of the date preceding the day of the publication of the notice of convention of the general meeting in accordance with the established procedure, whose agenda includes the issue of the increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company by means of the public placement of additional shares of the existing par value. If the joint stock company is not required by law to publish the notice of the general meeting and does not publish the same, the market value of shares shall be determined as of the date preceding the first day of the dispatch of a written notice for shareholders of the general meeting, whose agenda includes the issue of the increase in the charter capital of the joint stock company;

2) the making of decisions by the general shareholder meeting of the company on:

   the increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company by means of the public placement of additional shares of the existing par value at the expense of additional contributions;

   the public placement of shares;

   the nomination, if necessary, of the charter body of the issuer (the executive body, the supervisory council) vested with powers listed hereinbelow, unless otherwise specified in the charter:

   the involvement of an underwriter into the placement;

   the changing of dates of the commencement and the completion of the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares;

n/a

Nothing to mention the changes in the minimum share offering price;
the introduction of changes into the fund share issue prospectus;
the making of a decision on the early termination of the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares (provided that the planned quantity of shares is covered with contracts with first owners and the shares have been paid in full);
the approval of results of the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares;
the approval of results of the public placement of shares;
the approval of the public share placement results report;
the making of the decision to waive the placement of shares;
the return of contributions lodged as the payment for shares in case of the invalidation of the issue or the non-approval of results of the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares within time frames prescribed by the legislation by the issuer's body charter to make such a decision or in case of the decision to waive the placement of shares.

The general shareholder meeting may nominate charter officers of the issuer vested with the following powers:
to take action in respect of securing the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares; to take action to undertake the obligatory share buy-out from shareholders exercising their right to require the joint stock company to buy out the shares held by them;
3) the compilation of a list of shareholders entitled to require the obligatory buy-out of shares held by them;
4) the notification of the shareholders listed in the list compiled under sub-item 3 of this item of their right to demand the obligatory share buy-out within 10 business days of the date of the general shareholder meeting at the latest;
5) the performance of the obligatory buy-out of shares held by shareholders by the joint stock company in accordance with the procedure and within the time frames prescribed by the Law of Ukraine "On Joint Stock Companies";

6) the submission of an application and all the documents required for the registration of the share tranche and the share issue prospectus to the head office or territorial agencies of the Commission in line with the delegated powers;

7) the registration of the share tranche, the share issue prospectus with the Commission, and the issue of a provisional share tranche registration certificate to the company together with the registered share issue prospectus;

8) the introduction of changes into the share issue prospectus by the charter body of the issuer, if necessary;

9) the submission of an application and all the documents required for the share issue prospectus changes registration (in case of the decision of the charter body of the company to introduce changes in question) to the head office or territorial agencies of the Commission in line with the delegated powers;

10) the registration of changes to the share issue prospectus by the Commission (in case of the decision of the charter body of the company to introduce such changes);

11) the assignment of the international identification number to shares;

12) the entry into an issue service contract (unless a valid contract is available) with a depository;

13) the execution and the deposition of the provisional global certificate;

14) the issuer's disclosure of the information contained in the registered share issue prospectus and changes to the share issue prospectus (if any) in full within 10 days prior to the date of commencement of the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares specified in the issue prospects in a manner prescribed by Article 30 of the Law of Ukraine "On Securities and Stock Market". At that, the share issue prospectus may be published immediately after the registration thereof; the changes to the share issue prospectus may be published immediately after the registration thereof;
15) the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares.

The first holder shall submit an application for the acquisition of shares and a share sales contract shall be concluded in accordance with conditions of the public placement within the time frame specified in the issue prospectus (changes to the issue prospectus). The first holder shall pay in full for shares in accordance with placement conditions, but not later than the time of the approval of results of the public placement of shares by the charter body of the issuer;

16) the approval of the market value of the property, non-property interests that have monetary value determined in accordance with the Law of Ukraine "On Joint Stock Companies" in case of the payment for shares with the property or non-property interests that have monetary value by the supervisory council or the general shareholder meeting, if the company charter does not provide for the establishment of the supervisory council;

17) the approval of results of the entry into contracts with the first holders in the process of the public placement of shares by the charter body of the joint stock company;

18) the approval of results of the public placement of shares by the charter body of the joint stock company;

19) the approval of public share placement results report by the charter body of the joint stock company;

20) the introduction of changes by the general shareholder meeting to the charter in connection with the increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company taking into account the results of the placement of shares;

21) the registration of changes in the charter of the company in connection with the increase in the charter capital of a joint stock company with state registration agencies;

22) the submission of an application and all the documents required for the public share placement results report registration to the head office or territorial agencies of the Commission in line with the delegated powers;

23) the registration of the public share placement results
4) the obtainment of a share tranche registration certificate and the registered public share placement results report;

25) the re-issue of the global certificate earlier executed and lodged to the depository earlier taking account of the placed shares, whose tranche issue has been formalised with the provisional global certificate;

26) the disclosure of the information contained in the public share placement results report by the issuer by means of the publication of the report in the official printed bulletin of the Commission within 15 business days of the registration of the said report by the Commission.

companies for the registration of the shareholders (their representatives), holding of general meetings, voting and votes counting at the general meetings of the joint stock companies (hereinafter - Representatives of the Commission).

II. Appointment procedure for the Representatives of the Commission supervising the registration of the shareholders (their representatives), holding of general meetings, voting and votes counting at the general meetings of the joint stock companies

1. Representatives of the Commission performing the supervision may be appointed:
   - at the request of the shareholder(s) (or their representatives by proxy), whose powers are confirmed with an extract from the securities account (personal account), made as of the date after the notice of general meeting;
   - at the request of the officer(s) of the joint stock company bodies;
   - at the request of the Depository institution or the Central Securities Depository, if the powers of the Registration commission and/or Counting commission have been transferred to the Depository institution or the Central Securities Depository under the contract (a copy of the contract shall be attached);
   - at the initiative of the Commission and/or its territorial bodies.

2. Appeals to the Commission shall be reasonable and include, particularly, information on:
   - annual or extraordinary meetings;
   - initiators of the general meeting (if the applicant has such information);
   - time and place of registration of shareholders at the general meetings of the joint stock company (a copy of the notice of the general meeting or a copy of the publication of the notice of the general meeting); agenda of the general meeting of the joint stock company’s shareholders; state share in the authorized capital of the joint stock company (if such information is available).

3. Appeals of the persons referred to in the paragraph 1 of this section with regard to the appointment of Representatives of the Commission shall be submitted to the Commission not later than 15 calendar days before the general meeting.

4. If there are grounds provided for in the paragraph 1 of this section and in order to appoint the Representatives of the Commission, the structural unit of the central office of the Commission responsible for organization, coordination and implementation of control and audit activities shall prepare the proposals for appointment of a representative of the Commission, determine the volume of Supervisory actions, and submit them for consideration to the Chairman of the Commission and/or member of the Commission that has relevant authority consistent with the allocation of responsibilities in accordance with the order of the Chairman of the Commission.

5. Decision on appointment of the Representatives of the Commission for supervision shall be made in form of assignment for supervision over the registration of the shareholders, holding of general meetings, voting and votes counting at the general meetings of the joint stock companies (hereinafter - Assignment) in the form specified in the Annex 1.

   In case the staff members of several structural units of the central office of the Commission and/or representatives of the central office of the Commission and/or of its territorial body (ies) join the Representatives of the Commission, the decision on appointment of the Representatives of the Commission for the supervision shall be executed by the order of the Chairman of the Commission and the Assignment.

6. Where there are grounds provided for in the paragraph 1 of this section, the head of the territorial body of the Commission shall be entitled to make Assignment at his reasonable discretion for supervision over the registration of shareholders, holding of general meetings, voting and votes counting for those joint stock companies, general meetings of which are held on the territory of the administrative-territorial unit of territorial body.

List of the supervising Representatives of the territorial body of the Commission shall be determined by the head of the territorial body of the Commission.

7. A control group consisting of at least two people shall be organized for the performance of supervisory actions.

8. Chairman of the Commission and members of the Commission may perform the supervisory actions without Assignment on the basis of the official ID card.

The Representatives of the Commission perform supervision on the basis of the official ID card and Assignment. The Chairman or the member of the Commission, who has the appropriate power consistent with the allocation of responsibilities in accordance with the order of the Chairman of the Commission, may appoint the staff members of the central office of the Commission for supervision.

Head of the relevant territorial body of the Commission appoints the staff members of the territorial body of the Commission in accordance with the authority granted by the Commission.

9. The head of the control group is appointed by the Chairman or the member of the Commission, who has the appropriate power consistent with the allocation of responsibilities in accordance with the order of the Chairman, or by the head of the relevant territorial body of the Commission, from among the Representatives of the Commission, and such appointment shall be indicated in the Assignment.

The head of the control group has the right:
- to make independent decisions on issues related to organization and consistency of supervision;
- to allocate supervisory responsibilities among the members of the control group;
- to exercise powers provided for in the paragraph 4 of section III of this Procedure;
- to address, if necessary, the law enforcement agencies, which shall take appropriate action in accordance with the Article 10 of the Law of Ukraine “On State Regulation of the Securities Market in Ukraine”.

10. Chairman of the Commission, member of the Commission, head of the territorial body of the Commission, or a staff member of the Commission may participate in supervision on condition there is no conflict of interest.

11. In the event of a conflict of interest after the appointment of the control group, the staff member of the Commission appointed to such control group, shall notify in writing the authorized person of the Commission that appointed him/her about such conflict in order to settle the issue about his/her possible performance of supervision.

12. If the staff members of the central office of the Commission are assigned for supervision, the territorial body of the Commission, on the administrative territory of which will be held a general meeting of the joint stock company, shall be notified about such Assignment. Such notification can be given by letter (signed by the head of the structural unit of the central office of the Commission who was assigned with the responsibilities for organization, coordination and implementation of control and audit activities), in person, by fax or email.

When such notification indicated in the first paragraph of this clause has been received by the territorial body of the Commission, and if there is an Assignment made by the territorial body of the Commission with respect to such joint stock company, the head of the territorial body shall immediately cancel such Assignment.

13. The Assignment shall be issued in two copies given to the control group.

14. Records of the issued Assignments are kept by the structural unit of the central office of the Commission responsible for organization, coordination and implementation of control and audit activities and by the territorial bodies of the Commission in a separate log in accordance with the form provided by the Commission.

| III. Procedure for execution of supervision over the registration of the shareholders, holding of general meetings, voting and votes counting at the general meetings of the joint stock companies |
|---|---|
| 1. Structural unit of the central office of the Commission responsible for organization, coordination and implementation of control and audit activities or territorial bodies of the Commission shall inform the joint stock companies in writing about the appointment of Representatives of the Commission before the registration of shareholders for participation in the general meeting and, if necessary, determine the list of documents required for the control group to perform supervision pursuant to the Law of Ukraine “On State Regulation of the Securities Market in Ukraine”.

2. Notification about the appointment of the | Representatives of the Commission for supervision over the registration of shareholders, holding of general meetings, voting and votes counting at the general meetings of the joint stock companies (hereinafter - Notification) in the form specified in the Annex 2 shall be sent to the joint stock company by mail (registered mail) and, if necessary, by fax, or it should be handed out against the receipt of signature of the head or a member of the supervisory board of the company, or the head of the executive body of the company (if there are no such bodies - of any other person responsible for the registration of shareholders and/or holding of general meeting of shareholders) before the registration of shareholders.

   b) mortgage certificates;
   c) mortgage letters;
4) Privatization securities are the securities that certify owner's right for the free obtainment of a part of the property of state-owned enterprises, the state-owned housing fund, and the land fund in the course of privatization;
5) Derivative securities are the securities, which issue and circulation mechanism is associated with the right to acquire or sell securities, other financial and/or commodity resources during a period specified by the contract;
6) commodity securities are the securities that vest the holder with the right to dispose of the property indicated in the said documents.

Article 4. Transfer of rights to securities and rights pertaining to the securities

1. The entity that has acquired right to a security shall be vested with all rights certified thereby (rights pertaining to the security), save for the cases established by law or the transaction.

The restriction of the circulation and/or the exercise of the rights under securities may be instituted solely in cases and in accordance with the procedure prescribed by law.

2. Rights for bearer security and rights pertaining to the bearer security existing in hardcopy and certificated form shall be transferred by handing of the security to other person, and the way of transfer of the rights for bearer security and rights pertaining to the bearer security existing in softcopy and certificated form shall be prescribed by the National Bank of Ukraine – for financial bank promissory notes and the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine – for financial treasury promissory notes.

Rights for non-certified bearer security and rights pertaining to such security shall be transferred in the order prescribed for the transfer of rights to inscribed securities.

Transfer of rights to blocked bearer securities and execution of rights pertaining to such securities is subject to obligatory identification of the owner by the depository institution that keeps the securities account of such owner.

No register is held for the owners of bearer securities.

3. Rights for the inscribed securities and rights pertaining to such securities shall be transferred in accordance with the legislation on depository system of Ukraine.

Information about the owners of inscribed securities shall be obtained by the issuer in the form of shareholders register. Transfer of rights for inscribed securities and execution of rights pertaining to such securities is subject to obligatory identification of the owner by the depository institution that keeps the securities account of such owner.

4. Rights certified with an order security shall be transferred to another person by means of the endorsement of the security in question. The Endorsement may be either blanc – without indication of the endorsee or order – with identification of

Article 10
1. Member States shall ensure that companies as referred to in Article 1(1) publish detailed information on the following:
(b) any restrictions on the transfer of securities, such as limitations on the holding of securities or the need to obtain the approval of the company or other holders of securities, without prejudice to Article 46 of Directive 2001/34/EC;
(g) any agreements between shareholders which are known to the company and may result in restrictions on the transfer of securities and/or voting rights within the meaning of Directive 2001/34/EC;

Article 11
2. Any restrictions on the transfer of securities provided for in the articles of association of the offeree company shall not apply vis-à-vis the offeror during the time allowed for acceptance of the bid laid down in Article 7(1).

4. Where, following a bid, the offeror holds 75% or more of the capital carrying voting rights, no restrictions on the transfer of securities or on voting rights referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 nor any extraordinary rights of shareholders concerning the appointment or removal of board members provided for in the articles of association of the offeree company shall apply; multiple-vote securities shall carry only one vote each at the first general meeting of shareholders following closure of the bid, called by the offeror in order to amend the articles of association or to remove or appoint board members.

Member States should take the necessary measures to afford any offeror the possibility of acquiring majority interests in other companies and of fully exercising control of them. To that end, restrictions on the transfer of securities, restrictions on voting rights, extraordinary appointment rights and multiple voting rights should be removed or suspended during the time allowed for the acceptance of a bid and when the general meeting of shareholders decides on defensive measures, on amendments to the articles of association or on the removal or appointment of board members at the first general meeting of shareholders following closure of the bid. Where the holders of securities have suffered losses as a result of the removal of rights, equitable compensation should be provided for in accordance with the technical arrangements laid down by Member States.

Article 46 of Directive 2001/34/EC says that shares must be freely negotiable.
5. Specific features of the transfer of rights to securities and rights pertaining to such securities shall be established by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission and the agreement.

3. In conducting the conversion the issuer is obliged to buy out convertible securities from their holders, who do not agree with the decision to conduct the conversion.

   The procedure for notification the security holders of conduction the conversion of securities, the procedure for notification the issuer of agreement (or disagreement) with the decision about the conduction of conversion by security holders, and the period of time when the securities shall be brought to their owners for buy-out, shall be prescribed by the decision of the body of the issuer to conduct the conversion.

   Buy-out of securities from the holders, who disagree with the decision to conduct the conversion, is carried out at the market value, but not lower than the nominal value of those securities.

   Market value is determined by:
   - the exchange rate - for the securities included in the exchange list of the Stock Exchange;
   - the value determined by an independent appraiser in accordance with the legislation on the valuation of property, property rights and professional valuation activities - for securities that are not included in the exchange list of the Stock Exchange.

4. Having conducted the payments with the holders of securities, the registration of converted securities is a subject to cancellation in the manner prescribed by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission.

   The Procedure for conversion is specified by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission.

5. Peculiarities of converting securities of joint investment institutions are prescribed by the legislation of joint investment institutions.

   Section II. TYPES OF SECURITIES

   Article 6. Shares

   1. Shares are inscribed securities that certify the property interests of their owner (shareholder) in a joint-stock company, including the holder's right to receive a part of the profit of the joint-stock company in the form of dividend and the right to receive a part of the estate of the joint stock company in case of the liquidation thereof, the right to manage the joint stock company, as well as non-property rights envisaged by the Civil Code of Ukraine and the law that governs the establishment, the operation and the termination of joint-stock companies.

   - types of securities:
     - (g) shares resulting from the conversion or exchange of other securities or from the exercise of the rights conferred by other securities, provided that the said shares are of the same class as the shares already admitted to trading on the same regulated market;

   n/a

   Nothing to mention
A share shall not be divisible. The procedure of the exercise of rights by co-owners of shares (a share) shall be specified by the Civil Code of Ukraine and the law that governs the establishment, the operation and the termination of joint-stock companies.

2. A shareholder of a private or public company shall enjoy the pre-emptive right to acquire shares of the additional issue.

The following rights of shareholders shall be considered as pre-emptive:

- the right of a shareholder that owns ordinary shares to acquire ordinary shares placed by the company in the course of the private placement in proportion to the percentage of ordinary shares held thereby in the total number of the issued ordinary shares;
- the right of a shareholder that owns preference shares to acquire preference shares of the same or new class placed by the company in the course of the private placement, if shares of such class vest their holders with preferences in respect of the priority of the receipt of dividends or disbursements in case of the company liquidation, in proportion to the percentage of preference shares of a certain class held by the shareholder in the total number of preference shares of the class in question.

The procedure of the exercise of the pre-emptive right to the acquisition of additional issue shares shall be specified by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission;

3. Only a joint-stock company shall be an issuer of shares. The procedure of the making a decision to place shares by the relevant body of a joint-stock company shall be specified by the legislation that governs the establishment, the operation and the termination of joint-stock companies.

Shares shall only exist in a non-certificated form.

4. A share shall have its par value denominated in national currency. The minimum par value of a share may not be less than one kopeck.

5. A joint-stock company shall place only inscribed shares. If shares exist in a certificated form, the shareholder shall be issued a share certificate.

The share (shares) certificate shall specify the type of the securities, the name of the joint-stock company, the series and the number of the certificate, the international identification number of the securities item, the type and the class of shares, the par value of a share, the number of shares held by the shareholder on the basis of the said certificate, the name of the holder, the signature of the manager of the issuer or another authorized officer authenticated with the seal of the issuer (authorized officer).

The National Securities and Stock Market Commission may specify additional details to be included into the share (shares) certificate.

6. A joint-stock company shall place shares of two types: ordinary and preference shares.

7. The ordinary shares shall vest the holders thereof with the right to obtain a part of the profit of the joint-stock company in the form of dividends, to participate in the management of a joint-stock company, to obtain a part of the property of a joint-stock company in case of the liquidation thereof, and other rights envisaged by the law that governs the establishment, the operation and the termination of joint-stock companies. Ordinary shares shall vest holders thereof with the identical rights.

The ordinary shares shall not be convertible into preference shares or other securities of the joint-stock company.

It is prohibited to provide any guarantees regarding obtaining of profit (dividends) under ordinary shares.

8. The preference shares shall vest the holders thereof with the preferential right in comparison with the ordinary shareholders to obtain a part of the profit of the joint-stock company in the form of dividends and to obtain a part of the property of a joint-stock company in case of the liquidation thereof, and vest the holders with the right to participate in the management of a joint-stock company in cases covered by the charter and the law that governs the establishment, the operation and the termination of joint-stock companies.

9. A joint-stock company shall place preference shares of different classes (with the different extent of rights), if such a possibility is provided for in its charter. In this case, the prospectus of shares shall include the sequence of the obtainment of dividends and payments from the property of the liquidated company for each preference share class placed by the joint-stock company specified by the charter of the company. If provided for by the issuance prospectus, the preference shares of certain classes may be converted into ordinary shares or preference shares of other classes.

The share of preference shares in the charter capital of a joint-stock company may not exceed 25 per cent.

10. Issue of shares shall be registered by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission in accordance with the procedure specified thereby. The circulation of shares shall only be allowed after the registration of the share placement report and the issue of the share issue registration certificate by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission.

11. The specific features of the issue, the circulation, the accounting and the repurchase of shares of the corporate investment funds shall be specified by the legislation.

Article 6. Shares of corporate investment fund

1. Share of a corporate investment fund is a security issued by a corporate investment fund that certifies property rights of its holder (participant of corporate investment fund), including the right to receive dividends, (for closed corporate investment fund), part of the corporate investment fund's property in case of liquidation, the right to participate in the management of the corporate investment fund, and also non-property rights envisaged by the legislation on collective investment undertakings.

Article 8¹. Special-purpose corporate bonds obligations under which are performed by the transfer of object (part of the object) of housing construction.

1. Issue of special-purpose corporate bonds obligations under which are performed by the transfer of object (part of the object) of housing construction may be carried out by a legal entity that is entitled in accordance with law to act as owner of such object or a legal entity that entered into an agreement on participation in the construction with governmental bodies, local authorities possessing title, lease or permanent usage rights to the land plot where the housing construction object transfer of which shall secure the fulfillment of obligations under special-purpose bonds shall be situated.

2. Issuer of special-purpose corporate bonds obligations under which shall be fulfilled by the transfer of object (part of the object) of housing construction, has no right to perform any actions that may result in encumbrance of such object (part of the object) of housing construction, land plot designated for the construction of the housing construction object and property rights thereto.

3. In case local or governmental authorities upon their initiative and in accordance with the law make decision resulting in the change of the owner of land plot designated for construction of housing construction object being financed with attraction of funds from individuals and / or legal entities by issue of special-purpose corporate bonds, the respective local budgets shall envisage expenses for compensations of losses to the owners of such bonds. Disputes regarding compensation of such losses to the said owners shall be settled in accordance with law.

Procedure for determination of such losses and making of compensations shall be established by the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine.

Article 9. Local Authority Bonds

1. Local authority bonds include domestic and foreign local loans.

The decision to place local authority loan bonds shall be made by the Supreme Council of the Autonomous Republic of Crimea or the city council in accordance with requirements of the budget legislation.

2. Registration of the issue of local-authority bonds shall be carried out by the National Securities and Stock Market Commission in accordance with the procedure specified thereby.

3. Specific features of the redemption and the exercise of rights under the local authority loan bonds shall be determined by their placement prospectus.

Article 10. Government Bonds of Ukraine

1. Government bonds of Ukraine may be:
   - long-term bonds with the tenor over five years;
   - mid-term bonds with the tenor of one to five years;
   - short-term bonds with the tenor less than one year.

2. Government bonds of Ukraine shall be categorized into the domestic government loan bonds of Ukraine, the foreign government loan bonds of Ukraine, and special-purpose domestic government loan bonds of Ukraine.

3. Domestic government loan bonds of Ukraine shall be understood as the government securities placed solely on the domestic stock market that confirm the undertaking of Ukraine to reimburse the holders of such bonds for their par value and pay the income in accordance with conditions of the placement of the bonds. Par value of internal government bonds of Ukraine may be denominated in foreign currency.

documents specified by the Commission in case of the inheritance, legacy or in other cases specified by the Commission; the decision of court or another state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof.

The information about all transactions on securities accounts of depositors of each depository institution shall be posted in the Central Securities Depository in accordance with the procedure, within time frames and in amounts prescribed by the Central Securities Depository in concurrence with the Commission.

3. The introduction of changes into the depository accounting system in respect of the settlement of transactions in securities carried out at stock exchanges or outside stock exchanges, in case of the delivery versus payment settlement shall be carried out by the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine (in line with their competence defined by this Law) with the subsequent posting of such changes (if necessary) on securities accounts by depository institutions and/or correspondent depositories in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Commission on the basis of the information supplied by the Clearing House (the information supplied by the stock exchange in case of the exercise of clearing activities by the Central Securities Depository).

The Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine must confirm the obtainment of the said information in accordance with the procedure and within time frames specified by the Commission.

4. The introduction of changes into the depository accounting system in respect of the entire securities tranche accounted for by the Central Securities Depository in line with the competence specified by this Law shall be carried out solely by the Central Securities Depository in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the Commission on the basis of:

- the information supplied by the securities issuer in case of the performance of corporate transactions of the issuer, except for the performance of transactions related to the securities placement at the stock exchange. In this case, the Central Securities Depository must confirm the obtainment of the said information from the stock exchange in accordance with the procedure and within time frames specified by the Commission;

- the decision of court or another state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof.

5. The introduction of changes into the depository accounting system in respect of the entire securities tranche accounted for by the National Bank of Ukraine in line with the competence specified by this Law shall be carried out solely by the National Bank of Ukraine in accordance with the procedure specified thereby in concurrence with the Commission on the basis of:

- the information supplied by the securities issuer in case of the performance of corporate transactions of the issuer, except for the performance of transactions related to the securities placement at the stock exchange;

the decision of court or another state authority authorised by law or an officer thereof.

6. In case of the institution or removal of restrictions on rights in securities in respect of securities of a specific owner, the owner of such securities must supply the relevant information and documents confirming the same to the depository institution, in which it holds the securities account.

In case of the institution or removal of restrictions on rights in securities in respect of securities of a specific owner, court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof shall be obliged to submit the relevant decision to the depository institution, in which the account of the said owner is held.

In case of the institution or removal of restrictions on rights in securities in respect of the entire securities tranche, court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof shall be obliged to submit the relevant decision to the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine in accordance with their competence specified by this Law.

7. The procedure of the submission of the instruction and other documents prescribed by parts two and six of this article in respect of securities, the requirements for the contents thereof (except for the requirements for court decision), and the procedure of the registration thereof in the depository accounting system shall be specified by the Commission or, in respect of securities accounted for by the National Bank of Ukraine in line with the competence specified by this Law, shall be specified by the National Bank of Ukraine in concurrence with the Commission; in respect of those prescribed by parts three and four, they shall be specified by the Commission; in respect of those prescribed by part five, they shall be specified by the National Bank of Ukraine in concurrence with the Commission.

The documents in question constituting the basis for the introduction of changes into the depository accounting system shall be kept for five years of receipt thereof, but at least until the end date of existence of the relevant account.
8. The depository institution shall be obliged to provide notice of acceptance of an instruction for performance or issue a motivated response on the refusal to accept not later than on the business day following the day of receipt of the instruction and other documents from the depositor. In case of the acceptance of the instruction for performance, the depository institution must introduce changes into the depository accounting system in accordance with requirements of the instruction.

In case of receipt of the information by a depository institution from the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine as a result of the settlement of transactions in securities concluded at the stock exchange and outside the stock exchange in case of the delivery versus payment settlement by depositors of the depository institution or in their interest, the depository institution shall post changes to the relevant securities accounts of depositors before the end of the current operations day, during which the information in question has been sent by the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine.

Article 7. Introduction of Changes into the Depository Accounting System in Respect of the Garnishment of Securities or Imposition of Another Restriction of Rights in Securities of a Specific Owner Imposed by Decision of Court or Authorized State Authority

1. The garnishment of securities or another restriction on rights in securities of a specific owner (hereinafter referred to as the "specific owner restriction") shall be imposed (instituted) and cancelled (reversed) in accordance with the procedure prescribed by this article on the basis of a decision of court or a state authority authorized by law, or an officer thereof.

   In case of the institution or removal of a specific owner restriction, court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof shall be obliged to submit the relevant decision to the depository institution, where the securities account of the said owner is held, and to the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine, which account for such securities in accordance with their competence specified by this Law.

2. A depository institution shall introduce changes into the depository accounting system in respect of the institution of a... restriction in respect of securities of a specific owner before the end of the business day of receipt of the relevant decision, except for the case covered with part three of this article.

3. In case of the restriction of rights in securities imposed by instruction of the owner of such securities for the sale of the said securities at the stock exchanges, the depository institution shall postpone the input of changes into the depository accounting system in respect of the institution of the restriction of securities of a specific owner until the next business day.

The depository institution shall submit information about receipt thereby of the relevant decision of court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof on the institution of a specific owner restriction to the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine respectively within the business day of receipt of the said decision.

4. The Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine in line with their competence in respect of the accounting for securities as defined by this Law shall do the following on the basis of the information obtained from the entity exercising clearing activities or from the stock exchange about transactions in securities carried out there (in case of the exercise of clearing activities by the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine):

- impose, starting from the next day, the restriction upon securities, in whose respect the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine has received information from the depository institution about the receipt thereby of the relevant decision of court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof on the institution of a specific owner restriction — in case of the lack of the data on transactions in securities carried out at the platform of the entity exercising the clearing activities or at the stock exchange in the information obtained from such an entity or the stock exchange (in case of the exercise of clearing activities by the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine). In this case, the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine shall inform the depository institution that such actions have been taken;

- inform the depository institution within the same business day of the availability of the data on transactions in securities carried out at the platform of the entity exercising clearing activities or the stock exchange in the information obtained from such an entity or stock exchange (in case of the exercise of clearing activities by the Central Securities Depository or the National Bank of Ukraine), if the relevant decision of court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof on the institution of the specific owner restriction has been received by the depository institution, provided that such information is available.

5. The depository institution shall do the following on the same business day upon obtainment of the information called for by part four of this article:

   institute the specific owner restriction on its securities account — in case of receipt of the information referred to in paragraph two of part four of this article; institute specific owner restriction over the balance of securities, rights in which are accounted for on the owner's securities accounts as a result of the performance of a transaction or leave the relevant decision of court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof on the imposition of the specific owner restriction non-performed, if the said balance equals zero, on the basis of the information referred to in paragraph three of part four of this article.

6. The depository institution shall notify court or a state authority authorized by law or an officer thereof of actions taken as a result of receipt of the relevant decision to institute the specific owner restriction within the next business day of receipt of the decision.

Article 8. Confirmation of Rights in Securities and Rights Attached to Securities

1. An accounting record on the securities account of a depositor with a depository institution shall be the confirmation of rights in securities and rights attached to securities existing in the non-documentary form, as well as restrictions of rights in securities as of a certain time.

   A statement of the securities account of the depositor issued by the depository institution on demand of the depositor or in other cases prescribed by the legislation and the securities account service contract shall serve as the documentary evidence of the existence of rights in securities and rights attached to securities of a depositor (or the relevant creditor in case of the lodgement of securities on a notary's deposit) as of a certain time.

2. A statement of the securities account shall not be a security; the conveyance thereof from one entity to another entity shall not constitute a transaction in securities and shall not result in the conveyance of rights in securities and rights attached to securities.

3. Requirements for a statement of the securities account shall be specified by the Commission.

Ukrainian Corporate Governance Principles

NATIONAL COMMISSION FOR SECURITIES AND STOCK MARKET DECISION

July 22, 2014 N 955
Introduction

1. The essence of corporate governance

A company’s success is determined, to a large extent, by its access to investment capital. In order to win investor confidence or to raise capital, the company must maintain good governance practices, including shareholder protection, a sound system of management and control, and transparency and openness in its activities.

Corporate governance is the system of relations among the company, its shareholders and other stakeholders. It is one of the key elements of companies’ growth which increases investor confidence. Corporate governance defines the framework of the company’s tasks, means for these tasks, the company’s monitoring policy. An effective system of corporate governance increases the cost of capital, companies are encouraged to more effective use of resources that provides the basis for further growth.

In a larger sense, corporate governance is defined as a system for directing and controlling the activities of corporations. Corporate governance defines how investors oversee the activities of management, and how management is liable to investors for the company’s performance. Good corporate governance allows investors to be certain that their investment is used prudently by management to increase the company’s financial and business activity and, therefore, to create shareholder value.

Good corporate governance is not limited to relations between investors and management. It involves the protection of and cooperation with stakeholders who have a legitimate interest in the company’s performance, such as employees, consumers, creditors, the government, the public, and so forth. One reason for this is that a company cannot exist outside the society in which it operates, and its ultimate success depends on the individual input of each stakeholder.

Therefore, the essence of corporate governance may be described as a system of relations between the company’s owners, management, and stakeholders aimed at ensuring the sustainable performance of the company and a balance of influences and interests of the parties to corporate relations.

2. The importance of corporate governance

Corporate governance is important for joint stock companies because of its role in increasing their competitiveness and economic efficiency through:

- the protection of shareholder interests;
- a balance of influences and interests of parties to corporate relations;
- increased financial transparency; and,
- the implementation of good management and control practices.

Corporate governance is important for the state at large because of its effect on the country’s social and economic development, as well as its role in:

- facilitating investment, and building investor confidence;
- increasing the efficiency of capital utilization and private sector performance; and,
- taking into account the interests of a broad range of stakeholders, in keeping with the goal of working for the benefit of society as a whole and maximizing national wealth.

3. Global trends in the development of corporate governance. Generally accepted principles of corporate governance

While no universal model of corporate governance exists in the world, there are generally accepted principles, or standards, of good corporate governance that may be applied within a wide range of legal, economic, and political contexts.

International standards of corporate governance appeared primarily as a result of heightened public interest in corporate governance generated by the globalization of financial markets and the liberalization of capital flows. An attempt was made to lay down universally acceptable, transparent and understandable ground rules for financial markets. International standards of corporate governance came about as a broad response to scandals in the world’s financial community and a desire to stabilize financial markets.

Today, a large number of countries are making a concerted effort to improve corporate governance at the national level. One way to achieve this goal is through the introduction of national principles (codes) of corporate governance. Such documents came into existence as a result of:

First, a realization that national legislation alone cannot resolve all the problems of corporate governance, and that these must be addressed through the introduction of standards of ethics and a code of practice for corporate governance.

Second, the understanding that corporate governance is an important component of national development and an essential condition for surviving in a competitive global environment. Many countries now consider corporate governance to be an integral part of economic reform, a prerequisite for the development of private business, a method of increasing capacity to compete on international markets, and a means of improving overall economic performance.

4. The purpose of the Principles of Corporate Governance of Ukraine

The purpose of the Principles of Corporate Governance of Ukraine is to lay down the principles and recommendations, based on international best practices of corporate governance and tailored to Ukraine’s needs and experience that are necessary for the development of good corporate governance in Ukraine.

This is a systematic collection of the fundamental principles and recommendations for conducting the effective and transparent management of a company, through which the company will improve its ability to attract investment and to compete with others.

5. The scope of the Principles of Corporate Governance of Ukraine

Principles of Corporate Governance is a manual that provides answers for the question how Ukrainian enterprises should overcome the "crisis of confidence" from domestic and foreign investors and attract financial resources on the domestic and international markets. Corporate Governance is important for all companies, but it is of key relevance for companies in dire need of financial resources.

In addition, the Corporate Governance Principles not only provide an answer to the question of how to mobilize capital, but also how to exercise proper control over its effective use. The answer to this question is a key objective of corporate governance and is caused by a problem that has arisen as a result of differentiation of ownership and control and the need to give due attention to the protection of investors at a time when some persons own the company, while the others manage it.
Taking into account the aforementioned, the Principles of corporate governance are addressed, primarily, to the Ukrainian companies which need investment and are willing to attract it through the highest standards of corporate governance. Potentially – it is a public joint stock company whose shares are traded on a regulated stock market (stock exchange). However, the Principles contain universal principles and recommendations for effective management of the company. That is why its provisions may be used both by joint stock companies and other types of companies, in part which complies with current legislation regulating their activities, including professional stock market participants and non-bank financial groups, investors, companies and other parties that play certain role in the formation of good corporate governance.

The adoption of corporate governance principles encourages banks and other financial institutions, rating agencies to be more loyal when assessing the creditworthiness of the company and improves the attitude of stakeholders when considering prospects for potential partnerships.

6. The status and mechanisms for enforcing the Principles of Corporate Governance of Ukraine

The Principles of Corporate Governance are recommendations only and designed to be optional. The primary incentive for companies to follow them is economic rationale and the demand for good corporate governance by capital markets when raising financing.

Companies should take a flexible and creative approach to introducing their own systems of corporate governance, using the provisions of this document as a basis and tailoring them to their specific needs. Once in place, companies should constantly evaluate and improve their corporate governance systems.

Companies should follow the Principles of Corporate Governance in practice by:

- voluntarily applying the principles and recommendations for good corporate governance and on a day-to-day basis;
- including provisions of the Principles into company by-laws; and,
- disclosing information on the observance of the Principles in an annual report, or explaining the reasons for not following the recommendations provided in the Principles.

The Principles are a living document and will be reviewed and revised with regard to the development of corporate legislation and to the improvement of the practice and generally accepted principles of corporate governance.
II. Principles of Corporate Governance

1. Goal of the Company

The company’s goal is to maximize shareholder value as measured by the increasing market value of shares and the dividends paid to shareholders.

2. Shareholder Rights

The company should ensure the protection of the rights and legitimate interests of shareholders, regardless of whether the shareholder is a resident of Ukraine, the number of shares he/she owns, and other factors.

2.1. The company should ensure both the ability to exercise rights and the protection of the rights and legitimate interests of shareholders, including:

2.1.1. The right to participate in the corporate governance of the company by attending and voting at the general shareholders’ meeting. To provide shareholders with an opportunity to exercise this right effectively, the company should facilitate the shareholder’s right to:

a) participate in decisions on fundamental corporate matters, such as making changes to the charter, electing members of the supervisory board and audit commission, approving additional share issues, repurchasing any outstanding shares by the company, undertaking large transactions, reorganizing the company and other activities which may result in major corporate changes;

b) be informed about the upcoming general meeting in a timely manner by means of a notice indicating the date, time and venue of the meeting, and to receive complete information about the agenda of the meeting, which shall specify the method through which shareholders can become familiar with documents related to the agenda. The time and venue of the general meeting and the registration procedure should facilitate the participation of shareholders in the general meeting. The procedures at the general meeting should not make voting overly complicated and expensive.

c) examine documents concerning the agenda of the general shareholders’ meeting in a timely manner and by any convenient means, and to obtain, where needed, additional information on items included in the agenda from company officers;

d) make motions and request that motions made by shareholders with the appropriate number of votes be included in the agenda;

e) attend the general shareholders’ meeting in person or through a freely appointed nominee. Votes cast at the general shareholders’ meeting by shareholders and shareholder’s nominees shall have an equal legal force;

f) participate in the discussion of and vote on motions included in the agenda, including through the method of absentee voting. The procedure used for voting at the general shareholders’ meeting should ensure the transparency and accuracy of the vote count.

2.1.2 The right to share in the company’s profits in an amount proportionate to the number of shares owned by the shareholder.
2.1.3 The right to receive complete and accurate information about the financial state of the company and the results of its economic activity, important facts which affect or may affect the value of corporate securities and/or earnings on them, the issuance of corporate securities, etc.

2.1.4 The right to dispose of shares freely.

2.1.5 The right to a secure and effective mechanism for the registration and confirmation of share ownership:

a) the procedure for registering titles to shares should provide for a quick, effective, and easy method of registering and confirming share ownership;

b) the company should make every effort to prevent officers of governing bodies and other shareholders from interfering with the process of registering share certificates; and,

c) when choosing a depository institution, the company should take this decision on the basis of its independence, professionalism, and trustworthiness.

2.1.6. The right to request the redemption of shares by the company at a fair price for those shareholders who did not vote for or voted against certain decisions of the general shareholders’ meeting which restrict their rights.

2.1. The company should ensure equitable treatment of all shareholders owning same-class shares:

a) every common share issued by the company gives its owner the same scope of rights. Ukraine has adopted the one-share-one-vote principle;

b) in the event that the general shareholders’ meeting adopts a resolution which restricts the rights of preferred shareholders, they should have the right to vote on motions included in such a resolution; a shareholder who did not vote for or voted against the resolution should be entitled to the redemption of his/her shares at a fair price;

c) the same amount of dividends should be paid per each share of the same class issued by the company. It is not permitted to give privileges, in terms of receiving dividends, to different groups of shareholders within the same class; and,

d) all shareholders should have equal rights and opportunities in terms of access to information.

2.3. The company should encourage institutional investors to take part in the company’s management and to effective realization of their corporate rights.

2.4. The Company promotes and maintain communication between the shareholders themselves on issues related to realization of their fundamental rights.

2.5. The system of corporate governance provides the same fair treatment to all shareholders, including minority and foreign shareholders. All shareholders have the opportunity to resort to effective remedies in case of violations of their rights. Company eliminates barriers to international voting.

2.6. In the event of an additional share issuance, the company should secure the equal preemptive right of every shareholder to purchase additionally issued shares in an amount proportionate to his or her share in the charter capital.
2.7. The company should design and introduce an appropriate internal mechanism to prevent the misuse of insider information by company officers and other insiders for personal gain.

2.8. The Company develops and implements effective mechanisms for protection of minority shareholders against unfair actions of controlling shareholders committed them personally or by third parties in their interests.

2.9. The system of corporate governance is complemented by the system of effective measures concerning bankruptcy and effective enforcement of creditor rights.

3. The Supervisory Board and the Executive Board

Good corporate governance requires providing, within the corporate structure of the company, for an active independent supervisory board and an efficient executive board (management), a rational distribution of responsibilities among the two governing bodies, and a proper system of accountability and control. The system of corporate governance should provide adequate conditions for a timely exchange of information and an efficient interaction between the supervisory board and the executive board. Bodies and officers of the company should perform their duties with due diligence and care in the best interests of the company and shareholders.

3.1. Supervisory board

3.1.1 The supervisory board conducts the overall management of the company, controls activities of the executive board, and protects the interests of shareholders. Good governance requires that the supervisory board reports to the company's general shareholders’ meeting.

3.1.2. If the decisions may have a different impact on different groups of shareholders, the supervisory board shall equally and fairly treat all shareholders. The Supervisory Board shall be guided by the best ethical standards and take into account the interests of stakeholders.

3.1.3 The charter of the company should clearly define the responsibilities of the supervisory board, including powers that are exclusive to the supervisory board. The main functions of the supervisory board include:

a) ensuring the exercise and protection of shareholder rights;

b) approving the company’s strategy, annual budget and business plans, and overseeing their implementation;

c) ensuring the formality and transparency during the nomination and election of members of the executive board, approving the terms of contracts with the chairman and members of the executive board, and determining the amount of their compensation and forms of oversight of the executive board’s activity;

d) overseeing the financial and business activity of the company, including making available complete and accurate information about the company to the public;

e) overseeing the detection, prevention, and resolution of conflicts of interest among company officers, such as the use of company property for personal needs and entering into agreements with related parties;

f) monitoring the effectiveness of the company’s management and, if necessary, making appropriate amendments;

g) ensuring the integrity of the accounting and financial statements of the company, including the independent audit, as well as the necessary control systems, including risk management, financial and operational control over compliance with legislation and standards.

3.1.4. Regular meetings of the supervisory board should be held as often as necessary to ensure the proper discharge of its duties. In any case, meetings of the supervisory board should be held at least once every three months.

3.1.5. The Supervisory Board if necessary decides on agreements concerning the professional consulting services (legal, accounting, etc.) provided to the supervisory board; the Supervisory Board assume in its cost plan the availability of adequate resources to pay for such services.

3.1.6. The Supervisory Board provides the annual evaluation of its activities as a whole and each member individually. For this purpose, it is recommended to create a special committee, most of which members are independent.

3.1.7. In the end of the year, the supervisory board reports to the general meeting on its activities and the general condition of the company.

3.1.8. Members of the supervisory board should be elected and dismissed by the general shareholders’ meeting:

a) the procedure for forming the supervisory board should provide all shareholders, including minority shareholders, with an opportunity to nominate candidates for the supervisory board;

b) candidates for the supervisory board should be nominated ahead of the general shareholders’ meeting; shareholders should be provided with complete information about each candidate in advance, in order to be able to make a circumspect and informed decision; and,

c) it is recommended that legal entities which are shareholders elect individuals to the supervisory board.

3.1.9. Members of the supervisory board should have the knowledge, qualifications and experience appropriate for accomplishing the company’s mission and pursuing its strategy. Members of the supervisory board should have sufficient time to perform their mandate.

3.1.10. Members of the supervisory board should have access to complete and accurate information in order to make informed decisions.

3.1.11. Members of the supervisory board perform their duties in person and may not delegate their powers to other persons, except for the member of the supervisory board - a legal entity - shareholder.

3.1.12. To ensure the independence of the supervisory board, due care should be taken to ensure that at least one quarter of its members are independent. A supervisory board member is independent if he/she has no serious business, family, or other connections with the company, members of the executive board, or a large shareholder of the company, and is not a representative of the state.

3.1.13. Depending on the composition and duties of the supervisory board, supervisory board committees should be formed.
a) to increase the efficiency of the supervisory board, committees should be formed for preliminary consideration, analysis, and drafting of decisions on matters that are exclusive to the supervisory board.

b) to prevent conflicts of interest among officers of company bodies, the supervisory board should form an audit committee and a committee for nominations and compensation, most of whose members should be independent.

3.1.14. When creating the committees a supervisory board clearly defines and discloses the information about their objectives, organization and working procedures.

3.1.15. Members of the supervisory board should be entitled to adequate compensation and should be provided with an incentive to perform their duties for the benefit of the company. Information about the amount and form of compensation extended to individual or all members of the supervisory board in aggregate, the number of shares they own, etc. should be made public in the annual report.

3.1.16. The position of corporate secretary should be introduced, with an objective to provide efficient organizational and information support to the governing bodies of the company, and to keep shareholders and stakeholders informed about the company’s status.

3.2. The Executive Board

3.2.1 The executive board manages the day-to-day activities of the company and reports to the supervisory board and the general shareholders’ meeting.

3.2.2 The executive board develops and coordinates with the supervisory board a draft annual budget and a draft company strategy, independently prepares and approves the workplans and operating objectives of the company, and ensures their implementation.

3.2.3 The executive board should ensure the conformity of the company’s activity to the provisions of applicable legislation, and the resolutions of the general meeting and the supervisory board. At least once a year the executive body shall report to shareholders on its activities at the general shareholder meeting.

3.2.4 Companies are recommended to form a collegial executive board. The chief executive officer (CEO) is elected and dismissed by the supervisory board.

3.2.5. Members of the executive board should have the knowledge, skills, and experience necessary for the proper performance of their duties.

3.2.6 The amount and form of compensation for members of the executive board are determined by the supervisory board (on a motion by the committee for nomination and compensation). The amount of compensation for members of the executive board should be linked to the company’s performance based on the long-term interests of the company and shareholders. Information about the total amount and form of compensation of members of the executive board and the number of shares they own should be disclosed in the annual report.

3.2.7 At the request of the supervisory board, but at least once every three months, the executive board should provide the supervisory board, in writing, with a report on financial and economic status of the company and the extent to which set goals and targets were achieved. In addition, the executive board should provide members of the supervisory board, at their request, with the timely, complete, and accurate information necessary for the supervisory board to discharge its duties properly. Based on year-end results, the executive board should report to the general shareholders’ meeting on its activities and the overall state of the company.

3.2.8 The supervisory board regularly evaluates the performance of the executive board as a whole and its members separately.

3.3. Loyalty and Liability

3.3.1 Officers of the governing bodies of the company should act with due diligence and care in the best interests of the company.

3.3.2 Company officers should disclose information about a conflict of interest which may exist or arise in connection with any transaction (decision). The charter and by-laws of the company should set forth an appropriate procedure for making transactions in which company officers may have a conflict of interest. This procedure should provide for the following:

a) a person who has a conflict of interest in relation to a particular transaction made by the company should inform the supervisory board of the conflict of interest in a timely manner;

b) the transaction should be approved by the majority of members of the supervisory board;

c) the person who has a conflict of interest may not take part in the discussion of or voting on such a transaction; and,

d) transactions in which company officers have conflicts of interest should be made on fair terms and at fair market prices.

3.3.3. Company officers should not use opportunities of the company for personal gain.

3.3.4 During their term in office, company officers cannot establish or participate in (as owner or co-owner) companies which compete with the company, and cannot otherwise compete with the company by any other means. Members of the executive board should not combine the performance of their mandate for the company with any other business activity, except with the approval of the supervisory board.

3.3.5 The company’s policy regarding loans to company officers should be clearly set out in company by-laws. A decision to provide a loan to an officer of the company is subject to approval by the supervisory board. Information about such loans should be disclosed to company shareholders.

3.3.6 Company officers should compensate the company for damage caused to the company as a result of their failure to perform or improper performance of their duty to act with due diligence in the best interests of the company; civil law and labor contracts between the company and the company officers should include necessary provisions about company officers’ liability.

4. Information Disclosure and Transparency

The company should disclose full and accurate information on all matters of importance concerning the company in a timely fashion and by convenient means, with an aim to provide users of such information, including shareholders, creditors, potential investors, etc., with an opportunity to make informed decisions.

4.1. Information disclosed by the company should be relevant and complete.
4.1.1. Relevant information which should be regularly disclosed by the company includes information about:

a) business objectives and strategy;
b) financial and operational results;
c) the ownership and control structure of the company and the structure of a group to which the company belongs, and relationships within the group;
d) decisions on deals with interest;
e) persons providing the company with advisory and other services, which could lead to a conflict of interest;
f) officers of the company’s governing bodies and the amount of their compensation and shares to be owned;
e) major risk factors influencing the company’s operations;
f) observance of corporate governance principles;
g) issues regarding employees and other stakeholders.

4.1.2 In addition to regular information, the company should immediately disclose special information about major events and changes which may affect the company, the value of its securities and/or earnings on them.

4.2. The company should disclose true information to create a fair picture of its actual financial situation and performance.

4.3. The company should disclose information in a timely fashion.

4.4. The company should provide equal access to publicly available information, regardless of its amount, content, format and the time of disclosure, for all users of such information.

4.5. To disclose information, the company should use convenient communication means which ensure equal, timely, and inexpensive access to information.

4.6. The company should have a clearly formulated communications policy for disclosing information about the company by making it available to all those interested in receiving such information in an amount sufficient for making an informed decision. The company’s communications policy should be set with regard to the company’s needs for the protection of confidential and secret information.

5. Overseeing the Financial and Business Activity of the Company
To protect the rights and legitimate interests of shareholders, the company should provide for comprehensive, independent, impartial, and professional oversight of its financial and business activity.

5.1. The company should provide for the oversight of its financial and business activity by an independent external auditor (audit firm) and by means of internal control.

5.1.1 The company’s internal control system should provide for the strategic, operating, and on-going oversight of its financial and business activity.

a) The supervisory board (audit committee of the supervisory board) should ensure the operation of a proper control system and the strategic oversight of the financial and business activity of the company;

b) The audit commission should exercise the operating oversight of the financial and business activity of the company through regular and extraordinary inspections;

c) The internal audit service should exercise the on-going control of the financial and business activity of the company.

5.1.2 The company should arrange for annual audits by an external auditor appointed by the supervisory board or the general shareholders’ meeting. The audits should be conducted in accordance with international auditing standards.

5.1.3 Before making the decision to commit the transaction with interest, company could involve an external auditor, or other person that possesses necessary qualifications (person doing an appraisal activity, independent expert, etc.) to assess the compliance of conditions of the transaction with normal market conditions.

5.2. Persons overseeing the financial and business activity of the company should be independent from the executive board of the company, large shareholders, or other persons who may have a personal interest in the results of oversight.

5.3. The company should ensure the impartial and professional oversight of its financial and business activity.

5.4. Persons overseeing the financial and business activity of the company should report to the supervisory board and/or shareholders about the results of such inspections. An external auditor should attend the general shareholders’ meeting, with an aim to answer shareholders’ questions about financial reports and the auditor’s opinion.

6. Stakeholders

The company should respect the rights and take into account the legitimate interests of stakeholders (persons having a legitimate interest in the activity of the company, e.g. employees, creditors, consumers, local community where the company is located, as well as relevant government agencies and local self-government) and encourage active co-operation with them to add value, create jobs, and ensure the financial stability of the company.

6.1. The company should ensure the observance of the rights and interests of stakeholders

1 For the purposes of this document, the standing body of the company responsible for monitoring its financial and business activities is conditionally defined as an internal audit service. Companies are allowed to use different terms to refer to such a body (e.g. controlling service, control and audit service, etc.).
6.2. The company should provide stakeholders with access to information about the company necessary for effective cooperation.

6.3. The company should encourage employees to become actively involved in the process of corporate governance and motivate them to work efficiently for the benefit of the company, in particular by electing representatives of the employees to the Supervisory Board. Employees or their representative bodies are recommended to communicate to the general meeting and/or the supervisory board on any concerns about illegal and/or unethical actions of the management and/or certain officials of the management board. It should not lead to discrimination and/or disciplinary prosecutions of those employees or their representative bodies.

Vice versa the Ukrainian national accounting standards do not require as detailed P&L for small undertakings as the Directive does.

Additionally, the abridged form of P&L is not stated for medium-sized undertakings in Ukraine.

Detailed comparative information please find in Annexes 2 and 3.

Recommendation (to be implemented at the level of national standard, not the Law):

1. To amend national accounting standard (П(С)БО 25) in order to comply with the Directive by eliminating additional items from the balance sheet for small enterprises. For micro-enterprises the requirements to the balance sheet may be reconsidered in order to encompass only items stated in part 2 of Article 36 of the Directive.
2. To amend profit and loss accounts for small and medium-sized enterprises (the Directive requires more detailed information on profit and loss than Ukrainian national standard).
3. For micro-enterprises Article 36 of the Directive allows P&L containing only 8 items. П(С)БО 25 should be amended to simplify the form of P&L for micro-enterprises, representative offices of non-residents etc. is regulated by national accounting standard (П(С)БО 25).
Article 3. Purpose of Accounting and Financial reporting

1. Financial reporting and accounting shall be carried out in order to provide users with complete, authentic, and unbiased information on enterprises' financial status, performance, and movement of monetary resources, so they can make [correct] decisions with regard thereto.

2. Bookkeeping shall be a compulsory type of accounting at any given enterprise. Financial, tax, statistical, and other types of accounting using the measuring rod of money shall be based on bookkeeping data.

3. Enterprises, eligible for the simplified accounting for income and expenses and not registered as value-added tax payers, may consolidate information in accounting registers without applying the double-entry system.

Article 4. Basic Accounting and Financial reporting Principles

Bookkeeping and financial reporting [accounting] shall rely on the following basic principles:

- Prudence, meaning usage of valuation methods designed to prevent the understatement of liabilities and disbursements and overstatement of assets and revenues of a given enterprise;

- Complete coverage, meaning that each financial report must contain all information relating to the actual and potential consequences of business transactions and occurrences capable of affecting the decisions being taken on the basis thereof;

- Autonomy, whereby every enterprise is regarded as a legal entity separately from its proprietor(s) and the personal property of the proprietor(s) must not be reflected in the financial reports of this enterprise;

- Consistency, meaning continuous, year-in-year-out application of the accounting policy adopted by a given enterprise. Changes in this policy are possible only in cases stipulated by the National Accounting Regulations (Standards), motivated, and disclosed in a financial report;

- Continuity, meaning that the assessment of a given

4. A given enterprise shall independently adopt the type of accounting arrangements, namely:
   - employment of the accountant or accounting department headed by the chief accountant;
   - assistance by an accounting expert registered as a practicing entrepreneur but without the legal entity status;
   - contractual accounting services rendered by a centralized accounts department or audit firm;
   - the independent maintenance of accounts and the compilation of reports directly by the owner or the chief executive.

Recital 40

The Members of the administrative, management and supervisory bodies of an undertaking should, as a minimum requirement, be collectively responsible to the undertaking for drawing up and publishing annual financial statements and management reports. The same approach should also apply to members of the administrative, management and supervisory bodies of undertakings drawing up consolidated financial statements.

According to Article 33 the collective responsibility of the administrative, management and supervisory bodies is stated for ensuring that the annual (consolidated) financial statements, the (consolidated) management report and the (consolidated) corporate governance statement are drawn up and published according to the requirements of the Directive, and where applicable, with the international accounting standards.

The respective provisions on liability of corporative bodies shall be added to the Article 8:

“The members of administrative, management and supervisory bodies are collectively liable for drawing up, submission and publishing of the (consolidated) financial report composed according to national accounting standards and international accounting standards and (consolidated) management report (if applicable)”.
Task and functional duties of accounting departments, powers of the head of the accounting department in budget-funded institutions shall be specified by the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine.

5. An enterprises shall independently:
- determine the accounting policy of the enterprise in concurrence with the owner (owners) or a body (officer) authorized thereby in accordance with the constituting documents;

The suggestion is to substitute the existing wording as follows:

Part 2 of Article 9 of the Law:

“Basic and summary accounting documents may be executed as hard copies or in a form that allows multiple users to access and use the data easily”

Part 6 of Article 9 of the Law to substitute “as computer files” for “in a form that allows multiple users to access and use the data easily” documents shall be systematized in synthetic accounting ledgers and book inventory records by double entry in interconnected bookkeeping accounts. Foreign exchange operations shall also be reflected in the currency of payments with regard to each foreign currency involved, recorded separately.

Data from book inventory records shall tally with that on synthetic bookkeeping accounts as of the first day of each month.

4. Each ledger shall be titled, providing the time of registration of business transactions, names, signatures, or other data allowing the identification of the parties concerned.

5. Business transactions shall be reflected in the ledgers relating to the accounting period in which these transactions were performed.

6. In the case of basic documents and ledgers as computer files, a given enterprise shall, at its own expense, produce their hard copies if so requested by other participants in business operations or by law enforcement and other authorities acting within their respective legally established competence.

7. Each enterprise shall take all measures required to prevent unauthorized and furtive corrections in basic documents and ledgers, and shall arrange for their proper storage over the established period.

8. Persons executing and signing such basic documents and ledgers shall be held responsible for their delayed execution, presentation, or corrupt information detected therein.

9. Copies of source documents and accounting registers may only be seized from an enterprise on decisions of the competent agencies made within the scope of their powers vested in them by laws. The compilation of a register of documents to be seized in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the legislation shall be obligatory.

Seizing original documents and registers of this kind shall be prohibited, except for cases covered with the criminal procedural law.

Article 10. Inventory of Assets and Liabilities

1) Obligatory audit for large and medium-sized undertakings

Recital 43

Annual financial statements and consolidated financial statements should be audited. [...] The annual financial statements of small undertakings should not be covered by this audit obligation, as audit can be a significant administrative burden for that category of undertaking.[...]

Article 34

Member States shall ensure that the financial statements of public-interest entities, medium-sized and large undertakings are audited by one or more statutory auditors or audit firms approved by Member States to carry out statutory audits on the basis of Directive 2006/43/EC.

The legislation of Ukraine does not establish obligatory audit requirements for large and medium-sized enterprises.

Formally, there is an obligation for all business companies to carry out statutory audit (Article 18 of the Law of Ukraine “On Business Companies” states that accuracy and completeness of annual financial statements shall be assured by the auditor (audit firm). However, this legal requirement is not realized in practice insofar as the legal enforcement rules and liability measures in case of breach of this requirement are not stated.

The formal amendment proposal: To supplement the Article 11 of the Law with provision 8 stating that the financial statements of public-interest entities, medium-sized and large undertakings shall be audited.

The Law of Ukraine “On Auditing Activity” shall be amended accordingly.
Article 12. Consolidated and Summary Financial Reports

1. Enterprises with subsidiaries [affiliates], in addition to financial reports on their own business operations, shall draw up and submit consolidated financial reports.

2. The ministries, other central executive authorities having jurisdiction over enterprises based on public property, and bodies managing the property of enterprises based on municipal property, in addition to their own reports, shall draw up and submit consolidated financial reports covering all enterprises subordinated to them.

   The said bodies shall also draw up consolidated financial reports with regard to economic associations whose shares are under state and municipal ownership.

3. Associations of enterprises, in addition to their own reports, shall draw up and submit consolidated financial reports with regard to all enterprises being members of these associations if so provided by constituent documents of associations of enterprises in accordance with the legislation.

Article 22

A Member State shall require any undertaking governed by its national law to draw up consolidated financial statements and a consolidated management report if that undertaking (a parent undertaking):

(a) has a majority of the shareholders’ or members’ voting rights in another undertaking (a subsidiary undertaking);

(b) has the right to appoint or remove a majority of the members of the administrative, management or supervisory body of another undertaking (a subsidiary undertaking) and is at the same time a shareholder in or member of that undertaking;

(c) has the right to exercise a dominant influence over an undertaking (a subsidiary undertaking) of which it is a shareholder or member, pursuant to a contract entered into with that undertaking or to a provision in its memorandum or articles of association, where the law governing that subsidiary undertaking permits its being subject to such contracts or provisions.

(d) is a shareholder in or member of an undertaking, and:

(i) a majority of the members of the administrative, management or supervisory bodies of that undertaking (a subsidiary undertaking) who have held office during the financial year, during the preceding financial year and up to the time when the consolidated financial statements are drawn up, have been appointed solely as a result of the exercise of its voting rights; or

(ii) controls alone, pursuant to an agreement with other shareholders in or members of that undertaking (a subsidiary undertaking), a majority of shareholders' or members' voting rights in that undertaking. The Member States may introduce more detailed provisions concerning the form and contents of such agreements.

1. Apart from the obligation to consolidate financial reports, the groups of undertakings shall be obliged to consolidate the management reports.

2. The obligation to draw up consolidated financial reports in Ukraine is stated in the Law only for enterprises with subsidiaries. This formulation as to the entities for which the present obligation is established is much narrower than the one given in Article 22 of Directive.

Recommendation: To transpose the provisions of Article 22 of Directive 2013/34 to Article 12 of the Law, if particular, parts (a)-(d) without amendments.
Article 23

1. Small groups shall be exempted from the obligation to draw up consolidated financial statements and a consolidated management report, except where any affiliated undertaking is a public-interest entity.

2. Member States may exempt medium-sized groups from the obligation to draw up consolidated financial statements and a consolidated management report, except where any affiliated undertaking is a public-interest entity.

3. [...] Member State shall, in the following cases, exempt [...] any parent undertaking (the exempted undertaking) [...] which is also a subsidiary undertaking, including a public-interest entity [...], the own parent undertaking of which is governed by the law of a Member State [...]

The exemption from consolidation for small groups of undertakings shall be established in Ukrainian legislation. Potentially it may be done by adding the following provision to part 1 of Article 12 of the Law:

“The present obligation does not apply to small groups except where any affiliated undertaking is a public-interest entity” statements compiled under international standards shall be submitted in accordance with the procedure prescribed by this Law.

The application of exemption for medium-sized groups may also be considered.

Article 13. Accounting Period

1. A calendar year shall be the accounting period for which a financial report is drawn up. Interim reports shall be made on a quarterly basis, using the progressive total method, as of the start of the year and as part of the balance sheet and business performance report. A balance sheet shall be drawn up as of the end of the last day of the quarter (of the year).

2. The first accounting period of a newly established enterprise may be less than 12 months, but not longer than 15 months.

3. In case of liquidation, the accounting period shall be the time from the beginning of the accounting year till the date on which a decision on liquidation was made.

Article 14. Presentation and Publication of Financial Reports

1. Enterprises shall be under the obligation to submit quarterly and annual financial reports to the authorities having jurisdiction over these enterprises, also to work collectives if so requested, proprietors (originators) as per foundation instruments), unless otherwise provided by this Law. Executive authorities and other users shall be presented financial reports as provided by law. The deadline for the submission of financial statements shall be specified by the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine or, in case of banks, by the National Bank of Ukraine.

2. Financial reports submitted by enterprises shall not be qualified as commercial secrets, except in cases stipulated by the law.

3. Enterprises (other than budget-funded institutions) must provide the state registrar (with registered mail) with the financial statements covering business activities comprising a balance sheet and an annual profit/loss account in the location of the registration case not later than by 1 June of the year that follows the financial reporting year.

4. Public joint stock companies, corporate issuers of mortgage bonds, mortgage certificates, corporate bonds and real-estate transaction fund certificates, as well as professional stock market members, banks, insurers and other financial institutions shall be obliged to publish annual financial statements and annual consolidated financial statements together with the auditor’s opinion

Article 30

1. Member States shall ensure that undertakings publish within a reasonable period of time, which shall not exceed 12 months after the balance sheet date, the duly approved annual financial statements and the management report, together with the opinion submitted by the statutory auditor or audit firm [...].

Member States may, however, exempt undertakings from the obligation to publish the management report where a copy of all or part of any such report can be easily obtained upon request at a price not exceeding its administrative cost.

Article 31

1. Member States may exempt small undertakings from the obligation to publish their profit and loss accounts and management reports.

Re: Electronic submission

Recital (39)

The Directive imposes the obligation to publish not only annual financial statements, but also the management report and audit opinion for all the undertakings covered by the scope of the Directive (undertakings with the limited liability of participants).

In Ukraine the publication of management report is not required by any legal act and the obligation to publish annual financial statements is imposed on a limited number of entities (part 4 of Article 14 of the Law). In this respect the following changes are suggested:

1) The obligation to publish management report shall be established for all the limited liability companies. The exemption for the small undertakings may be established.

2) The obligation to publish annual financial statements and audit opinion shall be established for all the large, medium-sized enterprises (at least those which are companies with limited
Enterprises - subjects of electric-power industry which are not required to publish financial reporting in accordance with this Article shall ensure the availability of appropriate financial reporting for public review at the location of the executive body of such enterprise.

5. In case of liquidation, the liquidation committee shall draw up a liquidation balance sheet and have it published within 45 days in cases stipulated by the law.

6. The national accreditation agency of Ukraine shall be obliged to publish annual financial statements by means of the distribution thereof as separate publications and/or the placement thereof on its own web site on the Internet not later than by June 1 of the year that follows the financial reporting year.

The Member States are strongly encouraged to develop electronic publication systems that allow undertakings to file accounting data, including statutory financial statements, only once and in a form that allows multiple users to access and use the data easily.

The following exemptions may be established:

2.1 The small undertakings may be exempt from the obligation to publish audit opinion insofar as the audit is not mandatory for small undertakings;

2.2. Small undertakings are allowed not to publish their profit and loss accounts.

The Directive establishes the obligation to submit only annual financial reports.

Recommendation: To withdraw the obligation to submit quarterly reports from the present Law and other regulatory acts.

Electronic publication of financial reports of all other limited liability companies apart from those stated in part 4 of Article 14 of the Law shall be ensured in Ukrainian legislation.

Article 15. Monitoring Observance of the Accounting and Financial reporting Laws

| Duly designated authorities, acting within their respective competence determined by the law, shall monitor observance of the accounting and financial reporting laws in Ukraine. | Nothing to mention |

Annex 1

Differentiation of undertakings and groups of undertakings according to Directive 2013/34/EU

The preamble to the Directive 2013/34/EU states that annual financial statements pursue various objectives and do not merely provide information for investors in capital markets but also give an account of past transactions and enhance corporate governance. Union accounting legislation needs to strike an appropriate balance between the interests of the addressees of financial statements and the interest of undertakings in not being unduly burdened with reporting requirements.

In the light of the above the Directive’s Article 3 defines different categories of undertakings and groups of undertakings for the purposes of differentiation of requirements to their annual or consolidated financial reports.
Category | Balance sheet total, EUR | Net turnover, EUR | Average number of employees
---|---|---|---
Undertakings
Large | > 20 000 000 | > 40 000 000 | > 250
Medium-sized | ≤ 20 000 000 | ≤ 40 000 000 | ≤ 250
Small | ≤ 4 000 000 | ≤ 8 000 000 | ≤ 50
Micro | ≤ 350 000 | ≤ 700 000 | ≤ 10
Groups of undertakings
Large | > 20 000 000 | > 40 000 000 | > 250
Medium-sized | ≤ 20 000 000 | ≤ 40 000 000 | ≤ 250
Small | ≤ 4 000 000 | ≤ 8 000 000 | ≤ 50

In Ukraine Commercial code states the following categorization of enterprises:

Category | Net turnover, EUR | Average number of employees
---|---|---
Undertakings
Large | > 50 000 000 | > 250
Medium-sized | > 10 000 000 | > 50
Small | ≤ 10 000 000 | ≤ 50
Micro | ≤ 2 000 000 | ≤ 10

The categorization of enterprises given in Commercial Code entirely corresponds to the one given in the Directive. However, the following shall be considered as the issues which need to be amended in order to comply with the Directive:

- Ukrainian legislation shall define the categories of groups of enterprises for the purposes of different financial reporting requirements’ establishment
- Differentiation for the purposes of financial reporting is currently made only for small and micro enterprises. The requirements to the financial reporting to all other enterprises (large and medium-sized) and for groups of enterprises do not differ. In order to comply with the requirements of the Directive the accounting legislation of Ukraine shall foresee the following:
  - Possibility to compose the abridged P&L for middle-sized enterprises
  - Additional disclosures for medium-sized and large undertakings and public-interest entities which are stated in Articles 17-18 of the Directive shall be incorporated to the Form of Financial Reporting N 5 “Notes to financial statements” and to the respective national accounting standards.

Article 1. Scope of the Law
Provisions of this Law shall operate on the territory of Ukraine and apply to all business entities regardless of forms of ownership and activities.
This Law shall not apply to the audit activities of state authorities, their units and officials authorized by laws of Ukraine to exercise the state financial control.

Article 2. Legislation on Audit Activities
Audit activities in the field of the financial control shall be governed by the Commercial Code of Ukraine, this Law, other regulatory acts and audit standards. If an international treaty accepted as binding by the Parliament of Ukraine specifies rules other than those contained in this Law, the rules of the international treaty shall apply.
Specifics of the exercise of other types of audit activities shall be governed by special legislation.

Article 3. Audit Activities
"Audit activities" shall be understood as entrepreneurial activities that comprise the organizational and methodological support to the audit, the practical execution of audits (audit), and the provision of other audit services.
"Audit" shall be understood as the verification of accounting data and financial statement indicators of a business entity in order to express an independent opinion of an auditor on their trueness in all material aspects and the conformity with requirements of laws of Ukraine, accounting policies (standards) or other rules (internal policies of business entities) in accordance with requirements of users.
The information shall be deemed material, if the omission or the incorrect presentation thereof may affect the economic decisions of users made on the basis of financial reports.
The audit shall be carried out by independent parties (auditors) and audit firms authorized by business entities to carry out the same.
The audit may be carried out on the initiative of business entities and in cases specified by law (statutory audit).
Auditors (audit firms) may provide other audit services related to their professional activities, including the | Article 2 of the Directive gives the following definitions: 'statutory audit’, ‘statutory auditor’. | Article 3 states that the statutory audit shall be carried out only by statutory auditors or audit firms which are approved by the Member State requiring the statutory audit. | Formal amendment proposal: (i)adding words 'international accounting standards' after words “accounting policies (standards)” in item 2 of Article 3; (ii)adding the definitions ‘statutory audit’, ‘statutory auditor’ (iii) adding a provision stating that the statutory audit may only be carried out by statutory auditors or audit firms. | maintenance and the restoration of accounting, in the form of the accounting and financial statements advisor, expert appraisal and the evaluation of the status of financial and business activities, and other types of the economic and legal support to the business activities of business entities. Auditors (audit firms) may audit the mortgage cover in accordance with the Law of Ukraine “On Mortgage Bonds”.

The list of services that can be provided by auditors (audit firms) shall be specified by the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine in accordance with audit standards.

Article 4. Auditor

An auditor may be an individual being in possession of a certificate defining the individual's suitability for the exercise of audit activities on the territory of Ukraine.

An auditor shall have the right to exercise audit activities as a sole trader or as a member of an audit firm in conformity with requirements of this Law and other regulatory acts.

An auditor shall have the right to exercise audit activities as a sole trader solely after the inclusion of the auditor into the Register of Audit Firms and Sole Auditors.

Auditors shall be prohibited from directly exercising other business activities but this does not preclude their right to receive dividends on shares and revenues from other corporate rights.

No person, who has a non-lifted or non-reversed conviction for crime or who has been subjected to an administrative penalty for the commission of a corrupt offence, may be an auditor.

An auditor shall be prohibited from making use of his office for the obtainment of the illegitimate benefits or accepting promises or offers of such benefits for himself or other parties.

Article 3

3. Without prejudice to Article 11, the competent authorities of the Member States may approve as statutory auditors only natural persons who satisfy at least the conditions laid down in Articles 4 and 6 to 10, in particular:

   (i) good repute;
   (ii) educational qualifications (a person needs to attain university entrance or equivalent level, then complete a course of theoretical instruction, undergo practical training and pass an examination of professional competence of university final or equivalent examination level). The practical training shall last not less than three years and at least two thirds of such training shall be completed with a statutory auditor or audit firm.

The requirements to natural persons who may be admitted to carry out the statutory audit shall be reflected in the Law. In any case they shall be not less than those laid down in Articles 3, 4 and 10 of the Directive.

Article 5. Audit Firm

"Audit firm" shall be understood as a legal entity established in accordance with the legislation that exercises solely audit activities.

The right to exercise audit activities shall be vested in audit firms entered into the Register of Audit Firms and Sole Auditors.

The total interest of founders (participants) of an audit firm, who are not auditors, in the authorized capital may not exceed 30 per cent.

Only an auditor may be a chief executive officer of an audit firm.

The requirements to the audit firms which can carry out the statutory audit shall be developed at national level and reflected in the Law.

Laws and other regulatory acts of Ukraine, accounting policies (standards), internal requirements and policies of business entities, and other sources may be such conceptual fundamentals.

Audit services in the form of the advisory may be provided verbally or in writing with the execution of a certificate and other official documents. Audit services in the form of the expert appraisal shall be formalized with an expert opinion or a protocol.

Results of the provision of other audit services shall be formalized in accordance with audit standards.

An audit opinion of an auditor of a foreign state in case of the official submission thereof to an institution, an organization or a business entity of Ukraine must be confirmed by a Ukrainian auditor, unless otherwise prescribed by an international treaty of Ukraine.

Article 8. Statutory Audit

The audit performance shall be obligatory for the following purposes:

1. The confirmation of the trueness and the completeness of annual financial statements and consolidated financial reports of open joint-stock (public) companies, enterprises being issuers of bonds, professional securities market members, financial institutions and other business entities, whose statements are subject to the official disclosure in accordance with the legislation of Ukraine, except for institutions and organizations that are fully maintained at the expense of the state budget;

2. The verification of the financial standing of founders of banks, enterprises with foreign investments, open joint-stock (public) companies (other than individuals), insurance and holding companies, joint investment institutes, trust companies and other financial intermediaries;

3. Issuers of securities and derivative securities (derivatives), as well as during the obtaining of a license for the exercise of professional activities on the securities market.

The audit must also be performed in other cases when prescribed by laws of Ukraine.

The Directive operates the wording ‘audit report’ instead of “audit opinion”.

The Directive states that ‘audit report’ means the report referred to in Article 51a of Directive 78/660/EEC and Article 37 of Directive 83/349/EEC issued by the statutory auditor or audit firm. The requirements to the audit report are stated in Article 35 of Directive 3013/34/EU;

Article 28 (as amended by Article 35 of Directive 3013/34/EU)

1. Where an audit firm carries out the statutory audit, the audit report shall be signed by at least the statutory auditor(s) carrying out the statutory audit on behalf of the audit firm.

Article 2

13. The Directive introduces a definition of ‘public-interest entities’ which means entities governed by the law of a Member State whose transferable securities are admitted to trading on a regulated market of any Member State within the meaning of point 14 of Article 4(1) of Directive 2004/39/EC, credit institutions as defined in point 1 of Article 1 of Directive 2000/12/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 March 2000 relating to the taking up and pursuit of the business of credit institutions (1) and insurance undertakings within the meaning of Article 2(1) of Directive 91/674/EEC.

Recital 23

Since public-interest entities have a higher visibility and are economically more important, stricter requirements should apply in the case of a statutory audit of their annual or consolidated accounts.

A fee shall be charged for the certification in the amount specified by the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine on the basis of the expense budget of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Article 11. Register of Audit Firms and Sole Auditors

"Register of Audit Firms and Sole Auditors" shall be understood as a database containing the information about audit firms and auditors that exercise audit activities individually as sole traders (hereinafter referred to as the "Register").

The Register maintenance procedure shall be defined and supported by the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

The Register shall be published at least once a year in the specialist bulletin of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Audit firms and auditors registered as sole traders shall have the right to exercise audit activities solely after being entered into the Register.

A certificate in the appropriate form shall be issued to the audit firms and auditors listed in part four of this article that are entered into the Register.

A fee shall be charged for the entry into the Register in the amount specified by the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Article 12. Powers of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine

Article 15

The Directive lays down the following rules regarding the public register (particularly, Article 15):

(1) each statutory auditor and audit firm is identified in the public register by an individual number.

(2) registration information shall be stored in the register in electronic form and shall be electronically accessible to the public.

Article 17

1. As regards audit firms, the public register shall contain at least the following information:

(a) name, address and registration number;
(b) legal form;
(c) contact information, the primary contact person and, where applicable, the website address;
(d) address of each office in the Member State;
(e) name and registration number of all statutory auditors employed by or associated as partners or otherwise with the audit firm;
(f) names and business addresses of all owners and shareholders;
(g) names and business addresses of all members of the administrative or management body;
(h) if applicable, the membership of a network and a list of the names and addresses of member firms and affiliates or an indication of the place where such information is publicly available;
(i) all other registration(s) as audit firm with the competent authorities of other Member States and as audit entity with third countries, including the name(s) of the registration authority(ies), and, if applicable, the registration number(s).

Formal amendment proposal:
Adding Article 11-1 stating the information which shall be reflected in public register with regard to audit firms (the content of Article 17 item 1);
Substitution of "register" for "public register";
Due allocation of auditors individual numbers and possibility of electronic access by public shall be guaranteed at national level.
Powers of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall be defined with this Law and the Charter of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine. The Charter of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall be adopted by two thirds of votes of the total number of members of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine. The Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall:
1) carry out the certification of the parties intent on exercising audit activities;
2) approve audit standards;
3) approve auditor training curricula and, in concurrence with the National Bank of Ukraine, bank auditor training curricula;
4) maintain the Register;
5) control the compliance of audit firms and auditors with requirements of this Law, audit standards, auditor professional ethics standards;
6) take measures to ensure the independence of auditors in the course of the performance of audits by them and to organize control over the quality of audit services;
7) regulate relations among auditors (audit firms) in the course of the exercise of audit activities and apply sanctions to them, if necessary;
8) exercise other powers envisaged by this Law and the Charter of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine. The Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall receive reports from audit firms and auditors on the work carried out by them, analyze them and submit the consolidated information about the status of audit activities in Ukraine to the Cabinet of Ministers of Ukraine on an annual basis.

Article 15. Chairman of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine

The Chairman of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall perform his duties on a professional basis.

The Chairman of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall be elected from among its members for his term of office as the member of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine by the vote of majority of the total number of members of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

The Chairman of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine may be dismissed early by decision of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine and in other cases covered by the legislation of Ukraine.

Powers of the Chairman of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall be defined with the Charter of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

The Chairman of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine shall ensure setting up the new membership of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Article 16. General Conditions for the Performance of the Audit and the Provision of Other Audit Services

The audit shall be performed and other audit services shall be provided by auditors and audit firms that have acquired the right to exercise the audit activities in accordance with this Law.

The general conditions of the performance of the audit and the provision of other audit services shall be defined by audit standards approved by the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Article 17. Grounds for the Performance of the Audit and the Provision of Other Audit Services

The audit shall be carried out on the basis of a contract between the auditor (the audit firm) and the principal.

Other audit services may be provided on the basis of a contract, a written or verbal request of the principal addressed to the auditor (the audit firm).

The principal shall have the option to choose an auditor (an audit firm) freely in conformity with requirements of this Law.

The contract for the performance of the audit and the provision of other audit services shall specify the subject matter and the time frame of the audit, the volume of audit services, the amount and the conditions of the payment, the liability of the parties.

The audit standards may also provide for other material conditions of the contract for the performance of the audit and the provision of other audit services.
Any provisions of the contract focused on the complete release of the auditor (the audit firm) from the pecuniary liability for the non-trueness of the audit opinion or another document reflecting results of the audit instituted by law shall be null and void.

Documents handed over by the principal to the auditor (the audit firm) for the purposes of the performance of the audit shall not be divulged or seized without the consent of the principal.

Article 18. Rights of Auditors and Audit Firms

Auditors of Ukraine shall have the right to unite in public organizations on a professional basis while adhering to requirements of this Law and other laws.

Professional organizations of auditors of Ukraine shall contribute to enhancing the processional level of auditors, protect social and professional rights of auditors, make proposals on the further improvement of audit activities, exercise other powers envisaged by their charters and policies.

While exercising audit activities, auditors and audit firms shall have the right:

1) to define on their own forms and methods of the performance of the audit and the provision of other audit services on the basis of the current legislation, audit standards and conditions of contract with the principal;
2) to obtain the necessary documents related to the subject matter of the audit and being in possession of both the principal and the third parties.

The third parties being in possession of documents in respect of the subject matter of the audit must provide them on request of the auditor (the audit firm). The said request must be officially confirmed by the principal;
3) to obtain the necessary clarifications in writing or orally from the management and the personnel of the principal;
4) to check the availability of the property, the money, the valuables; to require that the management of the business entity perform control inspections and measurements of the performed work, the ascertainment of the quality of products, in whose respect the document inspection is being carried out;
5) to involve specialists of various profiles into the inspection on a contractual basis.

Article 19. Duties of Auditors and Audit Firms

Auditors and audit firms shall be obliged:

| Formal amendment proposal: | Nothing to mention |
1) to abide by requirements of this Law, the Law of Ukraine "On Corruption Prevention and Inhibition Principles" and other regulatory acts, audit standards, auditor independence guidelines and other appropriate decisions of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine in the course of the audit activities;
2) to properly perform the audit and provide other audit services;
3) to notify owners and individuals authorized thereby, the principals of deficiencies in the maintenance of accounts and the compilation of financial statements detected in the course of the audit;
4) to keep confidential the information obtained in the course of the performance of the audit and the provision of other audit services, not to divulge the information classified as commercial secrets, and not to use the same in own interests or interests of third parties;
5) to be liable to the principal for the violation of conditions of the contract in accordance with the contract and the law;
6) to restrict their activities to the provision of audit services and other activities directly related to the provision of audit services in the form of the advisory, audits or expert appraisals;
7) to timely submit a report on audit activities to the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Article 20. Special Requirements

The performance of the audit shall be prohibited:
1) by an auditor who has direct kinship relation with members of management bodies of the business entity to be audited;
2) by an auditor who has personal property interests in the business entity to be audited;
3) by an auditor being a member of management bodies, a founder or an owner of the business entity to be audited;
4) by an auditor being an employee of the business entity to be audited;
5) by an auditor being an employee or a co-owner of the subsidiary enterprise, the branch or the representative office of the business entity to be audited;
6) if the remuneration for the audit services does not account for the time, the proper skill, knowledge, professional qualification and liability of the auditor required for the appropriate performance of such services;
7) by an auditor in other cases, in which the requirements for his independence are not satisfied. Members of administrative, managing and controlling bodies of audit firms, who are not auditors, as well as founders, owners, and participants of audit firms shall be prohibited from interfering with the practical performance of an audit in a manner violating the independence of auditors, who are performing the audit.

Note: "Family relationship with close relatives referred to in the Law of Ukraine "On Corruption Prevention and Inhibition Principles" shall be defined as the direct family relations.

Article 21. Liability of Auditors and Audit Firms under Civil Law

An auditor (an audit firm) shall bear the pecuniary and other liability regulated by the civil law in accordance with the contract and the law for the improper performance of his/its duties.

The extent of the pecuniary liability of auditors (audit firms) may not exceed the damage actually caused to the client through the fault of theirs.

All disputes in relation to the failure to perform conditions of the contract and property disputes between the auditor (the audit firm) and the principal shall be settled in accordance with the procedure instituted by law.

Article 30

1. Member States shall ensure that there are effective systems of investigations and penalties to detect, correct and prevent inadequate execution of the statutory audit.

2. Without prejudice to Member States' civil liability regimes, Member States shall provide for effective, proportionate and dissuasive penalties in respect of statutory auditors and audit firms, where statutory audits are not carried out in conformity with the provisions adopted in the implementation of this Directive.

3. Member States shall provide that measures taken and penalties imposed on statutory auditors and audit firms are appropriately disclosed to the public. Penalties shall include the possibility of the withdrawal of approval.

Article 22. Other Types of Liability of Auditors and Audit Firms

The Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine may apply a sanction in the form of the warning, the certificate suspension by up to one year, the certificate annulment or the deletion from the Register to an auditor (an audit firm) for the improper performance of professional duties.

The procedure of the application of sanctions to auditors (audit firms) shall be defined by the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine.

Decisions of the Chamber of Auditors of Ukraine on the application of sanctions to auditors (audit firms) may be disputed with court.

Auditors may be subject to other types of liability in accordance with the law.

Article 31

Before 1 January 2007 the Commission shall present a report on the impact of the current national liability rules for the carrying out of statutory audits on European capital markets and on the insurance conditions for statutory auditors and audit firms, including an objective analysis of the limitations of financial liability. The Commission shall, where appropriate, carry out a public consultation. In the light of that report, the Commission shall, if it considers it appropriate, submit recommendations to the Member States.

To develop and implement at national level the transparent system of investigation and penalties, in particular, ensure publicity of investigations and penalties imposed.

National discretion: Apply requirements on obligatory insurance to entities carrying out the statutory audit.

Items covered

1. Introduction.

Welcome address by Enzo Damiani, Attaché, Operational Section for Economic Cooperation, Social and Regional Development, European Union Delegation to Ukraine

This study is located exactly there where it gives us an opportunity to see how we can align Ukrainian legislation with the EU requirements. We are now prepared for the developments, which will include development of business environment, particularly, for small and medium sized enterprises. This legislation is for companies, audit, accounting, and it is related to small enterprises. We are in the phase of programming. The next 3-5 years will be the transition period, and we need to think of some support for companies for this transition period.

What we face now is that sometimes new laws come in force, but we need to make them run, as the government and community are asking for some quick results. So we want to show in the next 3 months that the things are moving and getting advanced.

We need to identify the areas of support and we have to see what has to be done. I expect from this workshop to find which actions we have to look at in the next 2-5 years for the transition period.

Introductory note by Arkadiusz Radwan, Senior Expert, Team Leader

There are many theories that there are many forces and factors as the driving force. The recent factor, a trigger, for Ukraine is legal obligation under the Association Agreement, so that Ukraine aligns its company legislation with the EU. Ukrainian development does not deviate from the EU standard.

There are different driving forces for changes. And Ukraine was driven by desire to have better economy, a better framework for supporting market economy, and there was a flow of ideas with regard to legislation.

Now we have a real obligation for Ukraine to harmonize its law, and we have to go article by article to see what is already in line, and what should be done. On the top of this we attempt to offer theoretical explanation.

The laws made in Brussels have different approaches and different standards, and since Ukraine is not a EU member, there is no direct line for Ukraine how to process, as Ukraine has to include its own specifics.

Structure of sessions:

1. General overview of what has to be done in the field of corporate law.
2. Auditing legislation

1st Session:

Compliance of the Ukrainian company and corporate governance legislation (JSC Law, laws regulating operation of LLC) with the EU Acquis

We will start with internal contradictions very shortly, then we will proceed to external contradictions. And we will talk about what Ukraine is ahead of Brussels, what Ukraine has already implemented.

Alla Nadzon, Junior Expert, Team Member

Corporate law reform

Internal contradictions in the Ukrainian legislation:

- Civil Code
- Commercial Code
- Law of Ukraine “On LLCs”
- Law of Ukraine “On Companies”
- Law of Ukraine “On registration of entrepreneurs as legal entities”

Many provisions of these acts regulate the activities of different associations, some of them are in line with each other, and some of them are contradictory to each other. One of recommendation to eliminate at least those provisions of the Commercial Code that govern those activities.
One of the up-to-date and modern laws is the law on JSC, we also expect to pass the law on LLC. We hope the Parliament will be able to pass it.

Statistics from the National Commission website, just to remind you that there are almost 7000 of public and joint stock companies, and only 129 support stock exchange rate. Actually these companies do their business as corps.

There are more than 17 thousand private and closed companies. And many of them didn’t harmonize their paperwork with the European law. If the provisions of the EU Directive will be implemented in the Ukrainian legislation we first will have to tackle the issue with these public and private companies. As the investors that acquired shares of the public companies at the stock market require different level of protection than private companies.

So the first step towards implementing European legislation shall be the transfer of formerly public JSC into private. After that we will have to start that harmonization process. In this area we will have to implement the mechanism of squeeze-out, to squeeze out the minoritarian shareholders, to improve the mandatory bid, which is also a mandatory mechanism, with the requirement for minoritarian to sell their shares to majoritarian.

In order to ensure this transformation, these majoritarians have to purchase shares from minoritarians. This is problem we have been discussing for quite some time already, and I hope it will find its reflection. Adoption of the law on LLC or Added LLC will offer opportunities for private companies, as they will be registered as LLC.

Right now the EU directors on the right to participate in the listed companies are applied to the companies that are already listed. There is no use to include all these provisions.

This EU Directive aimed at providing the opportunity to the Member State to settle some issues on the legislative level. Some provisions of the Ukrainian legislation already comply with EU legislation. For example, the General Meeting General shall be called within 21 days and we have it within 14 days. Or the right to access documents and information online at the website of the company between the convocation and holding of General meeting. But this we don’t have implemented. So one don’t have to go and get the documents physically. This should be provided, as despite your residency, the shareholders will have the equal rights to access documents by all shareholders, despite their residency, as well as right to use internet, regular mail. What has to be done is identification of the shareholders. This is one of the problems that we will be facing as voting with regular mail may be ground for falsification and fraud. We need to ensure security and safety to avoid this indecent behavior from shareholder. Maybe notary or power of attorney or approval is not easy to do. But this is meant to facilitate and simplify the procedure while this power of attorney might be not an easy thing to do.
The Directive also foresees that the results of the counting registered, indicating number of votes for and against, but the number of votes may not be disclosed until the decision is made by majority.

Provision of Directive 2004/25 about merger

This directive has been discussed for many years together with many acts. Mandatory bidding – obligatory propose to the major shareholder to buy the shares of other. It fulfills the article 65 of the Law on JSC. However, it doesn’t work the way it is supposed to. Proposals have to be made by the major shareholder.

Another procedure is squeeze-out when the shareholder has 90 or more % of shares, he/she has the right to buy the shares of minoritorian. The Directive foresees that the Member State can raise this threshold, but it can’t be more than 95 %. Squeeze-out procedure is actively discussed on different levels. They were actively working on the draft law. But it was called back at the end of November.

The next procedure is sell-out procedure – it requires to sell out minoritorisans’ share by majoritorian.

We need to work on implementing legislation. Our work has to be comprehensive, it has to be based on detailed analysis of EU Directives and Ukrainian legislation, so some provisions shall not be taken out from and pasted into Ukrainian legislation as it going to create more problems than something good.

Arkadiusz Radwan, Senior Expert, Team Leader

To sum the information about this dual regime: European legislation on such companies put a lot of pressure on them. It would be useful to move to this dual regime and to consider which provisions shall be kept in the Companies Act and which shall be moved to the corporate market legislation.

Authorizing capital

Directive provides for possible member states to have authorized capital. Maybe useful to consider if certain check points have to be set, or to shorten the period from 5 to 3 years.

- The prohibitions on capital increases in cases whenever (art. 15 JSCL): the value of company’s equity is lower than the value of its charter capital; or

- such an increase would be designed to cover losses of the company

Ukrainian law shouldn’t go beyond that.

- Financial assistance (art. 23 par. 5 JSCL – compare with art. 25 of the Capital Directive)
The general tendency in EU law is liberalization. It needed to be considered in the Ukrainian background. It can be more restrictive.

- Appraisal rights for dissenting shareholders in cases of capital increase or decrease (see art. 68 par. 1.3, sec. I.9 of the Decision of the NCSSM No. 822) are in excess of the justified need for minority protection.

It’s something very unique. You will not find it anywhere, I never saw anything similar. How does it work in practice? It’s going too far. Many important pieces of legislation are not in the law, but in the decision of the Commission. We need to inspect them more closely. We need to know whether the transposition was made correctly or not. How we can see these decisions? I understand that Commission reacts faster than the parliament. But it will require broadened scrutiny for legislation if Ukraine joins EU.

Pre-emptive rights (art. 33 of the Capital Directive): all the shareholders of listed and non-listed joint stock companies alike, shall have the pre-emptive right whenever the share capital is increased by consideration in cash.

[scope: companies]: the Directive has a broader scope, unlike Ukrainian law (art. 15 par. 3 JSCL) it mandates pre-emptive rights for publicly issued shares as well.

It is related to private and public companies. Directive requires pre-emptive rights, and Ukrainian legislation no, but Directive is very clear.

[scope: contributions] even if under the Capital Directive shareholders enjoy pre-emptive right in all cases, whenever charter capital is increased by means of contributions in-cash, many Member States go beyond this requirement. Company laws of e.g. Germany, Austria, Poland, Croatia (different approach – pre-emptive right restricted to in-cash contribution e.g. in France, Italy, the Netherlands). It is recommended for the Ukrainian reform to embrace in-kind contributions as well, so that pre-emptive right is granted regardless of the contribution brought by investors to pay up new shares. The reason behind this recommendation: pre-emptive right is a clear-cut rule capable of protecting minority shareholders from dilution of their stock, both in terms of voting rights and value of investment. In a transitional jurisdiction with not yet sufficiently established standards of fiduciary duties and deficits of their proper enforcement, clear-cut rules prevail over open standards.

In case of contributions, in cash contributions are excluded. Germany, Austria Croatia have extended pre-emptive rights. They limit in cash contributions only if there is capital increase.

Extending pre-empting right is clear cut, it mandates to come up with reasons to justify this. It is maybe wiser to stick with this clear-cut rules.

Pre-emptive rights

[scope: shares] Pre-emptive right should be given to shareholders of ordinary shares as well as to holders of preferred shares. This should be designed with a view of the underlying assumption that pre-emptive rights should allow to maintain a status quo in the company both in terms of influence (voting rights proportions) and value (protection against stock dilution as a step-by-step expropriation technique). Whenever possible, the new issue should reflect the pre-existing structure of shares and their classes. It is not in line with the Directive to have only one type of shares.

- SB should be made mandatory for all JSC, public and private alike
- Sec. 5 Boards should be organized in such a way that a sufficient number of independent SB members play an effective role in key areas where the potential for conflict of interest is particularly high.
- Rules and guidelines on SB committees should be put in place on a 'comply or explain'-basis (see Recommendation 2005/162/EC on the role of non-executive or supervisory directors of listed companies and on the committees of the (supervisory board)
- Independent board members in line with recommendations.

- Three committees of the board of the listed companies: nomination, remuneration and audit committees should be created within the (supervisory) board, where that board plays a role in the areas of nomination, remuneration and audit under national law.
  - However, pursuant to sec. 1.3.2 Member States should be allowed to choose, in whole or in part, between the creation within the (supervisory) board of any of the committees with the characteristics advocated in this Recommendation, and the use of other structures – external to the (supervisory) board – or procedures.
  - However, companies may group the functions as they see fit and create fewer than three committees.
  - Sec. 7.2. In companies where the (supervisory) board is small, the functions assigned to the three committees may be performed by the (supervisory) board as a whole, provided that it meets the composition requirements advocated for the committees.

Legal regime for listed and non-listed companies shall be separated.

Soft law – what is recommended and implemented in form of best practices code, corporate governance code, and is voluntarily adopted by the government.

- it should be mandated by law that the companies disclose their policies with regard to adherence to corporate governance / best practices codes, such as the Ukrainian PCG.
  - Pursuant to art. 20 of the Directive 2013/34/EU on the annual financial statements, consolidated financial statements and related reports, (i.a.) companies listed on a regulated market shall include a corporate governance statement in their management report.
  - That statement shall be included as a specific section of the management report and shall contain information on:
• the corporate governance code to which the undertaking is subject;
• the corporate governance code which the undertaking may have voluntarily decided to apply;
• all relevant information about the corporate governance practices applied over and above the requirements of national law.

Commission has to explain why the company deviates from what is recommended.

• Where a company in accordance with national law, departs from a corporate governance code referred, an explanation by the undertaking as to which parts of the corporate governance code it departs from and the reasons for doing so (‘comply or explain’).
• By this rule, the self-regulatory approach becomes rooted in the system of “hard law”, without losing its “soft” nature.

Remuneration is a hot topic in Europe.

• The definitions of mergers and divisions from the Third and Sixth EU Directives shall be implemented into the Law of Ukraine.

There are differences in term of definitions; they are not exactly the same as in the Directive. Directive contains number of provisions that have to be incorporated into Ukrainian law.

• The documents which are to be prepared for mergers or divisions shall contain information as it is provided in the Third and Sixth EU Directives.
• The rule about right of inspection of the documents concerning merger or division by shareholders at the registered office at least one month before the date fixed to the general meeting should be implemented as well.
• A limit on the cases in which nullity of conducted mergers or divisions can arise by providing that defects be remedied wherever that is possible and by restricting the period within which nullification proceedings may be commenced.
Have to be aligned:

- Special rules governing the civil liability of members of the management bodies of a company being acquired or divided towards the shareholders of that company as well as the experts responsible for drawing up on behalf of that company the reports related to mergers and divisions in respect of the misconduct in the performance of their duties during preparing and implementing the merger or division shall be introduced.

- Provisions to align with the Tenth Company Law Directive regarding cross-border mergers of public limited liability companies shall be introduced. There were no similar rules in Ukraine, so it should be looked at.

- Protection of minorities through appraisal rights (art. 68 JSCL). Possible excess? Ukrainian law goes far beyond that. No appraisal rights just for merging or division. Not as general rule that any merger apply appraisal rights.

- Recommendation: consider adoption of a new special (separate) law on corporate reorganisations (see e.g. German or Spanish models), embracing all kinds of reorganisations (mergers, divisions, spin-offs) and transformations of all companies' types not only JSC.

Fields that partly approached by harmonization. What might be considered as a good reform:

- Legal framework for private limited liability companies should be put in place in form of a new law.

- This new law should increase the level of minority protection while at the same time leaving enough space for flexible arrangements that are needed in small and medium sized enterprises.

- This preserved flexibility should be one of the fundamental distinctions between LLC and non-listed JSC.

- The law should allow for designing the company as a closed company, while at the same time exit rights (at will?) should be allowed in order to avoid deadlocks and imprisonment of shareholders. Exit rights only in Italy, but it also may be applicable for Ukraine as a clear-cut rule.

- Access to information should be assured. Possibility to establish a SB (optional) in a LLC shall be introduced.

- Derivative action should also be allowed under defined conditions. General tendency in Europe. It has to be fine-tuned.

- Legal capital should not be mandatory and non-par value shares should be considered. Many countries decide to abolish it whatsoever. Solvency test and management solvency statement should be put in place, but balance sheet test should play a role too. It's certain standard. Some clear rules should accompany the solvency test.
• Abuse should be curbed by introduction of directors’ liability for acting at the expense of creditors (preferably a mix of German (Insolvenzverschleppungshaftung) and UK (wrongful trading) approach. For Ukraine German approach will be preferable as it’s clear cut approach, so it’s easier to follow.

• Liability of de facto directors should be anchored in the law as well.

The obligation to specify information on the size of the participants’ share in the company’s statute shall be removed (the relevant data should be stored exclusively in the Unified State Register).

Group law, which is not developed in Ukraine, but has to be approached. It’s not determined by the European law.

• The French Rozenblum doctrine should be incorporated into Ukrainian company law (e.g. taking into consideration the recent Czech reform).
• Approaches to group interest should be considered and possibly anchored in law applicable to companies’ group issues.
• Safe harbors for directors of dependent companies (subsidiaries) should be considered in this connection.
• Appraisal remedy (exit right) at the stage of group formation (see German example) as well as in cases of abuse of power by the parent company (see Italian example) should be introduced. Ukraine has it already quite elaborated. It should be looked into the context. To allow the exit of shareholders. Appraisal rights for non-listed companies should be considered.
• Mechanisms for improved disclosure should be considered.
• Simplified rules for wholly-owned (single-member) subsidiaries with increased level of protection of creditors of such companies.

• Arbitrability of company law disputes should be considered in terms of JSC or LLC. How dispute are solved.
• Online registration based on a charter template with a list of opt-ins and opt-outs as well as limited scopes for customization of statutes should be considered. This would be a nice leapfrogging exercise as the EU only now is considering similar approach to registration of Single Member Limited Liability Companies the so called SUP (see the recent proposal for a draft Directive). Adequate safeguards would be needed to verify founders’ identity so as to prevent abuse. Electronic signature or other means to prevent abuse.

What Europe can learn from Ukraine?

Triggering events de lege lata:

• the merger, the affiliation, the division, the transformation, the spin off and the modification of the type of a company;
• the engagement of the company into a substantial transaction;
• the modification of the amount of the charter capital (art. 68 JSCL, Sec. I.9 of the Decision of the NCSSM No. 822 (14.05.2013) – to review this list

Additional possible triggering events to be considered (de lege ferenda):
• subordination of the company as a dependent company (subsidiary) in a corporate group – Spain. In Ukraine dividends are not paid quite often.
• change of corporate charters resulting in limitations of shareholders rights
• change of the regime governing the alienability of shares
• withholding dividends

Ukraine defines significant transactions, Europe doesn’t have it defined. This is the point that Ukraine is far from Europe, it can be used as example how to proceed.

Discussion:

1. Sergiy Yurgelevych, Commercial Law Center

It’s been interesting to hear this presentation, especially given the fact that we have been making 2 draft laws on LLC and Added LLC. We are part of the team developing alternative draft law (Lyapina, Gorina, Voropayev). It’s very nice to hear that some recommendations you are making are already taken into consideration regarding supervision board, liability of directors, general meeting, sizes of the shares, all that was taken into account. Some recommendations are new but will be considered in the new draft laws. But generally I would like to thank you for this presentation I am sure it will help us.

2. Volodymir Pospolitk, Working group of management of legislation of Private deposits guarantee fund

Listed companies they are different, and they are many in Ukraine, since we came from privatization process. If something happen to a bank listed, for instance, the whole world will know about this. If the bank collapses, there will be no currency. I don’t want to be pessimistic. We had very bad situation this spring when Brok Biznesbank or Forum Bank collapsed. I don’t know how the situation will develop next. We’ll have what we’ll have. But in the context of today’s presentation, it’s very important to protect the rights of shareholders. But right now we have the situation when we need to rescue some 30 banks, which had problems after NBU audit. Now the draft law has been developed. The name of this draft law is “Measures for capitalization, a list of bank’s restriction”. This law foreseen only one option before capitalization: through public money. On the one hand, we want to protect the shareholders rights, on the other hand we need to rescue bank. We need to find the balance. Bank is not a transport company. If Ukrgazbank has troubles, then the Association of Loans for Young People who want to buy apartment will collapse. So here is the question. Do we have to stick to the rights of the shareholders if the bank is undercapitalized, or we need to save the bank. In the law says that the General meetings have to be done within 5 days. And we are practicing a lot of by-laws on how the Minister of Finance can be included to the banking structure. The question is following: IMF bank is working on this draft law and they are more internationally perspective oriented. But since Ukraine is going to join EU, are there any recommendations, or maybe from experience of the specific country, is there any model that would allow to violate the rights of shareholders just because they undercapitalized the bank that would allow to rescue the bank, because this is the question of national security as well. Give us some European tools that would allow us to rescue the Bank, but legally restrict the rights of shareholder. Because the law says about additional placement of shares. Maybe it’s not today, maybe you will need to look at something else but if there is an opportunity to rescue the bank on expense of shareholders. This is something we would be grateful for.

Arkadiusz Radwan, Senior Expert, Team Leader

There are not so many junctions between financial regulations of banks and company law. But there are some. Generally company law, same like banks law deals with supervisor board, how to control shareholders etc. So all the mechanisms I mentioned may help the banks to sustain. What is conflicting is: dividends and paying off the shareholders on companies exit. Appraisal rights are outside of European Directives. This is a choice of Members State, so it could be reconciled. As for the dividends the Second Directive says what cannot be done. It doesn’t say what should be done. Member states can set higher or smaller thresholds for banks. Small tensions can be reconciled. This is the issue that can be solved by the Member states and is not regulated by EU law.

2nd Session: Compliance of the Ukrainian accounting, financial reporting and audit with the EU legislation, standards, and practices

Viktoriia Zdiruk, Junior Expert, Team Member
Laws of Ukraine on accounting and audit

The main purpose is to analyze and compare our legislation on audit and accounting with EU requirements.

Agreement on Association between Ukraine and EU
Article 387
The Parties agree to cooperate in introduction at the national level of the relevant international standards and gradual approximation with the EU laws in the field of accounting and audit in accordance with the Attachment XXXV. What EU regulations have to be taken into account, what have to be implemented in the Ukrainian legislation.

In the field of accounting:

- The Seventh Directive from June 13, 1983 on consolidated reporting (83/349/EEC)
Both Directives lost power due to the adoption of the new Directive from June 26, 2013/34/EU on annual reporting, consolidated reporting and relevant reports of certain companies. We now ended up in the situation that the Association refers to these directives and they are already missing.

- Regulation 1606/2002 on application of the international accounting standards.

In the field of audit:

Directive 2006/43/EC from May 17, 2006 on mandatory audit of annual and consolidated reporting.

Key aspects, which we are missing in our legislation.

In accounting

Regulation 1606/2002 the companies the assets of which were sold in the regulated markets of EU.

- Amendments to the Law of Ukraine “On accounting and financial reporting” from 2011: obligation of PJSC, banks, insurers and other companies to make financial reporting and consolidated financial reporting according to IFRS.

Directive 2013/34/EU

- Differentiation of the requirements to the financial reporting depending on income, final balance, number of employees.

- Mandatory audit of financial reporting for large and medium companies

- Simplification of financial reporting requirements for small and medium companies (shortened balance form require detailed information in comparison to Directive)

- Exemption of small and medium group of companies from making consolidated financial reporting.

- Requirements for publication of the financial reports, audit reports, and reports of the management of all types of companies, except small

- Companies with subsidiaries are obliged to consolidate all reporting, including management reporting

- Collective responsibility of corporate management bodies’ members before the company for publication of the financial reporting

Directive has less requirements for financial reporting. It contains less requirements than we used to have. To have it aligned we have to cut it.

Requirements on collective legislation are missing in our legislation.
In audit:
Directive 2006/43

- Lack of definition about subject of public interest. And we have to implement the requirement of compulsory audit for the large and medium companies, as well as requirement for publication of (consolidated) financial reporting, (consolidated) management reporting and audit reporting

- Introduction of special requirements to auditors and audit companies, which carry out mandatory audit.

- There has to be public oversight system over the audit activities and quality assurance of the auditing services

- Introduction of regulation on mandatory application of the IARS by all auditing companies

- Requirement to apply IFRS by all subjects of the public interest

Discussion:

1. Olena Velychko, Union of Auditors of Ukraine

I think this study shows more positive sides than negative on the current situation available. I agree that the audit standards have to be adjusted more on legislative level. As for the law on audit, it's done by the Chamber. Since 2003 we implemented international standards, so your remark can be right. They are preparing a new law. They want to take many things into account. But I would also like to indicate one important thing. When you were saying on corporate management, particularly the law on shareholders in part of audit according to the law, they contradict with audit standards. Because the report on results has to the report of the Revision committee, which is very different. Therefore the audit report contradicts with the JSC law. So we need to align these articles. But other laws on corporate management, assessment are in line with European standards, it's very progressive. In order to improve our legislation we will have to evaluate larger scopes reflected in the report. Allow me to disagree with you in terms of the facts we are missing requirements on auditing companies that are performing mandatory audit. Our requirements are more than tough as of today if a company failed to pass QA, they cannot do the mandatory audit. This requirement need probably certain relief, maybe we overworked it. The new draft laws, which have already been submitted to the parliament, require to have audit in LTDs and LLCs, but these norms are not controlled, so not performed. But it's rather a comment then a question.

Arkadiusz Radwan, Senior Expert, Team Leader

3rd Session:
Company law reform patterns and philosophies in transitional economy – Lessons from and for Ukraine

We need to have better understanding of pattern developed with regard to legal transplants:

- Legal borrowing
- Path dependence:
  - Mass privatisation
  - Highly concentrated ownership structure with popular (mass individual) share ownership
  - Deficits of the judicial system – law enforcement
  - Adherence to legal formalism – common feature of transition
  - Gaps and overlaps in regulatory framework - might be contradictory
  - Legacy of centrally planned economy
  - Multilayer ties between business and politics
- Regulatory models
  - Prohibitory model
  - Enabling model

    For Ukraine which one to use: these are just models no jurisdiction adhers to one of them strictly, they might be combined, or one can be prevailing.

- A third way: self-enforcing model of corporate law

- the need to control self-dealing of managers with respect to shareholders; clear cut rules will allow less adherence to judiciary
- reliance on procedural protections (such as transaction approval by independent directors, shareholders) rather than on flat prohibitions of suspect categories of transactions;
- enforcement through actions by direct participants (shareholders, directors, managers), rather than indirect (judges, regulators, legal and accounting professionals etc.);
- usage, whenever possible, of clear-cut, bright-line rules, rather than standards, to define proper and improper behavior;
- strong legal remedies on paper, to compensate for the low probability that the sanctions will be applied in fact.

Examples of how corporate law can be implemented

- a one share, one vote rule; Ukraine already has it
- rules on valuation and determination of market price;
- cumulative voting rule for election of a supervisory board; inspired by American patterns
- Significant transactions require approval by a supermajority of shares;
- exit rights:
  - right of withdrawal (exit at will),
- dissenter's rights (appraisal remedy) through buy-out right in cases of fundamental changes or significant transactions, sell-out, squeeze-out; - not implemented
- the mandatory bid rule;
- special requirements to be met by the company to enter into significant transactions and non-arm’s length transactions (RPT);
- pre-emptive rights

- Rational apathy of dispersed and uninformed individual minority shareholders
- Free-riding on monitoring by institutional investors, provided
- Strict adherence to the principle of equal treatment of shareholders for foreign investments

What can make Ukraine be advanced:

Leapfrogging

- Possible examples:
  - e-registration – possibility to set up a company via electronic system, which is not mandated, but a good example of leapfrogging, and it may be added to the EU legislation.
  - flexible capital regime

_Closing remarks:_

This study can't cover everything. But the idea is to have an overview, to understand what requires further elaboration. It’s good to have a legal obligation, but it’s also good to have an alibi to push the things forward. Ukraine will face choices in what way to adopt different laws. For now it’s only guidelines how we should develop the legislation, in which direction we should proceed.
